

Sex-case doctor down, but not out

by BARRY SIGALE

Dr. James G. Middleton, once a thriving, $50,000-a-year general practitioner, is living a life of relative destitution, picking tomatoes, sweet corn and cucumbers from a backyard garden for food and working as a janitor in return for free use of his former office as a home.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $350-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 909 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the driveway and throwing out trash in and around the building occupied by a printing firm and his small quarters.

A raid on his Des Plaines office by Sheriff's Police investigators produced pipebombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and artificial devices for sexual stimulation.

Middleton was projected as a Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde character, an image

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze. Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than antifreeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Citgo station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

"They have the antifreeze but they

Result of drop in multiplier

Parks get $17,000 less in taxes from state

The Wheeling Park District will receive about $17,000 less than anticipated this year in property tax revenues because of the drop in the state tax multiplier, said Park Supt. David Phillips.

The multiplier, used to equalize assessments among Illinois counties, was dropped 7 per cent this year for Cook County, resulting in a reduction from $97.8 million to $80.6 million in equalized assessed valuation for the park district.

"I feel this is going to hurt us very seriously," Phillips said. "I feel it was an arbitrary decision and was politically motivated."

THE LOWER multiplier has caused lower assessed valuations throughout the state and has reduced revenues going to park districts, school districts, municipalities and other local taxing bodies.

Phillips said he anticipates that the park district will lose even more revenue next year because of the lower assessed valuation.

"It's going to be worse next year because they gave us a cushion this year by letting us raise our tax rate," he said.

"But next year, we're not going to have that cushion."

The state this year allowed various taxing bodies to raise its tax rates above the maximum allowed by law, but next year will require that the rates again be dropped to within the guidelines.

ALTHOUGH PHILLIPS is unsure what effect the lower revenues will have on over-all operation of the park district, he said it will not affect land acquisition and park improvements approved by the voters in a $700,000 referendum in 1972. Revenues for these projects come from a separate fund, he said.

In addition to lower revenues, the decrease in the assessed valuation has lowered the bonding power of the park district. The bonding power, or the amount of money the park district can borrow has decreased from $2,445,551 last year to $2,241,029 this year.

The bonding power of the park district is set by law at 2.5 per cent of its assessed valuation.

La Cancha seeks zoning extension

The Wheeling Village Board tonight will consider granting a zoning extension to the La Cancha Racquet and Swim Club because the firm has been unable to start construction of the proposed facility.

An ordinance requires developers to come before the village board and request an extension if the property is not built on within two years of the time zoning is granted.

In a recent letter to the village, the developer said it has been unable to start construction due to "reasons beyond our control."

The club, to be located at 1225 S. Wheeling Rd., will include indoor and outdoor tennis courts, handball and racquetball courts, an indoor and outdoor swimming pool, sauna, whirlpool, restaurant and bar.

Developer Charles Lind said the club also will be available for weddings, receptions and parties.

THE PRIVATE CLUB is expected to restrict its membership to 750 persons. Initiation fees for membership will begin at $300 for a single person to $1,500 for corporate memberships.

In addition, members will pay monthly dues of $25 and indoor tennis will cost $8 an hour.

The club is the first proposed under a village ordinance that allows recreation facilities under industrial zoning. The ordinance was passed last year to attract such developments to the village.

In other business tonight the village board will:

- Consider a petition to rezone property at the northwest corner of Palatine and Wheeling roads to allow construction of townhouses.
- Pass an ordinance controlling water runoff.
- Consider an extension of zoning for Raupp Disposal Service.
- Consider the extension of zoning for property at the southwest corner of Hintz and Wheeling roads.
- Pass a resolution authorizing village officials to sign the Jeffery Avenue Bridge permit application.

'Longest hearing in history'

State board hears Whipple charges

by WANDALYN RICE

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Certification Board, in "the longest hearing in history," heard charges from Barbara Hickey, a former teacher at Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, that former director John Whipple allowed child abuse to occur at the school. The school offers special classes for emotionally disturbed children from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Hickey, who resigned from the school this fall after making charges against Whipple to County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office, admitted under cross-examination that she does not remember if she complained about child abuse at the school until after Whipple told her she would not receive a raise at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

Whipple, seated at a small table with his attorney, Paul Rettberg, listened intently to the testimony, frequently leaning over to whisper advice to Rettberg.

In addition to Mrs. Hickey, the board heard two hours of testimony from Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent to Martwick. Martwick has suspended Whipple's certificate which allows him to work as a school psychologist in public schools and has recommended that the certification board revoke the certificate.

Board members agreed to continue the hearing on Oct. 7 in Chicago. Whipple will be allowed to continue to work as a psychologist until the hearing is completed.

Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer until July, when he requested a transfer to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems.

THE NORTHWEST EDUCATION Cooperative governing board, which runs Dwyer, has reaffirmed its faith in Whipple in a report following an investigation into the charges against him and other members of the Dwyer staff. In his testimony, Hennessey referred to the NEC report as a "whitewash."

John Whipple

Whipple also has been accused of violating another state law by practicing as a private psychologist without a state license. David Smith, hearing officer for the board, overruled at least temporarily an effort by officials from Martwick's office to introduce evidence that State's Atty. Bernard Carey is investigating that charge against Whipple. Carey has taken no action to prosecute Whipple.

Mrs. Hickey said that in February of this year, Whipple called her to his office at Dwyer and told her she should resign from the program because she couldn't get along with other staff members and that "I let my needs and values get in the way of running the program."

Mrs. Hickey testified that she thought Whipple's evaluation was unfair because "the closest Mr. Whipple came to watching me work in three years at Dwyer was when he stood outside my door for a

Jail youth despite hospital order

A Palatine youth with a medical record of hepatitis is locked in Cook County Jail despite a court order for his hospitalization. Jail officials insist that Phillip Johnson, 17, is "recovering" from the disease and cannot infect the jail's 1,300-prisoner population. His presence in the jail despite the court order was disclosed by Peter Bensinger, Republican candidate for sheriff.

FAA worker alleges sex bias

A Federal Aviation Administration employee who oversees enforcement of the agency's fair-employment standards in this area filed a sex discrimination complaint against her boss Friday. Judith Ramey, 38, charged that her supervisor, Robert Dixon, chief of the agency's civil rights staff, did not promote her because she is a woman. "This is the latest development in a pattern of discrimination by the Great Lakes Region of the FAA," she said. The agency's regional headquarters is in Des Plaines.

Biesterfeld, I-90 interchange OKd

The proposed Interstate-90 interchange at Biesterfeld Road in Elk Grove Village has won approval from the Federal Highway Administration. Planning for the project will now begin, with construction an estimated three years or more away. Cost of the interchange was estimated at $1.2 to $1.5 million.

Chicagoan, 52, hit by train

A 52-year-old Chicago man had both his legs amputated Friday after he was hit by a train near the Cumberland station in Des Plaines. Earl Long, of 848 Madison St., was in guarded condition Sunday in the intensive-care unit of Holy Family Hospital. Police said he was struck by a Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train about 5 p.m. Friday. His injuries required amputation of both legs above the knees and a finger of his left hand, police said.

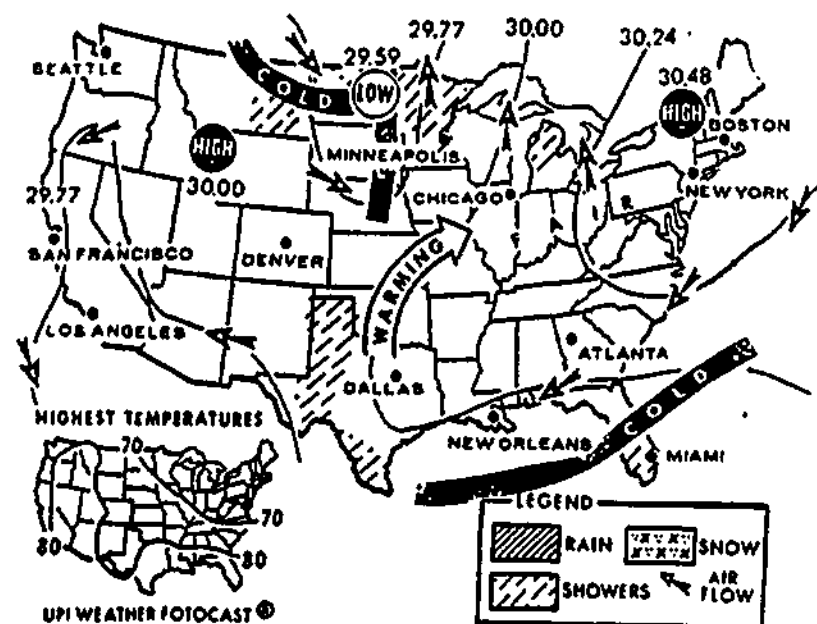

YMCA expansion delayed

The Northwest YMCA has put off plans for a $1.6 million addition to its Des Plaines facility because of soaring construction costs. The YMCA had hoped to start construction of the 28,000-square-foot addition this fall. Stephen Jurco, president of the YMCA board of directors, said the delay does not mean plans for the addition will be abandoned.

don't have the cans," he said. Till's opinion?

"I think it's a bunch of baloney myself. I think it's a big game the oil companies are playing."

JAMES REYNOLDS, public affairs manager for DuPont Chemical Co., has other explanations for the shortage.

Reynolds said DuPont is getting out of the antifreeze market at the end of the year because "To put it bluntly, we lost money on it over the last three years." He said DuPont had only 10 per cent of the antifreeze market anyway, and said the current shortage may be due to a distribution lag.

"There has been no new ethylene glycol plant built in the United States in the last five years, but the demand has risen for antifreeze (with year-round use)," he said.

Last year it also was difficult to obtain other products needed to make antifreeze, such as naphtha, Reynolds explained, so ethylene glycol plants did not work at full capacity. Then when demand for the product started around July, there was none available in warehouses.

Reynolds said predictions and cries of a shortage "have become a self-fulfilling prophecy" as motorists hoard the product for fear of a shortage, which in turn adds to the shortage.

Gas prices falling, supply climbing

The average price of regular grade gasoline in Chicago and suburbs has dropped more than 2 cents in the past three weeks and there seems to be plenty of gas available.

A Chicago Motor Club survey showed the average price of a gallon of gas is 56.2 cents for regular and 62 cents for premium.

A HERALD SURVEY of prices and availability in the Northwest suburbs on Friday revealed motorists can expect to pay approximately $6.73 for a gallon of antifreeze at a service station.

At least two service station owners warned that they would lean toward serving local customers first, however, and to saving what antifreeze they have on hand for customers who have their car winterized at the station.

Average price for a gallon of antifreeze at a discount or department store locally was $4.09 a gallon.

But prices seemed to vary widely, especially at service stations, where The Herald heard prices ranging as high as $9.50 to as low as $5.

HERE'S WHAT some local stores and service stations said Friday about the availability of antifreeze:

• Fred's 68 station in Wheeling had "none, not even a quart. Owner Fred Herrick said he fears the shortage will get worse and people "better start getting shields around their bicycles."

• K Mart stores in Palatine and Des Plaines were both temporarily out of antifreeze after a recent sale at which customers were limited to two gallons each. Rich Rompala, service manager of the automotive department in the Des Plaines K Mart at 1155 Oakton St., predicted the price would go as high as $15 a gallon by December.

• Ben Marsala, owner of the River and Oakton Shell station in Des Plaines, said he has some antifreeze, but "There just isn't enough antifreeze on the street. A lot of cars are going to be hurt this winter; it's going to ruin a lot of engines."

• At a Mobil station in Hoffman Estates, antifreeze was in stock, but a spokesman said the station "won't be getting any more."

• A Union 76 station in Schaumburg that has antifreeze is limiting sales to customers who get their cars winterized at the station on a "first come, first serve" basis.

• Joseph Scarati, part owner of the Rolling Meadows Standard Service Station, 3300 Kirchoff Rd., says he has supply enough until November, but only one-fourth of what he needs. "I've got feelers out now to get what I need and I hope it comes through," he said. He recommended auto owners simply add antifreeze instead of draining the radiator this year.

• At the Arlington Park Shell station at Euclid Avenue and Wilke Road in Arlington Heights, owner William Gilmore said: "We have some left over and we're lucky because it's going to be hard to get."

• Tom Elledge, owner of Elledge Standard Service Station, 410 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, said he was supposed to receive his shipment of antifreeze by Aug. 1 and now he doesn't expect it for at least another month.

• Standard Oil Co. lost its supplier, Bob Copeland of Bob's Standard Service at Devon and Wood Dale roads in Elk Grove Village, said. And so, his order placed in July still hasn't been filled.

• Fred Sender, owner and manager of Fred's Arco at 1050 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, told a Herald reporter: "If you know where I can get some, I'll gladly buy some." Calling the shortage "a dirty shame," he said, "I think everybody's in the same shoes."

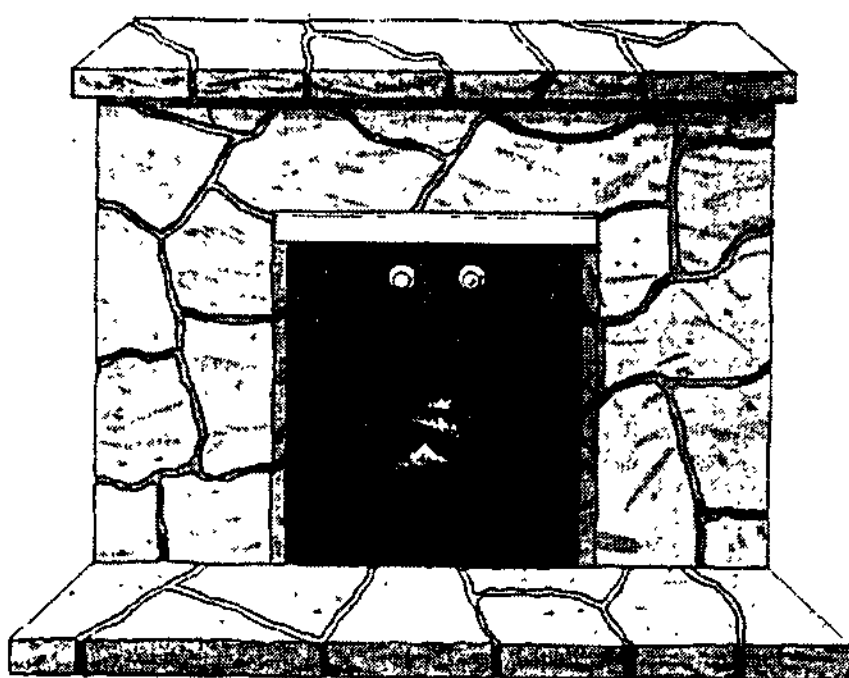

• In Buffalo Grove, Dick Zolich, manager of Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil station, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads, said: "It costs $7.50 a gallon and we don't have much."

Open Senate hearing today on confirmation of Rocky

From Herald news service

With the opening today of Senate hearings on the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as 41st vice president of the United States, the possibility of the richest man ever to hold so high an office comes closer to reality.

The hearings involving the 66-year old former governor of New York mark the second time in less than a year that Congress — rather than the American voter — has sat in judgment of a vice-presidential candidate. The other time was last November when Gerald R. Ford was confirmed to succeed Spiro Agnew in the vice-presidency.

The question of Rockefeller's wealth came up as soon as President Ford announced his selection of the Standard Oil heir. The former governor said in a statement last week that he is worth $182.5 million. But some say the figure could be as high as $300 million to $500 million if the assets he holds jointly with his family were counted.

Weeks of investigation by the FBI, which assigned 400 agents to the background scrutiny of Gov. Rockefeller, have reportedly turned up no evidence which would hinder confirmation.

A team of 20 government auditors poured over the Rockefeller financial empire's files in New York, but their report will not reach Congress until next month.

In the Senate, work on the confirmation hearings will likely be over within a week or two, although Democrats have vowed there will be no formal confirmation vote until after the November elections.

Assuming no contrary evidence surfaces from the massive investigation of his background, Rockefeller can expect to draw political fire for a number of his policies and actions during his decade and a half as a governor of New York.

Foremost among these are his handling of the bloody Attica prison riots in which 43 guards and inmates were slain, and Rockefeller's approval of the most liberal abortion law of any state in the country.

Pilots back, Braniff flies again today

From Herald news service

Braniff International Airlines signed a mediation agreement with its pilots Sunday, ending a paralyzing strike that began after the stroke of midnight Saturday.

The airline is planning to return to normal scheduling today with many strike-affected employees back at work Sunday.

Although the mediation agreement brought the pilots and their airplanes back into service, several important differences are still at issue, including wages and fringe benefits.

According to Braniff figures, its cockpit crews earn an average of $31,000 a year and senior captains get $67,000 a year. The pilots wanted a 40 per cent increase, claiming Braniff's pay schedule for flight crews as "the lowest of 12 domestic air lines in the United States." The company branded the pay demand as "super inflationary."

Braniff serves 46 U.S. cities and 12 in Latin America with 79 airplanes. A total of 1,328 pilots was involved in the strike which affected 7,900 other workers, 5,000 of them in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

VOLUNTEERS IN MIAMI sort out clothing to be packed and loaded in trailer for shipment to hurricane-ravaged Honduras. Hurricane Fifi is believed to be the worst Hurricane ever to hit Central America.

Fifi's wake: bury, burn 2,700 bodies

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras (UPI) — Rescue officials Sunday ordered mass incineration of bodies to prevent epidemics in the festering devastation wrought by Hurricane Fifi. Floodwaters brought out hundreds of poisonous snakes.

The Honduran army information service said more than 2,700 bodies were burned or buried at Choloma, 12 miles north of San Pedro Sula, and another 1,000 at La Ceiba, a banana port on the coast.

"Five thousand persons died, 10,000 homes were destroyed, damage to crops, public property and private industry is estimated at $250 million," an army spokesman told UPI.

UPI correspondent Jonathan Roussel flew over Choloma, once a city of 12,000 inhabitants 12 miles from San Pedro Sula, and saw dark clouds of smoke rising from bodies being incinerated in huge funeral pyres.

Capt. Luis Discua, a spokesman for the Government's central information agency in Tegucigalpa, said the decomposed bodies were burned to prevent epidemics. "So many bodies have been exposed to the elements since Thursday that in many cases they are being burned on the spot instead of being brought out for funerals," he said.

Officials said that receding floodwaters had loosened hundreds of poisonous snakes which added to the health hazard. Hurricane Fifi roared up the coast of Honduras Wednesday and Thursday but lost its force sweeping through Belize and Southern Mexico, and was downgraded to a tropical storm by Friday. The skies were clear in San Pedro Sula Sunday and the flood waters were receding.

U.S. Ambassador Philip V. Sanchez, helping coordinate American aid, warned that epidemics could bring further disaster.

In New York, an appeal was issued for U.S. contributions of food, medicine, blood, plasma, water purification tablets, antibiotics, clothing, bandages, tents, blankets, and plastic dishes and containers.

The Honduras Emergency Committee run by the Honduran government has set up supply centers in major U.S. cities to gather donated goods.

RESIDENTS OF Choloma, Honduras, watch as grave is dug for victim of Hurricane Fifi. It was reported more than 2,700 bodies had been counted.

Auto blue collar workers highest paid

DETROIT (UPI) — More than 900,000 auto workers receive their sixth pay raise of the year today, pushing hourly earnings for blue collar workers to a record average of $6.

Industry spokesmen said it makes auto workers the highest paid blue collar workers in history.

General Motors Corp., the giant of the industry, said its 376,000 blue collar workers will receive $6.06 an hour.

Spokesmen for General Motors, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. said the $6 an hour figure does not include another $3 an hour in fringe benefits.

The latest pay increase averages 16 cents an hour. It covers all blue and white collar employees of the auto industry in the United States and Canada.

The increase was automatic under contracts signed last autumn between the Big three automakers and the United Auto Workers Union, Company and union said the increase recognizes a continuing 3 per cent annual rise in productivity.

It marks the second increase this month. Workers received 13 cents an hour Sept. 1 because of soaring living costs over the previous three months.

Earlier, auto workers received increases of 12, 8, and 13 cents an hour in cost of living allowances and if living costs go up again, another boost is set for Dec. 1.

The latest pay boosts range from 12 cents for workers earning $4.17 an hour to 26 cents for workers earning $8.50 an hour. This averages out to 16 cents an hour.

Not included in pay checks are such benefits as pensions, supplemental unemployment contributions, life insurance and medical benefits.

One benefit effective Oct. 1 is a pre-paid dental care program negotiated last autumn, the first time the automakers have agreed to finance dental care for employees.

Peace efforts: Cyprus talks stall again

From Herald news services

Peace negotiations on the embattled island of Cyprus may have hit a snag with publication of refusal by the Turks to sit down and talk unless 10,000 Turkish Cypriot refugees are free to go anywhere on the island.

Turkish premier Bulent Ecevit said Sunday his country is seeking free movement of all Turks native to the island, including those now living as refugees on British bases.

Meanwhile, on Cyprus, Greek and Turkish Cypriots begin today to exchange the 5,000 prisoners captured during the July-August war. The general release of prisoners was preceded by the exchange of 398 sick and wounded prisoners. When the prisoners are released, each person will be asked which side of the island he wishes to go. Earlier, Greek Cypriot leader Glafkos Clerides, had insisted that prisoners be set free where they were captured to avoid any transfer of populations which may deepen the divisions on the highly partisan island.

Archbishop Makarios, the overthrown leader of Cyprus will soon depart for the United Nations headquarters in New York.

Hollywood mourns death of 'Grandpa' Walter Brennan

• Three time Oscar winner and one of the most endearing character actors in Hollywood, Walter Brennan died at age 80 Saturday night. Brennan appeared in more than 100 films and several television series. He is best remembered as the sidekick in many Western movies and for his roles in such substantial pictures as "Sergeant York," "Meet John Doe," and "Northwest Passage." Brennan died while watching one of his own movies, "The Westerner," from his hospital bed.

• Dead at age 53 is Jacqueline Susann, author of several sensational novels which depicted the world of easy sex, drugs and the lives of the wealthy. While her books, which include "The Valley of the Dolls," never received critical acclaim, she is the only author to reach the top of the New York Times bestseller list with three successive novels. Miss Susann, who was married to television and motion picture producer Irving Mansfield for 30 years, suffered from cancer for the past 12 years but her ailment remained a family secret.

Palestine group splits Arabs

From Herald News Services

A new schism in the Arab bloc occurred Sunday when Jordan announced it is temporarily withdrawing from all Middle East peace efforts to protest Egypt's switch to support of the Palestine Liberation Organization as the only representative of the Palestinian people.

Jordan, which has a large population of Palestinians also announced it has turned down an invitation to attend a policy meeting between Egypt, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, revealed his country went to war against Israel last October with half its helicopters idle because the supplier of spare parts, the Soviet Union, had failed to provide what amounted to two crates of spare parts for the Russian-built aircraft.

Awaiting appeal of conviction on deviate sexual assault

further enhanced by insistence that he submit to a psychiatric examination. At one of his trials it was revealed he is a former CIA agent, further clouding the public's mind as to just who the accused man is.

Since his medical license was revoked by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education, June 2, 1971, Middleton has changed. He has traded in his doctor's garb for work clothes and his stethoscope for a shovel.

"I look rather barbaric at times," Middleton admitted last week in the first interview he has given since he first appealed his convictions more than two years ago. "I tell you one thing, I practice medicine a hell of a lot better than I lay asphalt."

MIDDLETON WAS sentenced to serve 5 to 10 years in a state penitentiary for drugging and then sexually assaulting a woman patient in his office. He was acquitted of a similar charge in 1961 in St. Louis. He also was sentenced to four years in federal prison for possessing and manufacturing explosive devices in his office. He has been free on bond pending the outcome of his appeals.

The bizarre circumstances surrounding one of the most publicized police and court cases in this area has financially broken Middleton. The only income is from his wife's salary as an employee at a Chicago hospital. "I'm not sure how much money she makes," Middleton said. "She earns her money, I know that. She leaves at 5:15 a.m."

A federal court has declared Middleton legally indigent because of his inability to afford what has become his exorbitant lawyer's fees and has appointed a U.S. defender to argue his federal appeal. He still retains the services of attorney Sam Adam to appeal the state conviction.

"I'm damn near destitute," Middleton said. "I've gone long beyond the financially troubled stage. We started the garden (in March) to save money. What we don't eat Margaret (his wife) cans or gives away."

MIDDLETON said he is not the garden-type but he spends a lot of time on his hands and knees tending it. He said the garden is yielding "phenomenal tomatoes for which we have no sensible answer." Then he came up with an explanation for the top-drawer crop. "We used nonusable, discarded blood bank blood with ultra-violet light."

Middleton said his relationship with his family and friends hasn't changed. "My close friends have become closer," he said. And, with the exception of about a half dozen patients, he said, his clientele "didn't desert me. The Thursday after my arrest the parking lot was more full than usual" with patients and his business continued to thrive.

He said his patients wanted him to launch a "counterattack in some fashion" against those making the charges against him, including the Carpentersville woman who Middleton said, "presumably had this horrible deed done to her." The woman's testimony led to the doctor's conviction in his sex trial. She has since filed a $1.2 million damage suit against him. The charges are pending.

Middleton keeps his office locked and has a sign posted on the front door suggesting a note be slipped under the door if there was a message. "It's a decoy," he added, a ploy of his to keep intruders away.

AS HE CHARGED during his trials and the subsequent appeals, Middleton believes people have to this day been regularly breaking into his office while he has been away in court, the timing of which is more than coincidental, he said.

"There have been many surreptitious entries after the trial," he said, "especially when I'm scheduled to go downtown to court. But I've arranged things in such a way so it takes them a half a day to get in and rearrange things, leaving them little time to look for things."

What are these people looking for? "They're not looking for anything," he said. "They want to get an appraisal, a sense of what's going on." Middleton, who has spent most of his spare time working on courtroom-related matters and gathering information for a medical book, contends the arresting officers bribed and threatened him into pleading guilty in exchange for a lesser sentence or early parole. He also contends the prosecution withheld data which could have been used in his behalf.

STILL, HE SAID, if he was a member of the jury and had to judge the case on the evidence presented, he might himself have voted guilty on the charges. "As a doctor I would say not guilty. But if I was a layman and heard the case the tendency would be there to get it (the trial) over with" because of the length of the proceedings.

Then he added, "a pound more evidence wouldn't have been enough. Thirteen pounds still wouldn't have been enough. Two tons more wouldn't have been enough" because the case was fraudulent from the outset.

Now it all comes down to the appeals court and it is not known how long it will take before a final ruling is made or how long it will take Middleton to exhaust all his appeal remedies. If ruled against, he will begin serving time, something he has refused to consider.

"I'll simply go to jail" when the time comes, is how he replied, adding, "The likelihood of that is pretty remote and is progressively becoming more remote" as the proceedings continue.

Ill Palatine youth remains in county jail

by JOANN VAN WYE and AL MESSERSCHMIDT
A Palatine youth with a medical record of hepatitis is locked in County Jail, despite a court order for his hospitalization.

Jail officials insist the youth — Phillip Johnson, 17 — is "recovering" from the disease and cannot infect the jail's 1,300-prisoner population.

But, a medical statement included in the youth's court file recommends hospitalization and treatment for hepatitis, a contagious liver disease. Treatment at Cermak Hospital, which serves county jail, reportedly was ordered by a Circuit Court judge when Johnson was arrested on vandalism charges Aug. 28 by Palatine police.

CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE Arthur Sullivan last week ordered a "full report" on Johnson's health and delayed a preliminary hearing until Thursday on charges of burglary and vandalism. Sullivan's order came after the judge refused Thursday to allow the youth inside his Skokie courtroom for fear of infecting persons present.

Johnson's three-week jailing without hospitalization was disclosed Friday during a speech before Wheeling Township Republicans by Peter Bensinger, GOP candidate for sheriff.

During his appearance in Arlington Heights, Bensinger referred to a "prisoner who should have gone to Cermak Hospital for diabetes and went instead to County Jail."

Johnson, 449 E. Baldwin Rd., Palatine, "is sick and I want treatment for him," his mother, Billie Johnson, said Saturday. "They figure he was in trouble before and just threw him in jail."

"I'm not satisfied he has hepatitis," Sullivan said. "He may have. I want to see what is being done and whether it's dangerous."

AFTER JOHNSON WAS arrested by Palatine police, a fire department ambulance driver, two policemen and another arrested youth were inoculated against possible hepatitis and the Palatine jail was sanitized.

Johnson was arrested after he left "against medical advice" Alexian Brothers Medical Center Aug. 25. The youth entered the hospital Aug. 5 for treatment of hepatitis and a liver ailment after the Cook County State's Attorney's office agreed to delay his arrest.

"We put him in the hospital because we knew he was sick," his mother said. "When he was picked up, it was infectious, but it's not now."

Johnson was taken to county jail on the day of his arrest, his mother said.

Palatine police said the youth was transported in an ambulance to Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove Village. But, hospital officials told The Herald that Johnson was not admitted or treated on Aug. 28 or 29.

FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER his arrest, on Sept. 12, Johnson received a physical examination at Cermak Hospital. Lad Alfaro, jail paramedics supervisor, said Johnson's medical record, with a first entry of Sept. 12, indicates that he entered the jail "at the earliest" Sept. 11.

Another spokesman at the jail told the Herald on Friday that Johnson was not a jail prisoner.

Tests at Cermak on Sept. 12 and Sept. 18 showed a "liver problem" but not hepatitis, Alfaro said.

A separate test that is dated Sept. 12 called for hospitalization and hepatitis treatment. The test result, reported by Dr. E. J. Kelleher, director of psychiatric services for the county, is included as a signed statement in Johnson's court file. Kelleher also recommended out-patient psychiatric treatment.

Sheriff Richard Elrod, the official responsible for county jail operations, said Saturday he has no authority to place the youth in Cermak Hospital, which is controlled by the Hospital Governing Commission.

ALFARO SAID Johnson's case is not "unusual." "We get 300 prisoners a day,

About 100 come with orders from judges for hospitalization. We'd have to have Presbyterian-St. Luke's (Hospital) for them all."

Cermak Hospital has 70 beds and on Friday only one was vacant, Alfaro said.

Prisoners with court orders for hospitalization are sent to Cermak for "reevaluation," Alfaro said. "The judges play doctor. We don't know what they tell the judge. We completely check their record."

Johnson "doesn't have anything you'd call infectious. He's on the road to recovery. All you can do is rest and take vitamins," Alfaro said.

The youth is in a single cell in a "holding area," for prisoners who cannot perform jail work, Alfaro said. Cermak physicians are "twice as alert" for possible infectious diseases like hepatitis because "we have 1,300 people here."

ACCORDING TO ALFARO, Johnson was reexamined Friday and "there's still nothing. The lab reports came back okay."

Johnson was arrested in June after a break-in at Busch's Parts and Services, 137 S. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Police answered a burglar alarm that was triggered when a building window was broken. Police found no identification or stolen goods with Johnson when he was arrested.

Johnson also is charged with a June 21 vandalism incident at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant, 920 E. Northwest Hwy. An estimated $500 in damage to a ceiling, cash register, safe and desk was reported after a burglary attempt.

State board hears Whipple testimony

few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, "I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to the paddling if the rules had been followed but "there were no two swats on the butt."

She said Michael Biskupski, who was first an aide in the program and later a teacher in the junior high school, "put the paddle over his head" and then brought it down to hit a child. She said, "There was a boy who was taller than Mr. Biskupski and it seems he was always in the hall getting it."

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

SHE SAID THAT after Whipple gave her the poor evaluation in February and suggested she resign, she called Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, to tell her about the evaluation and mentioned that there were "other things" at the school that needed Mrs. Kinney's attention.

She said she did not specify what "other things" Mrs. Kinney should look into because "there wasn't time" during that phone call.

She said the child Whipple walked on the "leash" made of a belt, was a child who "made quite a few animal sounds" and who was in therapy with Whipple. She said the boy "looked forward to Mr. Whipple's arrival and if he was late for any reason, he would become very upset."

She also said that when the boy was on the leash, he would walk on all fours and bark like a dog. "The boy did not seem to be dealing with anything but a fantasy situation," she said.

SHE SAID ON another occasion she saw a child riding a tricycle around the playground in the rain and when she asked the child's teacher about it, was told "he's in therapy with Mr. Whipple." She said she saw Whipple in the teachers' lounge getting coffee while the boy was on the playground.

She also testified that "profanity and vulgar language" was commonly used by teachers around the school and that several times during the spring she saw a woman teacher and a male teacher's aide "necking and ear biting" in a classroom in front of children.

On cross examination, she said she had not attempted to stop the pair because "I didn't have the authority" and that she had not reported it to Whipple because "I thought he knew about it."

Mrs. Hickey also testified that she once saw Whipple "slam a boy into the wall and hold him there while he cried," and that Whipple would sometimes introduce a child with a breast fixation to women visitors and that the boy would fondle the women's breasts.

Mrs. Hickey also testified that a "quiet" sign was hung on the door to the Final testimony on incorporation slated today

Final testimony on the Prospect Heights incorporation petition is to be heard at 10 a.m. today before Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford in the Chicago Civic Center.

Jack Siegel, attorney for the objector — the Village of Arlington Heights — is to finish presenting his evidence that the proposed boundaries of the new municipality would interfere with Arlington Heights' municipal services such as water and sewer facilities.

Also scheduled for today is testimony presented by Robert F. Meersman, who represents eight property owners located west of Schoenbeck and south of Hintz roads. The property owners have petitioned for annexation to Wheeling.

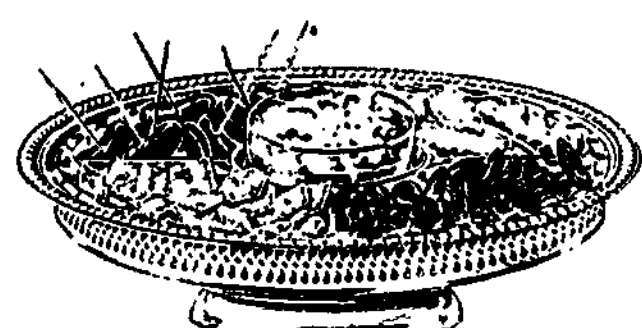

After all testimony is presented, Comerford either will approve the petition, dismiss it or request that the boundaries be altered by the petitioners, the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn.

Approval of the petition would mean a referendum would be held to decide whether the new municipality would be formed.

Comerford is not expected to make his decision today.

Willard Helwig

Willard H. Helwig, 54, a resident of Des Plaines for 13 years, and general manager for Duro-Chrome Co., Chicago, was pronounced dead on arrival Saturday at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, after an apparent heart attack.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Helwig was born in Chicago, Aug. 2, 1920.

Visitation is today from 5 to 9 p.m. in William H. Scott Funeral Home, 1104 Waukegan Rd., Glenview.

Surviving are his widow, Fern, nee Jacobson; parents, Willard and Augusta Helwig of Chicago, and a brother, Bruce of Evanston. He was the brother-in-law of Edward and Lorraine Jacobson of Lake Bluff, and the uncle of many nieces and nephews.

Funeral service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the chapel of the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. Bruce B. Johnston of Trinity Lutheran Church of Glenview. Burial will be in Acacia Park Cemetery, Chicago.

Family requests, in lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Chicago Heart Assn., 22 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Advice for a too-tall teen: don't slouch

I read your column about the woman who was worried about her children growing up to be too short. My problem is just the opposite. I'm almost 5 feet 9 and in the eighth grade. Whenever I meet someone I always dread it because the first impression they must have is, "Gosh, she's tall." Or, "Is she really in the eighth grade?" It has caused me to be very self-conscious and have an inferiority complex.

To keep from standing out in a crowd I stoop, crouch, and whatever else to make myself shorter. Can you help me to get over this problem? Is there anything that can be done?

Yes, something can be done to stop growth. First you should have a careful medical examination by an endocrinologist (gland specialist) to be sure you have no medical disorder that needs treatment.

If everything is normal and it is just a matter of coming into this world with a blueprint for a tall body, then you can be given hormones that will stop the process. The length of the legs are a major factor in how tall a person is. Within the shaft of the thigh bone, for example, there is a zone of cartilage just like a round circular cross section of the bone. It keeps growing and the outer layer of the cartilage disk calcifies and becomes part of the main shaft of the thigh bone. Cartilage grows, but calcified bone does not.

WHEN YOU BEGIN to mature sexually the sex hormones cause the cartilage disk to calcify. The long bones then stop growing. This, incidentally, is why doctors don't like to give sex hormones to either boys or girls before they have completed the growth of the long bones. It can stunt their growth.

So, you can take female hormones and stop the growth of your long bones and markedly slow or stop your continued growth. You would still be a fairly tall girl.

The next question that comes up is, do birth-control pills stop growth in young girls? By the time the ovaries are active enough to produce ovum and cause the possibility of pregnancy they are already producing a lot of estrogen. This effect will already have occurred, and the small amount of female hormones in the birth control pill won't be important then from a growth standpoint. It follows that a girl who is reasonably mature and having regular cycles should be at the stage where the long bones will have stopped growing.

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

STOOPING AND crouching can be a very unhealthy habit. The bad posture that develops can deform your chest cage. The round shoulders and slouched posture are not going to make you very attractive. Part of a woman's good figure is dependent upon posture. Besides that, it can affect the full capacity of your lungs to expand. This will compromise your exercise capacity. It will become more and more important as life goes on. This is a common reaction in tall people, but it is a real mistake.

Boys mature later and continue to grow longer than girls, because they develop slower sexually than girls, as a group. A girl may be mature endocrine-wise in her early teens, but a boy may not be until his early 20s. There is quite an individual variation in time span, however.

DeVal: where boxcars flow like rivers

by STEVE BROWN

Most passers-by don't even notice it. Riders on the suburban passenger trains get only a quick glimpse and to the motorists negotiating the Northwest Highway S curve, the DeVal Station control tower is even more obscure.

But for both these groups and for the trainmen who push the lumbering metallic monsters along the rails, the strange mix of antiquity and the 20th century is the reason why both the trains and cars move — sometimes.

The casual observer might be quick to draw an analogy and compare DeVal to the fast paced action in the control tower at O'Hare International Airport. But aside from the radios which constantly crackle out orders for the train movements, much of the equipment appears that it was put in place shortly after the golden spike was driven home at the Promotory Pass over 100 years ago.

Inside the two story tower that is only a few decades old — it replaced a wooden structure that burned down — the cacophony of the radios is mixed with clanging bells, buzzers and assorted light flashing to warn of impending action.

DeVal. It stands for Des Plaines Valley, but those who know the post along the intersection of the Chicago and North Western Rwy. and the Soo Line tracks also affectionately call it "Death Valley."

THE JOB OF ROUTING well over 100 iron horses, each day, through the confluence of track, (no fewer than eight lines intersect there) proves to be quite a juggling act for men like Dan Wise and Ben Wheeler.

The two men are no newcomers to this railroading game. They bring more than 46 years of experience to their job. And even though they know the territory, it still seems they have their hands full trying to keep the trains sorted out and moving.

"It has been a pretty hectic day," said Wise who had started to work the "first trick" in the tower at 7 a.m.

As the end of the shift was approaching about 3 p.m. he was still trying to move out some of the trains that had been slowed by heavy rains, roadwork and a breakdown in the midst of the morning commuter rush hour.

The traffic controlled by the station requires frequent radio messages with other railroaders and train crews and often several maneuvers of the massive control bank which resembles a giant candy machine. The 60 odd levers control switches and signals throughout the area.

"YOU HAVE TO MAKE a decision to move a train and then stick with it," Wise explains as he leans back to light his pipe.

Both Wheeler and Wise have a healthy respect for their job and know it only takes one mistake to have real trouble. They credit the radios with speeding the movements of trains sometimes more than a hundred cars long that can stretch through several towns at once.

But then anyone who has ever driven a car through towns like Des Plaines, Mount Prospect or Arlington Heights or Palatine can say a few words about long freight trains.

"Yeah I know that can be a big pain," Wise said still clenching his pipe tight in his teeth.

Wheeler and Wise have one of those "you can't please all of the people all of the time" jobs though. When they move the big freights, the motorists do a slow burn, call the police and generally get mad. But the railroad crews can sure spice up the patter over the radio when they have to sit somewhere.

"We try to cooperate and most situations move pretty smoothly," Wheeler noted. But the two men admit that there have been a few bad moments.

"ONE TIME WE HAD a Des Plaines patrolman come bounding up here," Wise recollected. "He was mad because he wanted to give a ticket to the engineer of a train that had been blocking an intersection too long. He couldn't catch up to the train once it started to move so he gave the ticket to us," Wise said.

For Wise and Wheeler the incident was just part of the job. They are quick to point out that it takes a particular type of man.

Aside from the radio and the other clutter around the smallish room that comprises their work area, the job can be lonely.

"Some seem to never pick up all the things you have to do on this job and pick it up real quick," Wise said. He noted that keeping all the trains straight and copying the operation orders can be quite a task.

The train movements and instructions about track conditions are transmitted at breakneck speed with a strange sort of word and number shorthand known only to the men of DeVal station and their colleagues up and down the track.

An unusual type of job that takes a particular type of man. Wise and Wheeler fill that bill. Those two railroaders who have spent nearly a half century on the job without going anywhere seem to bring a reassuring feeling to the octopian occupation at DeVal Station.

Switches are controlled by a big bank of levers.

Radios keep them in touch.

Puffing away, Dan Wise takes a break from the hectic pace of keeping the trains moving.

Talking to the trainmaster; Ben Wheeler monitors the trains as they roll through DeVal.

Past 'achievements' tarnish diplomatic reputation

Kissinger: no longer viewed as a miracle maker

EDITOR'S NOTE: A year ago yesterday Henry Kissinger was sworn in as U.S. Secretary of State — and Frank Teruggi Jr., a student from Des Plaines, was found shot to death at the height of the Chilean revolution.

Today, The Herald offers analyses of both Kissinger's first year in office and the Chilean situation. Chief Editorial Writer Tom Wellman examines the Chilean coup and Teruggi's death in light of recent disclosures of secret CIA involvement before the coup.

NEA columnist Richard H. Boyce considers the first year of Kissinger as Secretary of State. His conclusion: Kissinger's "mistakes and failures have far exceeded his diplomatic achievements."

by TOM WELLMAN
Chief Editorial Writer

A year ago yesterday, a Des Plaines man was murdered in Chile in the midst of a bloody coup which resulted in the violent death of that nation's elected president.

When Frank Teruggi Jr. died, it was difficult to not become cynical about his death, for the U.S. Government could tell us so very little about it. No, they hadn't known of the circumstances of his death for, after all, it is not the task of U.S. embassies to keep track of every movement of U.S. citizens.

Besides, Teruggi was a long-haired student who had translated economic texts for the slain Marxist president, Salvador Allende. State Dept. spokesmen privately expressed distaste for Teruggi's politics; it led observers to wonder if there was something about his death to be concealed by our government.

A year later, those State Dept. spokesmen who reported Teruggi's death to us have a right to be cynical themselves. It turns out that another branch of government — with the approval of Henry Kissinger when he was working for President Nixon — was secretly aiding those elements that may have murdered Teruggi.

The CIA can't be blamed for murdering Teruggi. Rather, the Des Plaines man was a victim of the circumstances which surround the strange twistings and turnings of U.S. foreign policy.

The gist of the CIA-funding scandal is this: something called the "Committee of 40" (which is nothing more than a rubber stamp for Kissinger) ordered the funneling of more than $8 million into covert activities in Chile.

According to press reports, those funds went to bribe Chilean legislators, into covert economic activities and to "destabilize" the government of the freely elected Marxist Allende. For the CIA's purposes, the money was well spent, for Allende was overthrown a year ago and now there's a harsh and repressive right-wing dictatorship running the South American country.

Since the exposure of the secret funds, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has vowed hearings on the matter (there's the nasty problem of perjury by three State Dept. officials) and President Ford last Monday said he recognized the existence of "destabilization."

The whole secret CIA funding scheme has a funny kind of illogic to it, for Kissinger was an alleged apostle of détente and Vietnam peace. His apparent support for the covert overthrow of a legitimately elected, though Marxist, government, certainly points out the limits of his views of international cooperation and friendship.

The scandal shows, too, that our "world policeman" role really hasn't changed much since John Kennedy. After the Bay of Pigs and Vietnam disasters, it was hoped that we'd learned something about our capabilities in the world.

Now, with "destabilization" behind us, Kissinger's vaunted reputation is about to take a nosedive. The master of détente appears to be little more than an opportunistic camp follower of Nixon's political philosophies. Kissinger's respect for crude power politics — or "dirty tricks" — dovetail with his apparent disrespect for the ability of the Chilean people to govern themselves.

Disgrace for Kissinger or scrutiny of the CIA won't bring back Teruggi, nor will it modify the policies of the harsh regime which rules Chile.

At least, though, it may teach us to examine the activities of our government. Yes, we helped overthrow those commies in Chile, but every time an American ambassador burps in the next few years, the natives are going to scream "CIA involvement." In short, our Chilean episode has torpedoed our own world believability.

Frank Teruggi Jr. isn't the only victim of last September's coup. In the midst of the bloodshed, our world credibility — and the reputation of some of our most esteemed foreign policy leaders — died a little, too.

by RICHARD H. BOYCE

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Henry A. Kissinger has served a year as Secretary of State.

When he was sworn in last Sept. 22, Kissinger was widely acclaimed as a diplomatic miracle worker. His laurels included a Nobel Peace prize for getting the United States out of Vietnam, détente with Russia and warmer relations with Communist China.

But in the year since he moved from the White House to the State Department, Kissinger's mistakes and failures have far exceeded his diplomatic achievements.

Hardly had he got his name on his new office door when the October Arab-Israeli war erupted, disrupting Kissinger's détente with Russia which deliberately violated its pledge to stay out by arming the Arabs again. Technically détente still exists but Kissinger knows Russia will always act in its own interests.

America's rearming of Israel angered European allies who turned even further away when Arab oil was cut off. Kissinger's attempt to restore amity with a big "energy" conference failed. To date, he has made little progress toward getting inflated Arab oil prices reduced.

The war did lead to Kissinger's only real diplomatic achievements in his first year in office:

- In January he persuaded Israel and Egypt to pull back troops and convinced Israel to give Egypt back a piece of the occupied Sinai Peninsula.

- In May he persuaded Syria and Israel to disengage on the Golan Heights and had Israel give back some land there, too.

But almost nothing since has gone well.

Because Syria seems intent on more fighting, the Golan deal threatens to come unstuck just as Kissinger's Vietnam deal fell apart. His attempts since May to quiet Syria, get Israel and Jordan together and get Israel and Egypt together or to deal with the Palestinian issue have all been mired in stalemate.

His Moscow "summit" failed to produce the comprehensive nuclear test ban both governments had pledged to seek. The July meeting did produce an agreement to limit underground nuclear testing but the pending treaty has no chance of needed Senate ratification because it is regarded as meaningless.

The summit also produced an

agreement not to build a second anti-ballistic missile (ABM) site which wasn't going to be built anyhow.

Euphoria over the China opening died away as 16 months passed and no progress was made toward establishing full diplomatic relations or settling 25-year-old monetary claims each made on the other.

Offering nuclear power generating stations to Egypt and Israel frightened many. Congress is unlikely to approve the deals unless both nations sign the 1968 nuclear nonproliferation treaty (NPT) which they have resisted for six years.

Also, U.S. failure to condemn India's May 18 detonation of a nuclear device angered dozens of non-nuclear countries the United States had been trying to get to sign the NPT.

There also is strong congressional opposition to a proposal to reduce U.S. control over the Panama Canal.

Kissinger's stock dropped further when he failed to protest the Greek-led coup on Cyprus, did not denounce the insurgent regime set up there and appeared to do nothing to discourage Turkey's invasion of the troubled Mediterranean island.

Kissinger first held up delivery of some warplanes to both Greece and Turkey and then resumed delivery to both, leaving everyone confused. As a result he lost Greece's friendship — and the United States and NATO military bases there.

It is true that Kissinger spent so much time on the Mideast problem he had to ignore or delegate responsibility on other issues. But in the wake of the Mediterranean crisis, Israel and the Arabs are now openly less eager to accept his assurances in future proposals.

And it did not help when Kissinger announced the visit here of Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin before Rabin even had a chance to ask his cabinet for permission to make the trip. Kissinger's tactless move was seen as an attempt to draw attention away from his Mediterranean diplomatic problems.

Before Kissinger became Secretary he ran U.S. foreign policy as a presidential adviser, secretly, and with a small staff. As secretary he vowed to change all that. But Foreign Service officials unhappy with Kissinger in the White House are just as unhappy with Kissinger in the State Department. They still feel out of the picture as Kissinger continues to ignore them and run foreign policy secretly with the small staff he brought over from the White House.

Guns aren't needed at Harper College

If there is one thing this country does not need, it is more persons carrying loaded guns. For that reason, Harper College officials should turn down the request from the college's security force to provide them with guns when they are on patrol.

This does not mean, however, that Harper should ignore the problem of providing security for the campus, or that college officials can prevent crime at the college by pretending it does not exist.

The security guards have filed a grievance with the college officials. They are asking to be allowed to carry .38 caliber pistols inside and outside campus buildings.

In asking for the right to carry guns, the officers argue that they have police academy training and that the number of crimes on the college campus warrant armed officers. They also contend they are only "half police officers" because they cannot wear guns now and that allowing them to carry guns security officers, in fact, may put them in more danger than they are in now from persons who commit crimes on the campus. Criminals might be more likely to carry and use guns on security officers they know to be armed than on those who are unarmed.

As an alternative to providing campus security officers with guns, the Harper administration should give serious consideration to providing the officers with non-deadly weapons, such as Mace, which could be used to disable an attacker.

In addition, Harper officials should work closely with the Palatine Police Department, which has the authority to provide police protection on the campus, to ensure good communications and effective cooperation.

The security officers at Harper have the right to expect support as they work to keep order on the campus. The Harper administration and board should provide that support in all possible ways.

However, supporting the officers does not include giving them guns. To arm the security force would ensure that someday a gun would be used in haste, in the wrong circumstances or against an officer.

That is not good for the college, for the security guards or for the general public.

Tomorrow . . .

'Study the Constitution'

At no time during the 187 years since its adoption has the Constitution been under such discussion and scrutiny as it has been during these past months.

The persons who appeal most often and loudly to this Constitution are its enemies and those who are at heart cynical of its validity.

In virtually every Congressional inquiry that reaches public notice, some "law-breakers," crook or hoodlum loudly and repeatedly invoke the shield of the Fifth Amendment.

In courts, the extremists and way-out leftists scorn the Constitution and demand, most vociferously, its protection to the last letter.

So, it is good and appropriate that the genuine friends of our Constitution rally to its support. There can be no doubt that there is a great need to induce every average citizen to acquire more moderate, more thorough knowledge of the history and provisions of this document which is the basis of the American system of government and life.

In a recent television program, men of supposed scholarship revealed the haziness and shakiness of their notions of the Constitution's philosophy.

The best way to strengthen our Constitution and give full force to its provisions is to increase the public's interest and knowledge.

It should be imperative to incorporate in every American History course in every school of learning the intensive study of the Constitution of the United States of America.

Home life key to fighting drug abuse

by LUISA GINETTI

A strong family home life in which parents take a concerned interest in their children is the best means to deter drug use among children, according to Det. William Tarver of the Des Plaines police youth department.

Speaking before a Congressional hearing on drug abuse Saturday at Niles North High School, Garver said "love and discipline" are the best weapons parents can use to combat the drug problem in the home.

"I believe a strong family life where parents pay real attention to their children is the best deterrent and the best solution to drug-related problems," Tarver said. "The breeding ground for problems is in homes where no true family life exists. In those cases children often turn to drugs because they are looking for attention from their parents."

TARVER SAID the experience Des Plaines officers have had with youth drug-related problems indicates that the home which both parents work and have negligent contact with their children is the home in which problems are most likely to arise.

The youth officer said if parents believe their child is a narcotics user they should bring the youth to the station where, together with the parents, officers will talk to the child. Tarver said his office often refers parents and children to social service agencies in the area after their initial contact with police.

Tarver added that no criminal record is kept for juveniles in such cases. Instead, a "history card" is kept on file for the youth officer's use only. When the child becomes 18, all files in the department on him are destroyed so there is no chance of his past juvenile problems interfering with his adult life.

Tarver encouraged parents to bring their children to the youth department for help because "this often shows the child that the parent is interested in him."

YOUTH and DRUGS

ALTHOUGH HE said there are no "pat" answers to solving youth drug problems, Tarver added that education at schools and in the home are the best means of attacking the problem.

Both Tarver and John Hinchey, director of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), urged Congress not to decriminalize the possession and sale of marijuana. "Don't get lulled into decriminalization," Hinchey told Rep. Samuel H. Young R-10th, chairman of the hearing, and Rep. Robert McClory, R-13th. "Listen to what the kids and their parents have to say."

Hinchey added that although MEG has been successful in arresting drug traffickers and in gaining convictions, very few persons spend any time in jail to pay for their crimes.

"Our laws are more than sufficient to deal with the problem. What we need is more swift and sure justice. Our conviction rate is high (about 85 per cent), but that's where it stops. We have to convince someone that persons selling and trafficking drugs belong in jail."

Hinchey said MEG's greatest difficulty has come from judges who fail to give stiff sentences to convicted drug peddlers and from school officials who do not want to admit a problem exists in their schools.

"THE FIRST person to know there is something wrong with a kid is his teacher," Hinchey said. "We need cooperation from teachers to help us identify the pushers and get the cancer out of the schools."

"Parents have a right to feel their kids are secure in school and that's why school officials should be obliged to cooperate."

Hinchey said the greatest drug problem in the Northwest suburbs is not the use of hard narcotics such as heroin, but the use of barbiturates and hallucinogens.

"If we sealed our borders and prevented the importation of hard narcotics, our problem in the suburbs would still exist."

Our problem is hallucinogens and the manufactured drugs, not the hard, imported narcotics," Hinchey said.

"When we turn in to federal agents more than $50,000 in cash which we've confiscated, it gives you some idea of what we are dealing with," the MEG director added. "It's rolling out here and it's going to continue to roll until we put someone in jail."

Hinchey characterized the typical suburban drug trafficker as a 21-year-old white male who has had two years of college and lives away from home.

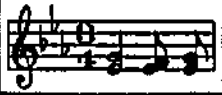

"In 10 years this is the dealer who will become a syndicate member. He has developed moxie in being able to pick up the phone and make a long-distance call to get a shipment of drugs delivered and he is the person who will have developed an organizational ability."

Hinchey said MEG has done a good job in the three years of its existence and he encouraged legislators to provide more funds for such operations to expand. He said MEG, which is composed of agents from 29 suburban police departments, is funded only through June 30, 1975. Hinchey said he does not know if the operation will continue to be financed.

CBS' new White House man 'an old-fashioned reporter'

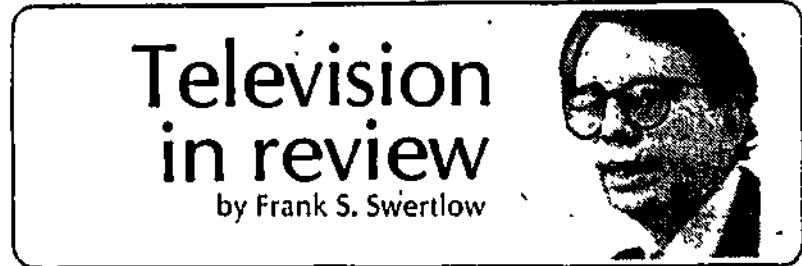

NEW YORK — In an era of pop journalism, Bob Schieffer, CBS' new man at the White House, still looks for the straight news story, not a sugar-coated, laugh-a-minute dispatch.

"I'm kind of an old-fashioned reporter," said Schieffer in a telephone interview from Washington. "I'm more of a traditionalist. Straight reporting is the best reporting. Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein showed that at the Washington Post. They were accurate, readable, no opinion. And they made their stories about Watergate clear by simply telling what happened."

"Those two boys did more for freedom of the press than 100 speeches." Schieffer, 37, is CBS News' replacement for Dan Rather, whose decade at the White House was punctuated by frequent flareups with Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

Oddly enough, Rather succeeds Schieffer as anchorman for CBS this weekend. He also will become anchorman for CBS reports, the first such designation since Edward R. Morrow. Schieffer's last reporting post for CBS was at the Pentagon.

Although Schieffer files his reports on

by Frank S. Swertlow

television, he, like many others in electronic journalism, began his career as a newspaperman. His first major job was with The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and he is proud to say that he was the first Texas newspaperman to report from Vietnam. That was in 1965. He later served as anchorman at WBAP-TV, Dallas-Fort Worth.

"I'm going to cover the White House as straight and fairly as I can," Schieffer said. "That's the way I used to cover the Pentagon. I enjoyed the Pentagon, and it was a hard decision to leave the Sunday News. But now I have a front-row seat and I'm just delighted. There is so much news, maybe five or six stories a day. It's fun."

"I think I have the best job in TV," Schieffer said he and the other newsmen who cover the White House were especially saddened by the resignation of President Ford's press secretary, Gerald F. TerHorst. TerHorst, who returned to his job at the Detroit News, resigned his White House job because of the Nixon pardon.

"We're all sick about Jerry. He was such an honest guy. We felt he was in there fighting for us and talking on the record. He knew why we were there and why we were asking questions. We're just sick about his leaving. But we're proud of him, he had his principles."

COATS TAKE on a new look with the addition of a $4 beret and hand-knitted scarf. Matching shoes, hose and purse complete the ensemble. Kathy Dougherty of Arlington Heights is the model.

THIS BOW-TIED blouse of beige crepe sells for about $17 and is just the right touch to give last year's blazer and pants outfit added lift.

DRESSED UP with a white-on-white blouse, a few simple chains and gold earrings, a left-over two-piece outfit will go around once again.

Wardrobe renovation

Accessories the answer

by KAREN THOMPSON

The only solution to the spiraling cost of clothes today is to make the new work with the old. It's not impossible to do this year, as shades of 1974 are easy additives to seasons past.

It takes some ingenuity and much preplanning, however, to put together a forward-looking wardrobe. The best place to start is in your closet. Make a list of what you already have and then set about buying bits and pieces of "now" to fill in the blanks, according to your budget.

Little touches, deftly selected and used sparingly, can set off the total look at minimum expense. Accessories are essentials. Even one or two items can make a difference — the flavor of a new season.

The best things come in small packages is the slogan for jewelry this fall and winter. Necklaces, pins and earrings are all scaled down — they're understated but, at the same time, intriguing.

PINS ARE BACK AND they are used to hold scarves and mufflers, to stick on a beret, at the waist of a skirt or on a dress. With imagination, you can do more with a pin than any other piece of jewelry. Most popular pins are handcarved, cutouts, ovals and bars.

The media for jewelry run the gamut from painted clay, frosted glass and etched wood with a touch of Art Deco, to the Oriental influence used in carved pearl, coral and ivory look-alikes. The old standbys, metal, felt, vinyl and novelty materials are also appropriate. Colors are usually muted to go along with the '74 monotone feeling.

One-of-a-kind finds in jewelry are the best. You may be surprised at the odd places you can find that special piece of added something. Search through grandma's jewelry box, garage sales, flea markets and resale shops. If you have the money, design an original yourself and commission an artist to make it. Or, make it yourself.

THE ONE EXCEPTION to the scaled-down look this season is the scarf. A small investment to enhance any part of last year's wardrobe, the scarf arrives in styles ranging from warm wooly mufflers, often over six feet long, to silky matte jersey. Scarves are worn tied, hanging, bowed, looped and even two or three at a time.

Scarves are set for all occasions day by day, the knitted and crocheted looks are often paired with matching hats in solids, stripes and prints. After five, the more slithery styles hit the circuit in crepes or the chiffon lettuce-edge models, for a purely elegant touch to any evening dress.

Speaking of evening dresses, there are a few worthwhile purchases to beef up your nightwear. A well-made tailored blouse, worn as a jacket, can make your backless halter dresses suitable for year-around wear. If you like a more flamboyant air, choose from the myriad colors of ostich feathers at your local fabric store. Flipped saucily around the neck and over a shoulder, they're elegant yet a bit off-beat.

THE DRESSY BLOUSE is another revival for the budget-conscious woman. Although not exactly cheap, in satin, brocade, chiffon, the silk and jersey, they contribute a new look to an old blazer and slacks or two-piece dress.

Tipping slightly forward over the forehead this season is a brigade of hats. Leading the parade is the beret, or as it was affectionately called in years past, the tam. These felt whimsies are soft, flattering to most hairstyles and inexpensive — a perfect enlivener for last year's coat or jacket.

Other hat styles include the cuffed knitted variety, perhaps with a matching scarf, felt trimmed with a feather here and there, the cowboy model and the cloche.

Knits are running ahead of leather in the glove market. (Probably because they're less expensive.) This year's handwarmers are a bit longer and worn straight, crushed or rolled down.

FANCY FOOTWORK is a pair of wedges priced at $20. Coordinated with a $2 set of "hot socks," they will add comfort to casual outfits.

GUSSY UP your slacks with just a touch of a skinny belt around the middle. Reptile resemblers, the thinner the better, are new in waist-circlers. For a more dressed up look try silver or gold belt accents.

Shoes are the single most expensive item in the wardrobe enhancer department and it doesn't pay to skimp here. This season the coordinated look has taken over, pairing stockings in the same colors as your shoes and purse. Platforms and crepe soles will still be around but, the newer and more comfortable pumps and sandals will add ladylike elegance to last year's closet. A pair of textured hose, which you may have saved from some years back is another hot additive.

The new looks are actually old looks, so check through your attic and basement. With a few alterations or a lengthened hem, you may have some wardrobe enhancers you didn't know about.

The in-one-year, out-the-next fashion idea has disappeared. Throw-away style is gone. Good investments that last will allow women to dress according to their lifestyle, tastes, pocketbook and shape.

Lord and Taylor has invited a roster of experts in the field of fashion accessories to diagnose your maladies, big or small. The store will feature a panel of buyers to show you the newest way to accessorize your fall wardrobe.

If you would like to learn to: wrap or tie a scarf, shade your legs, jewel your costume, tilt your hat, add an eyelash, color your complexion or stride in boots or heels, attend the clinic at the Lord & Taylor Woodfield Store tomorrow or Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mary Sherry

Her recipe file a matter of grave importance

My mother has made arrangements that as soon as she dies, one of her closest friends will hurriedly go in and throw out all of Mother's old girdles?

I am working on a comparable plan. I am hoping that only my best friend will go through my recipe file.

Last Tuesday, while looking for a favorite recipe, I took an objective look at my recipe file. I determined that if I used it as my sole reference, I could serve a different entree for dinner every night through May 23, 1997. Dessert recipes in there would carry us through Sept. 9, 2107. Vegetable and salad recipes were small in number, but there were more for canapes than I could count.

NOW ONE WOULD think that this would be something like my desk that I save for a rainy day to clean out. But it hasn't rained that hard since the Flood, and I'm not planning that it will.

Since I refuse to weed out the recipes, one might think I'm a terrific cook, providing interesting and varied meals. That couldn't be further from the truth. I'm so in the habit of cooking the same old things that even my kids have stopped asking what is for dinner.

So why all the recipes? My collection can be divided into two parts, explaining the large number. The first group represents my cooking stage (which came between mosaic ash trays and yoga). In those days I clipped interesting looking recipes from newspapers and magazines, taking each one as a future challenge to my creativity in the kitchen.

The seeds of the second group were sown in the first. While in my cooking stage, I began asking friends and acquaintances for their recipes when they served something I especially liked.

NOW I'M STILL asking for recipes — as a way of paying a compliment, I guess. Just the other day I asked a friend for her recipe for some unusually good cream puffs. I did it even though I knew I hadn't used the oven for two years. (I still haven't gotten over cleaning it.)

But I think I have found a cure — or at least a curb to my collecting. At a recent family gathering, I learned that my father's Aunt Katherine had traveled several hundred miles carefully carrying some special cookies she had made for the affair. A lot of comments flew between other relatives about the special handling these cookies had required. My curiosity got to me, and I managed to snatch one of these famous goodies before they were served.

It was out of this world. It was so incredibly good that it was undoubtedly the best dessert food I had ever had — anywhere.

I KNEW IMMEDIATELY that that was one recipe I HAD to have, and I knew I would make it.

So I approached Aunt Katherine, praised her cookies and asked for the recipe.

She was flattered but firm. "THAT, my dear, is a recipe that will go with me to my grave!"

From time to time I look at my overflowing recipe file and try to convince myself that Aunt Katherine was doing me a service.

But I'll never believe it.

OUT FRONT AT Henric's O'Hare were behind-the-scenes Mary Lou Alfini, Ruthmary Crawford, Barbara Lynch and Marjorie Monachesse. Mrs. Crawford is president of the Women's Auxiliary of Northwest Community Hospital and Mrs. Lynch was chairman of the annual luncheon fashion show benefit.

Mrs. Alfini was chairman of patrons and Mrs. Monachesse, fashions. The show, "Vibrations," featured fashions from Lord and Taylor with Jo Hopkins Deutsch as commentator.

Toss out your wardrobe? It's tempting

by MARIANNE SCOTT
It was called "Investment dressing" — perk up touches that can be added, mixed or matched to one's current wardrobe.

But the ensembles from Lord and Taylor's at the annual fall luncheon and fashion show of the Women's Auxiliary of Northwest Community Hospital made you want to stuff every thread you owned into the Good Will box and start from scratch. Well, almost. Those longer skirts will take a little getting used to. Ensembles ran the gamut from the way-below-the-knee skirts to evening pajamas. It was an evening pajama that topped the price tags. By Halston, the sequined outfit could be yours for $580. One guest suggested it might be a good idea to buy it and rent it out!

But other tags weren't nearly that high. Receiving as much applause as the glittery pajama was a beautiful mauve pink jersey dress for only $40. TENT DRESSES and coats, capes, wider leg pants and long, long sweaters were among the newest additions to the runway. Some of the sweaters dropped all the way down to mid calf. An Inca patterned sweater at $72 was one of the favorites. Sweaters done in lurex and other shimmers are newest for evening.

It goes without mentioning that there were a great number of pant outfits in the show and lots of dark green (maltard), rust (paprika), camel (wheat, honey, toffee) and wine (burgundy, raspberry). There was also a grouping of navy blues and another of nudes — and it's nice to see the greys (elephant, dove) again.

Ten professionals modeled the ensembles, making those in the audience wish they'd never eaten the dessert. The 65 outfits were presented in duos or trios and the runway was never empty during the fast-moving show.

Always one of the largest and most popular of the fall shows, the hospital benefit attracted more than 700 women, filling the ballroom at Henric's O'Hare Inn to capacity.

Elk Grove nurses invited to coffee

All registered nurses in the Elk Grove area are invited to coffee with the Elk Grove Nurses Club either Wednesday afternoon or Thursday evening this week. Purpose of the get together is to acquaint them with the club and its activities.

Nora Bogehegn, 503 Crest, will host the afternoon gathering Wednesday, 1 to 3, and may be called at 439-4549 for reservations.

The evening party, 8:30 to 10 on Thursday, will be hosted by Cathy Swick, 629 Birchwood. Her number for reservations is 439-2288.

Luncheon for women who attended U of I

The Chicago Illiana Club will hold its fall membership lunch at 12:15 p.m. Saturday in the penthouse of the New Westbury Hotel, 160 E. Huron, Chicago.

Mrs. Orpha Wardle of Winthrop Harbor will present a book review entitled, "Silhouette in Diamonds," the story of Mrs. Potter Palmer, a Chicago socialite.

The club is open to all women who attended the University of Illinois for at least one year or who have been or are members of the University of Illinois faculty. Its purpose is to foster friendship, promote the interests of the University of Illinois and to raise money for scholarships.

Mrs. Pearl Sommerfield of Wheaton is president. Shirley Gates can be called for reservations at 996-2620.

A stop at McDonald's follows wedding

A stop at McDonald's on the way to their reception completed the wedding day for Cathy A. Scherdin of Arlington Heights and Chuck M. Ford of Mount Prospect.

Although it seemed natural for them to stop for a bite at the Palatine eatery, as they had so often done on dates, they were the first bride and groom to ever arrive in wedding finery. The manager was so surprised he presented them with a free meal.

Cathy and Chuck were married Aug. 24 at 2:30 p.m. in St. Thomas of Villanova Catholic Church, Palatine. After their fill-up on hamburger and shake, they went on to a garden reception at the home of Cathy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Scherdin Jr. of 1507 N. Wilke Rd.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cibula of Chicago.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring ceremony the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of 24 years ago. It was styled of ivory satin with a wide yoke of Chantilly lace and ended in a long train. With the dress Cathy wore a bouffant veil attached to a lace headpiece and carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby's breath.

Her maid of honor was Pat Janowicz of Schiller Park who wore a blue dotted swiss gown and matching picture hat and carried white carnations and stephanotis.

The two bridesmaids, Terry Miller and Julie Plunkett, both of Arlington Heights, were groomed identically to the maid of honor.

THE BRIDE'S 3-year-old sister, Julie, was flower girl and her brother, Steve, who is 2, was ring bearer. Julie wore blue dotted swiss and dropped rose petals from a basket.

Tim Conway of West Orange, N.J., served as Chuck's best man, with David Cibula, his brother, and Dick Feicht, Des Plaines, as ushers.

The newlyweds both work in the suburbs and are making their home in an apartment in Mount Prospect. Cathy is employed at Frigidaire in Elk Grove Village and Chuck at Reynolds Co., Schaumburg.

She is a '73 graduate of Hersey High School; he was in the class of '70 at Prosser High, Chicago.

They spent a week's honeymoon in Glidden, Wis.

Experiment or patch test to discover skin irritant

Dear Dorothy: I've been using the same detergent for years and hear it can cause skin irritation. How does one know what laundry detergents will have this effect? — Mrs. Forrest Humphrey

No way — other than by experimentation or a patch test. You seem to be one of the many not bothered so there's no need for concern. This happens more often with things like deodorants. A person will start using a new one and suddenly discover redness and discomfort.

Even if the ingredients were listed on all of the detergents and deodorants, one would have to know what specific ingredients he or she was allergic to. There is also such a thing as low tolerance. His ribs has a low tolerance to foods containing flour. He's learned by experience just how far he can go.

Dear Dorothy: You're not the only one to rescue husbands from boneheads. Mine came home with red paint on the sleeve of one of his best suits. I reached for trichloroethylene and sure enough the label said it could be used for paint. Two applications and off came the paint. — Betty Forgatch most out of sight, I was most dismayed to find stuck in a cabinet a sack of sugar as hard as rock. Anything I can do to soften it? — Marilyn Britton

Two things you might try — put it in the sun or in the freezer.

Dear Dorothy: Unexpected company for dinner posed an hors d'oeuvre problem. Cream cheese softens quickly so I got out a package, mashed it, added a little sour cream, lemon juice, paprika and dill weed. Turned out great. — Joy Krohn

Circus coming to town Oct. 6

"Circus I," starring WGN-TV star Ned Locke and featuring Cookie the Clown, is coming to the suburbs Sunday, Oct. 6, at Prospect High School, Mount Prospect.

There will be two performances of the circus acts complete with band and prizes, one at 1 p.m. and another at 3. Tickets are $2 each.

The event is sponsored by Cypress and Fairway Chapters of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training). Additional information and tickets can be obtained by calling 398-3580 or 679-0882.

Proceeds will provide schooling for underprivileged children around the world.

VFW card party

Everyone is welcome to the annual penny social and card party to be given by the Des Plaines VFW Ladies Auxiliary to Post 2992. The event takes place Friday at 8 p.m. in the VFW Home, 2067 Miner St., Des Plaines.

All proceeds will be used for disabled veterans and families and for community projects.

FATHER PAUL ASCIOFFA, one of the 200 future leaders recently named by Time magazine, called on an audience at Harper College last week to get leaders into positions of authority who "care about the quality of life." Father Ascioffa spoke at the Harper College Leadership Training Center.

Leaders hear 'call for action'

by WANDALYN RICE

A group of more than 200 Northwest suburban leaders, from village managers to school board members, heard a call for "radical community action" last week at Harper College.

The Rev. Paul Sciolia, a member of the Scalabrini Fathers and one of the 200 future leaders recently named by Time Magazine, told the Harper crowd that democratic leadership "builds a group that will not fall apart because something has happened to the leaders."

Father Ascioffa was speaking at the opening of the Harper Community Leadership Training Center, a program which will provide seminars for elected and appointed officials and citizens.

FATHER ASCIOFFA, editor of Fra Noi, an Italian-American newspaper, and staff member of the National Center for Urban Ethnic Affairs in Washington, D.C., said the Harper center reflects a movement throughout the country in which "citizens are becoming more involved in participating" in government.

"The credibility of the American experiment is coming under increasing scrutiny," Father Ascioffa said. "We are undergoing a global lesson in political science."

He said ventures like the leadership center at Harper will help. "Leadership has to come out of the communities and the community colleges, not out of mega-universities," he said. "We're recreating the old urban neighborhoods in the suburbs."

He cautioned, however, that "the classic elements of fascism exist in this country," adding that "when George Wallace, a cultural paranoid, becomes as popular as he is in this country, things are very bad."

THE PROBLEM, Father Ascioffa said, is that "we have to get people into leadership positions who are concerned about the quality of life." He said, "Nobody is satisfied with the welfare system — the people who get it and the people who pay for it — but where is the coalition to call the government to task about that?"

He said leaders have to be as interested in "the methods of social decisions and in the decisions themselves," adding, "People who participate in a decision are more likely to support it."

However, he also cautioned against leaders who only follow their constituency. "I can't be a consensus priest because my job is to tell people what's wrong sometimes. In the same way, you can just have a consensus politician."

Also, Father Ascioffa said, "There's nothing worse than a leader with a Wyatt Earp complex in which everything always has to be right and perfect. If a leader would only admit his mistakes, we would be all right — we're a very compassionate people."

CITIZENS, HE SAID, "have to be rewarded for participation" because "a lot of times the more people express their opinions, the less happens."

Weather becomes common foe for candidates

Bensinger, Elrod trade light jabs

GLOOMY WEATHER will never deter politicians from their appointed rounds. Candidate Peter Bensinger, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy and Sheriff Richard Elrod all appeared before the League of Women Voters over the weekend to tout their beliefs. Rain may fall but in an election year, it doesn't matter.

ON THE STUMP before a group of non-voters is Peter Bensinger, who returned to the Northwest suburbs Friday to talk to students at Forest View High School. Bensinger is running for county sheriff.

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Cook County's two candidates for sheriff — Democrat incumbent Richard Elrod and Republican Peter Bensinger — found a common foe last weekend — the weather.

Elrod and Bensinger traded mild jabs at a League of Women Voters candidate's day in Winnetka Saturday and watched rain clouds threaten to end the outdoor debate.

Bensinger, a former director of the Chicago Crime Commission and the Illinois Department of Corrections, repeated criticisms of the sheriff's department that were speech topics Thursday and Friday during appearances throughout the Northwest suburbs. "The present Cook County sheriff's administration has wasted both manpower and money and has allowed court, jail and police services to be seriously compromised by slipshod process serving, questionable correctional practices and an inadequate commitment to police patrols for the unincorporated areas of Cook County," Bensinger said.

ELROD, ELECTED sheriff in 1970, said "I feel I've done a lot in four years. The sheriff has always been a place for people to look down on, but we've established a record for performance."

"Talk about the training programs we've given our deputies. Training is what counts. You don't give a man a badge and say you're a police officer," Elrod said.

Bensinger demanded a sheriff's budget that "reflects the needs of criminal justice in Cook County." Using a chart that showed sheriff's manpower allocations, Bensinger said that only 130 of 3,000 employees are police patrolmen, that the budget includes 217 Holiday Court bailiffs and 1973 elevator operators, window washers and janitors. "This is at a time when crime in Cook County has increased 38 per cent."

"This is the slice of the pie in the youth services division — 14," Bensinger said. "I would take politics out of the sheriff's office and replace patronage with professionalism."

BENSINGER CALLED for a "greater commitment to youth, an increase from six to 30 youth officers and a 'serious sustained drug education program that involves parents and teachers.'"

The manpower chart, which Bensinger used two weeks ago during a television debate, is "showboating and doesn't reflect necessarily the financial allocations" of the sheriff's staff, Elrod said.

"Peter doesn't say that we've put 25 men into our MEG (Metropolitan Enforcement Group) drug unit. Peter doesn't say we've put 46 men in the state's attorney's office."

"We have a manpower shortage. The custodial function is the sheriff's by statute. They're not all janitors and window washers. About 35 are security officers."

ELROD SAID THAT Cook County "never had a court services department, never had a youth services department, never had the type of training I started in the sheriff's department. We've had a massive drug education program."

"We prefer not to send someone to Audy Home. We prefer to work right with them," the sheriff said. More than 1,800 families have received "professional help" from the youth services department. "I've done the job. I've performed. I want to continue to do the job," Elrod said.

Despite the rain which began and ended the debate, more than 300 persons and dozens of candidates for county and state offices attended the election event.

Porter won't alter anti-strike stance

by BOB LAHEY

State Rep. John Edward Porter, R-Evanston, has informed the Illinois Education Assn. that he has no intention of changing his opposition to granting teachers the right to strike.

Porter has twice voted against legalizing strikes by teachers, and also voted twice for amendments which would have abolished tenure in bills to authorize strikes.

"Teachers can't call themselves professionals and have professional tenure and at the same time use the picket line to enforce their demands," he said.

Porter added, "If the teachers' union wants to make my reelection a referendum on whether the people of the 1st District (which includes the northern half of Wheeling Township) favor teacher strikes, that is their right. Mine is to stand on my votes and take my case to my constituents."

Porter said the voters of the 1st District — "probably the preeminent public education center in the United States" — respect their teachers as professionals and are concerned with their needs, but would lose that respect in the event of a strike.

More nuclear safeguards: Adlai

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, in an article written for the October issue of Foreign Affairs magazine, has warned that present safeguards against the hostile use of nuclear materials intended for peaceful purposes are inadequate.

Stevenson said that more than 500 nuclear reactors have been built in 45 nations in the last 20 years. As nations seek alternative energy sources that number is expected to quadruple by 1980, he said.

"Atoms intended for peace can also be used for war," Stevenson said.

He called for a one-year moratorium on U.S. exports of nuclear technology and materials to nations which reject international safeguards while more adequate safeguards may be developed.

Candidates' night Oct. 14

Legislative candidates from the four districts encompassing the Northwest suburbs will appear at a candidates' night at the Kingswood United Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove, at 8 p.m. Oct. 14.

The event will be sponsored by the Northwest Suburban chapter of the National Organization of Women.

Expected to attend are incumbent state representatives and senators from the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th districts, and their opponents. Those districts include all or parts of Maine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Palatine townships.

Abused children topic

A film and panel discussion concerning abused and neglected children will be the subject of a meeting to be sponsored by State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, Oct. 9.

Discussing programs which can benefit these children will be Allen Yasgur, newly appointed executive director of Shelter Inc.; Mary Lee Leahy, director of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services; and Lt. Paul Buckholz of the Arlington Heights Police Dept., one of the founders of Shelter Inc., in the Northwest suburbs.

The program will be at 8 p.m. in the Rolling Meadows High School theater, 2801 Central Rd., Rolling Meadows.

A film, "Children in Trouble," will be shown and will be available on a loan basis from Mrs. Macdonald later.

A child shelter is expected to open in December to serve children from Elk Grove, Wheeling, Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Elk Grove, Forest View march to showdown

Opportunistic Grens dump Fremd, 21-9

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

There was no time left on the clock when Fremd tackle Jerry Parker scooped up an Elk Grove fumble and started the long, 70-yard run for the end zone.

Although he didn't make it, and if he had the touchdown would have had no effect on the final outcome, the fact that Parker's run generated the most excitement of the night for Fremd rooters is indicative of the Vikings' frustrations.

A mistake by Elk Grove, though, allowed Fremd to jump into the early lead in the first quarter. Dan Streich, waiting to punt, watched helplessly as the snup cleared his head by two feet. He recovered it in the end zone for a safety.

Following the free kick Fremd put their offense, named Rich Sharpe, into gear. Sharpe carried four times in the nine play drive and culminated it by sweeping around the left side for 17 yards and the touchdown.

"Sharpe is one fine running back," said Gren head coach Don Schnake. "He's the best in the league right now. A super back."

Sharpe took his lumps every time he carried the ball and Elk Grove needed gang tackles to bring him down every time. Whether blasting straight ahead or outrunning the defense outside, Sharpe was in a class by himself. Of the 144 yards the Vikes picked up on the ground, Sharpe was personally responsible for 104 of them, collected in 25 trips into the line.

"Sharpe did everything for us tonight," Samojedny said. "Our whole offense was on his shoulders."

Elk Grove had some backs of their own who were not as brilliant individually as Sharpe, but collectively were more effective.

Perhaps chagrined at being in a 9-zip hole early in the second quarter, Elk Grove let Streich, John Willard and David King loose on the Fremd rushing defense and found it wanting. With the offensive line tearing open the holes Willard carried twice for 25 yards, King once for 33 yards and Streich finally blasted over from the one for the touchdown.

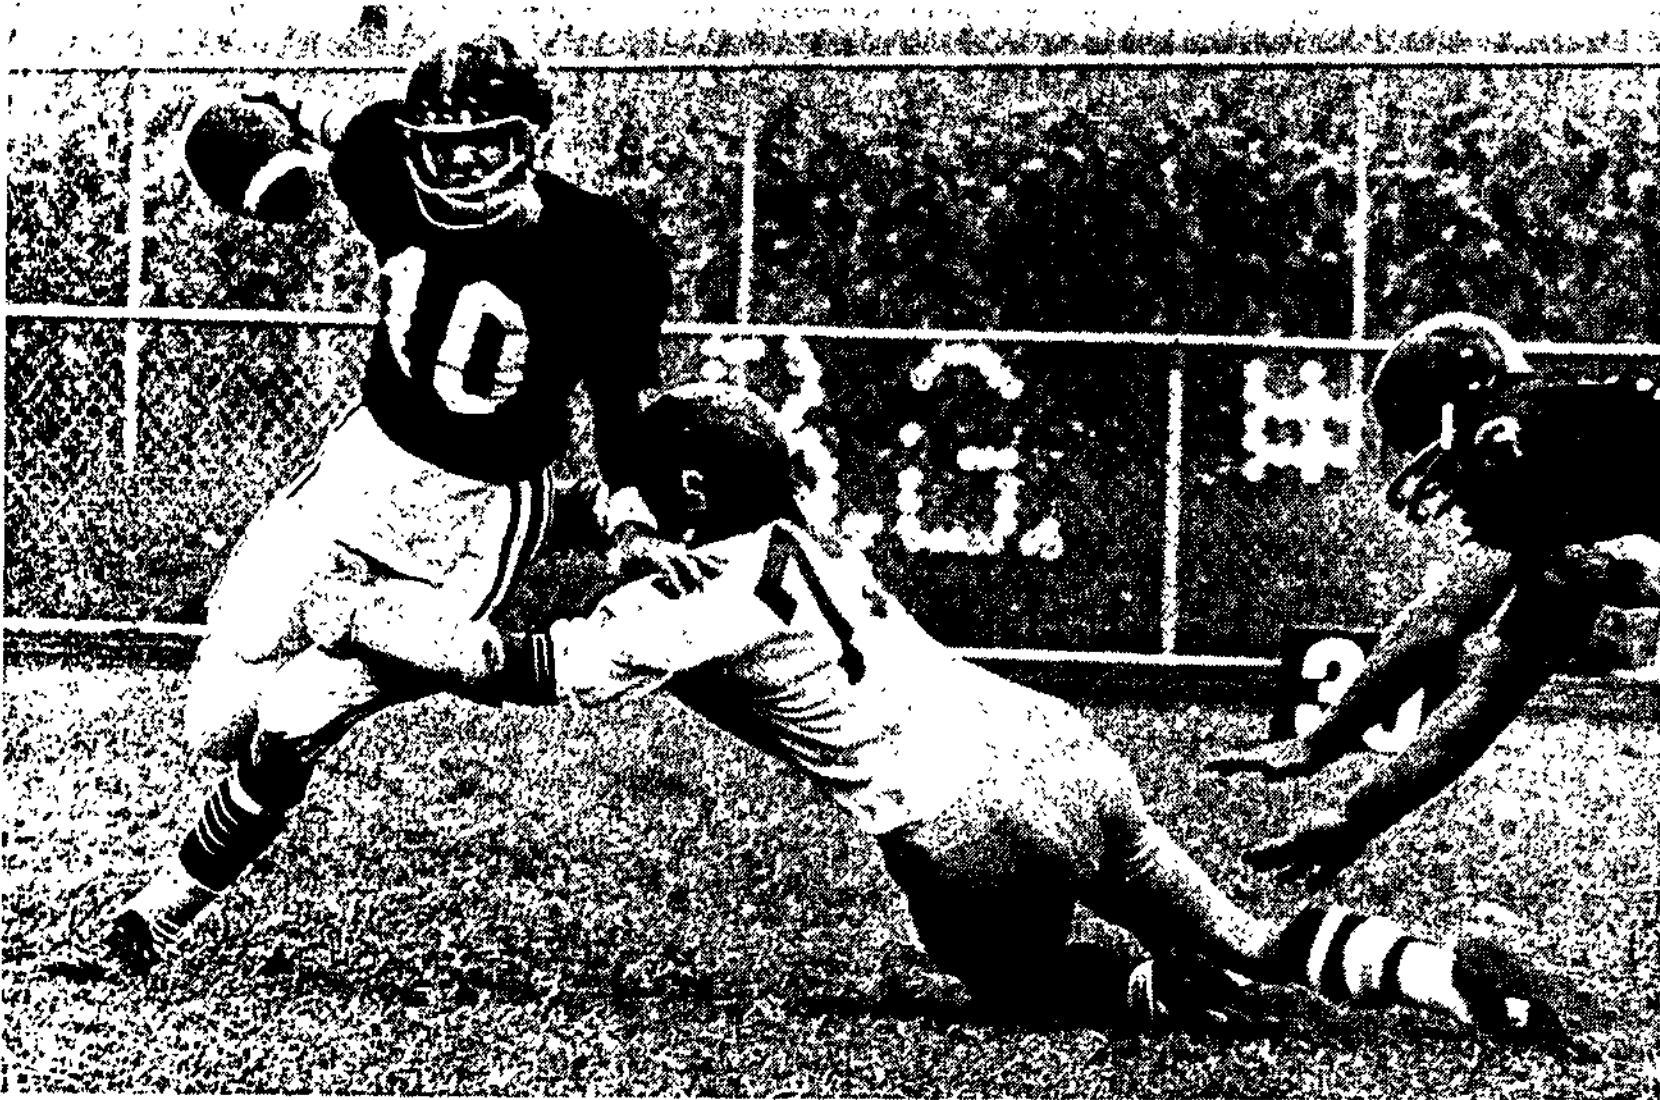

Elk Grove got the ball back moments later and stuck to the ground for nine consecutive plays. Then Schnake pulled a bit of trivia out of his playbook called the forward pass and Tom Allen found Willard alone for a 60-yard touchdown.

"Our man fell asleep in the second a r y . . ." Samojedny said, "and got whipped."

"Willard just ended up out in the open," Schnake said. "I don't know, maybe they weren't expecting a pass."

There were only three passes thrown by both teams all night, two of them complete. With the field wet from an early rain and the footing questionable, more of an air game might have been

SAXON PRESSURE. Giving Buffalo Grove quarter-back Dave Smithern all he wants is linebacker Scott Scholtz of Schaumburg during action Saturday. Although the Saxons held down Smithern's passing, they couldn't contain Ben Orcutt, who ran for two touchdowns. The Bison won, 14-0.

Tough Bison defense, Orcutt's heroics end Schaumburg's perfect string, 14-0

by KEITH REINHARD

The big "D" was for defense and the big "O" was for Orcutt.

Buffalo Grove meshed them together in just the right quantities and came up with a significant 14-0 triumph over visiting Schaumburg in the Mid-Suburban League Saturday.

In extending their own winning streak for the season to three games, the Bison halted a Saxon string at two and put up the first points registered against Schaumburg's stingy defense yet this season.

That was where the "O" came in... a splendid sophomore named Ben Orcutt who came up with the Grove's three biggest offensive plays of the day. The solid 5-foot-11, 170-pounder crossed paydirt twice, once in each of the first two quarters, and also launched a league record punt that was as much a turning point as any play in the game.

"We know he could help us up on the varsity even before the season started," Buffalo Grove mentor Grant Blaney noted of his versatile youngster. "He's just one of those rare athletes who can do just about everything in a seemingly effortless way."

It didn't take Orcutt long to solve Schaumburg's miserly ways. Six plays into the contest he broke open the middle for a 32-yard score that put the hosts on top to stay.

"In the following period, he uncorked an astounding 82-yard boot with the wind on a third-down quick kick play. It set up an insurance Bison TD. Orcutt went over from the 10 to round out the day's scoring.

"With all respect to Ben and our offense, I'd really have to credit our defense for this win," Blaney added. "This team had scored pretty freely in their first two games and it took one fine effort from our defensive unit to turn the tables on them."

Ben Orcutt

The Grove coach didn't single out any one player but cited defensive coaches Jon Hittman and Denny Riccio for their work.

Blaney also acknowledged the fact that Schaumburg lost its own quarterback early in the contest. "The kid they brought in (Ron Geels) did a nice job for them, but I know it had to put their team off stride with (Russ) Zonka out practically the whole game."

"He's our offense," shrugged Saxon coach Bob Ferguson of his 180-pound thrower, who pulled up lame on the second play of the game. "I'm not taking anything away from Buffalo Grove...they were a lot more ready to play than we were today...and Geels did the very best we could ask of him...but I think Zonka might have been the equalizer."

Penalties, a sluggish kicking game and miscues also took their toll of the visitors. After the Bison had scored on their opening series and Dave Smithern had kicked the extra point, Schaumburg went on a march that extended 64 yards. Geels picked up 23 on one sweep and Tom Martino stepping off 17 more up the middle.

Since they started at their own 33, the drive should have advanced to the Bison three but a couple of 15-yard penalties sandwiched in left Roger Biver attempting a 45-yard field goal. The Bison regained possession at the 20 when it fell short. This ended a good Saxon drive.

The 82-yard punt, erasing a 79-yard MSL record effort by Bill Breda of Schaumburg against Elk Grove in 1971, came in the windy second quarter. And even after being brought back out to the 20, it left Schaumburg in a hole.

When their offense stalled, the Saxons could only muster up an 11-yard punt to set up the Bison at the 28. Barry Schuster carried twice for 17 yards to set up Orcutt's score.

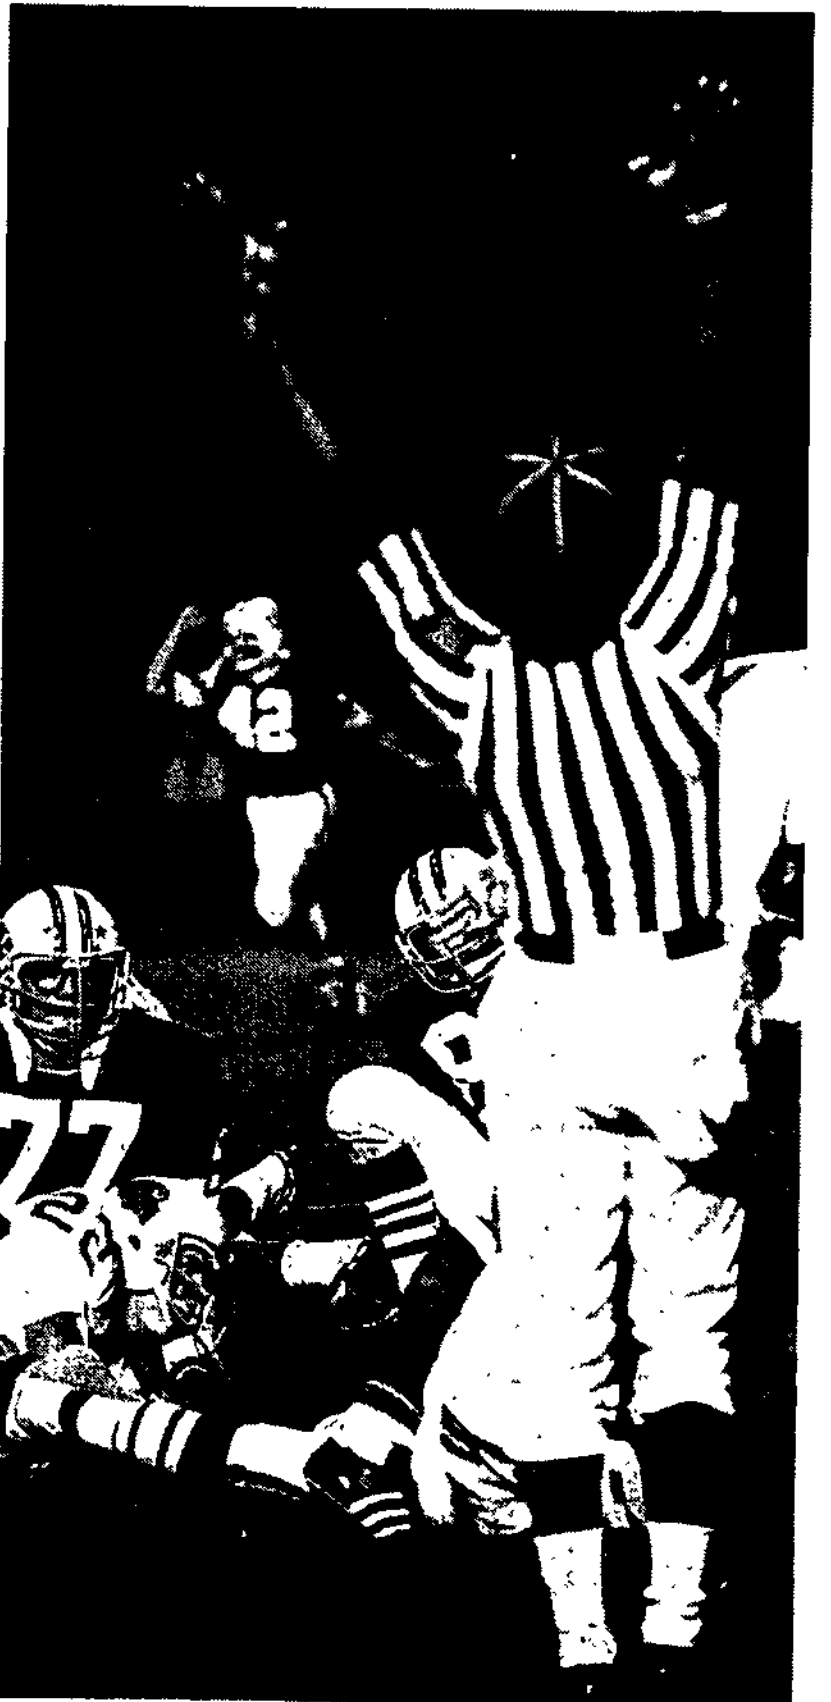

Again Smithern's EP kick was true and Blaney's bunch had their 14-0 lead with 2:32 to go before halftime.

A drizzle at intermission dampened the offenses on both sides in the second half and prompted three interceptions and four fumbles.

Schaumburg sustained one drive from its own 25 to the enemy 28, Geels connecting with Scott Mielke on one long pass and then seeing another dropped in the end zone on fourth down to quell the threat.

Falcons hit Pirates in 42-26 show

by DON FRISKE

Fred Lussow and Arv Herstedt are two puzzled football coaches.

Lussow doesn't need to worry about his bewilderment, as long as his Forest View Falcons keep on winning.

Herstedt, on the other hand, has an entirely opposite type of confusion. His Palatine Pirates haven't won a game yet and he can't seem to find the answer for this.

Lussow's Falcons beat the Pirates, 42-26, at Palatine on Friday night. It was the third straight win for the Falcons, and the third straight loss for the Pirates.

"I just can't put it in my mind," said Lussow, referring to his team's winning ways. "They're (the Falcons) just a happy-go-lucky, loose group of individuals, working as a unit."

Herstedt said somewhat the same thing, but the tone of his voice made the difference.

"We have to analyze this situation and see if we can come up with an answer," the Palatine coach said.

Lussow doesn't need any answers. He's happy with the way things are going for his team now, and answers to his puzzle-ment might not be to the Falcons' advantage.

"Last year we pressed too much which caused mistakes," commented Lussow. "We have more confidence in our units this year."

Huskies get 'back on track', 27-0

by ART MUGALIAN

In the post-game confusion and excitement following Hersey's 27-0 win over Prospect Friday night, the words of winning coach Joe Gliwa came across loud and clear.

"We're back on the track now," said Gliwa. "Our goal was one sound unit working as a team and we got it. We had a total effort both ways."

The Huskies treated their coach to a rousing victory on Prospect's home field, aided and abetted by the superb quarterbacking of junior Scott Topczewski, who tossed the ball 14 times for nine completions and 163 yards. "Top" hit Dave Carey for a touchdown aerial and he added a pair of scores himself on short TD gallops.

"Topczewski showed a lot of poise out there again tonight," Gliwa said. "He's demonstrating steady improvement."

Also contributing to the Hersey attack were running backs Jeff Forster and Steve Block. Forster ripped the Knight defense for 90 yards on the ground, including one TD, and Block massed 42 yards total offense.

It was Carey, though, the Huskies called on when in need. The senior pass catcher nabbed five receptions for 108 yards.

"Bill Hare is the primary target and Carey is the secondary target," explained Gliwa. "We knew Dave would be open tonight."

But it wasn't exactly an easy win for Hersey, now 2-0 in the Mid-Suburban League and 2-1 overall. They led just 7-0 at halftime.

"I thought we outplayed them in the first half," said a dejected Dave Keefe, after his Knights dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten. "We had an excellent chance to win the game at halftime, but when they came back for the second half, it was bang-bang — just like that — and it was over."

Hersey's lead in the first half was the result of a time-consuming, 78-yard drive for a score the first time the Huskies had the ball. Topczewski completed three passes along the way, including a big galner to Forster for 34 yards off a play-action fake. A crucial fourth-down quarterback draw netted three yards and a new set of downs at the Prospect 16, and five plays later, Topczewski snuck over from the one-inch line.

Prospect, led by senior signalcaller Mike Quade, had engineered an opening drive that ate up eight minutes of the clock and came within a whisker of putting the Knights on the scoreboard. Hard running by Jack Devero and Don Meyer fed the drive.

Aided by a 15-yard roughing the punter penalty, Quade staked out 62 yards of territory in 16 plays, finally moving down to the three-yard line of Hersey. But on fourth down, Quade tried to hit Jim Wright over the middle in the end zone and Huskie cornerback Pete Fullerton picked it off. Fullerton returned the ball to the 22 of Hersey, where Topczewski began the only scoring drive of the first half.

"We felt we should have been on the board a few more times in the first half," said Gliwa, who watched an interception and a couple costly official's calls ruin any other scoring opportunities his team may have had.

"But in the second half we did what we wanted to do," the coach continued.

The Huskies took the second-half kick-off and marched to paydirt in eight quick plays, clicking off 61 yards in the process. Topczewski hit Carey for a 20-yard gain over the middle on a key third-down play, putting the ball at the Prospect 38.

Forster tore off a couple big galners on the ground and "Top" found Carey again for a diving catch at the 10. From there it was Forster off tackle for eight, follow-

Wheeling sputters, Conant drives to league triumph

by KEITH REINHARD
Call them the long blue line. They must have looked endless to Wheeling Friday night. Big holes, little holes, left side, right side, pass protection . . . the line did it all, and then some, in leading Conant to an impressive 18-0 triumph over the visiting Wildcats.

It was the second victory in a row for Ralph Losee's revamped Cougars. While some credit was due quarterback Bob Borczak and the guys he kept sending up the middle, the heroes in this Mid-Suburban League crossover battle had to be the ones up front.

Oh yes, and most of them played defense, too. While Conant was amassing nearly 350 yards of total offense, the defense was limiting the opposition to a scant 15. The Cougars also collected 19 first downs while preventing the 'Cats from getting even one until the final stanza.

"They definitely deserve some credit for the job they did up there," a smiling Losee offered afterwards. "We tried a couple of times to be overly benevolent but that wasn't the line's fault. They did everything that was asked of them . . . and then some."

Mark Losee. They started off by moving things for Jim Stump. Following a Wheeling fumble two plays into the game, Jim Stump began benefiting from his blockers.

In five tries, Stump advanced 30 yards to within 10 of paydirt. Borczak scampered around the left side and was pushing out of bounds a time one. Stump took it in from there, four minutes and 36 seconds into the game.

Stump was the Cougar bread and butter man through the first quarter. When he pulled up injured, admittedly, the line did not have to open up holes quite as big for his replacement — 5-foot-1, 125-pound dynamo named Steve Stompanato. The little guy proceeded to pile up over 100 yards and prime both of Conant's later TDs.

Late in the second quarter after the hosts had taken over at their own 35, Stompanato carried once for six and then for nine yards. Borczak then zeroed in on Mark Losee for 10 more through the air and ran for 22 on what was only to be a quarterback sneak for the first down.

Stompanato picked up 13 more down to the five and four more down to the one before Borczak went over with 17 seconds to go before halftime.

To open the third quarter, Conant went on a slow 41-yard march and fumbled, Dennis Bucalo recovering for the visitors at the Wildcat 25. Wheeling was pushed back and Mike Brzuskiewicz kicked out of the end zone to about midfield.

Stompanato and runningmate Jim Allen took it quickly back down to the 30 where a Borczak pass was intercepted by Steve Smalley, who subsequently bobbled away possession. Koppari recovering for the hosts at the 12.

On the very next play, the Cougars fumbled the ball right back to Wheeling's Gregg Berkley. The 'Cats could go nowhere again and were forced to kick.

This time a penalty on the punting play went in favor of Losee's group. They took charge at the 30. A few plays later, when Borczak passed to Kevin Koppari he raced across the goal line.

That wrapped up scoring. Wheeling finally came up with a first down later in the period and Oscar Quesada broke loose for 18 yards.

It marked Wheeling's only earned penetration of Conant territory and was further helped by a 15-yard assessment down to the 15. The long blue line pulled together, however, to nip the threat and then opened a few more holes as the game finished up with the hosts in command.

'Loose' Falcons triumph

dropped back to pass, looking for one of the two receivers that were going out on the right side.

Mike Oldenburg, Falcon defensive end, came in fast on McCoslin, hitting him on his blind side.

The ball popped from McCoslin's hands. Falcon Jim Forsander picked up the fumble and carried it in for the touchdown, a 50-yard return.

"McCoslin was supposed to have drop-back protection on that play from the backs, but he didn't get it," explained Herstedt. "That play hurt us more than anything else."

The Falcons had opened the scoring on the first play of their second set of downs. Jim Petran hit Neil Schmidt with a screen pass over the line which Schmidt turned into a 55-yard scoring play.

The Pirates came back less than two minutes later on a 29-yard run by Kevin McWard. McCoslin carried in the two-point conversion, giving the Pirates their only lead of the evening, 8-7.

With 13 seconds left to go in the opening quarter, Petran hit Schmidt again. This time the pass covered 27 yards and the Falcons had the lead for good.

Dave Matz scored for the Falcons in the second quarter, a minute before Forsander's fumble recovery.

The Pirates came out in the second half and scored on a three-yard pass from McCoslin to Jim Popp. The score came just two minutes into the half, putting them two touchdowns behind again.

Another mistake, however, quickly buried them again.

This time it was an interception that all but put the game away for the Falcons. Ed Ernest picked off the errant Pirate pass, and returned it 62 yards to the Pirate eight.

Petran eventually took the ball in on a sneak from the one. Greg Jacobs kicked one of his six extra-point conversions and the Falcons led, 35-14, with 5:35 left in the third quarter.

Defense has been the Pirates' biggest problem so far this year.

"These guys have played this split-four defense for 20 games now," explained Herstedt, "and they still sometimes play like they don't understand it."

To make matters worse for the Pirate defense, the Falcon offense they faced has been awesome.

The Falcons have scored 110 points in their first three games, their biggest output so far coming against the Pirates.

Both teams did well offensively, the Falcons gaining 418 total yards, the Pirates, 368.

Petran has yet to be dumped, a credit to both him and his offensive line.

"He's had real good protection, but he also gets rid of the ball quickly," said Lussow.

Herstedt feels strongly that his team will do some winning of their own, even though injuries continue to hurt them. They play Arlington Friday night.

The Falcons will be playing Elk Grove, both teams with a perfect 3-0 record.

"We'll have no trouble getting up for that one," said Lussow of the natural rivalry between the two schools.

Prospect falls from unbeaten list ed by Topczewski's touchdown plunge on the QB draw.

"The second half was all theirs," said Keefe after the game. "They scored and we fumbled right away, and they came back to score again."

After Hersey's Paul Cortes fell on a Don Meyer fumble, the Huskies stormed right back into the end zone. On the second play from scrimmage from the Prospect 44, Topczewski looked once again for Carey. The split end gathered in the perfect strike over the middle, broke a couple tackles and rambled home.

Hersey's last score came just three minutes later after a Prospect punt. An 18-yard pass to Carey and a roughing-the-passer infraction helped advance the ball to the Knights' 45. From there, Forster got the call and he barreled for the TD, shedding numerous tackles along the way.

"They just outplayed us," said Keefe, "but it certainly would have been a lift for us to get that first score. I would have liked to have seen what would have happened if we had taken a lead."

But six turnovers — four fumbles and two interceptions — crippled the Knight offense.

Gliwa was overjoyed with his team's performance, particularly after the intermission when they scored 20 points in just five minutes.

"Coming back in the second half like we did showed that we weren't out-conditioned," Gliwa noted.

expected. Such was not the case, however, as both teams showed they were capable of moving the ball on the ground.

Fremd's second painful mistake was a fumble deep in their own territory that Chuck Piermarini recovered on the one yard line. Three plays later Stretch had his second touchdown and the scoring for the night was complete.

"When you mention top defensive players," said Green defensive coach Brendon Flynn, "number one is Piermarini. He's quick, he's intelligent and he hits. Several others, like Malinowski, Gennuso, Montemayor and Gulliksen were also outstanding tonight."

Fremd's two final offensive series, and final attempts to get back into the game, were both aborted by fumbles. And ironically the man who did so much for the Fremd offense, Sharpe, committed both turnovers.

The most devastating fumble came at the end of a 17 play drive that made it to the Green six yard line. Sharpe carried 14 times for 53 yards and although the Elk Grove defense knew who was coming they could do little to stop him except get enough men on him to weigh him down.

Sacred Heart falls to Maine, 20-0

Four girls went over the 300-mark for Maine West in an archery meet with Sacred Heart of Mary last week.

With Kathy Dueball leading the way with 390 out of a possible 432 points, Maine defeated visiting Sacred Heart, 20-0, Thursday.

Dueball had one perfect end to pace her team. Barb Briender totaled 360 points. Maripat Klein added 356 and Sandy Sadler had 346.

Sacred Heart was led by Maureen Harty with 195.

Breitbeil hits Blocki for clincher in 20-13 victory

Dramatic Meadows touchdown comes after Arlington surge

by JIM COOK

Questions about Mid-Suburban tie-breaking procedures infiltrated a stunned crowd at Rolling Meadows Friday as the final 62 seconds ticked preciously off the clock.

Arlington had just jolted the Mustangs with two scores within 54 seconds and the 13-13 deadlock seemed destined to be shattered in overtime.

Meadows head coach Angelo Barro, already haunted by a missed conversion call he authorized, was planning to play defense if the Mustangs won the overtime coin flip.

The toss never came. Dick Blocki stole the coin and the show in the waning seconds by snatching an eight-yard touchdown pass and intercepting Arlington's last-gasp heave to insure a 20-13 Rolling Meadows victory ... in regulation time.

"The kids really took the bull by the horns," Barro stammered in disbelief, still recollecting the final 26-yard drive that was methodically engineered by perhaps a less nervous Breitbeil.

It was the coach's son, Ken Barro, who provided excellent field position for the winning score with a 20-yard punt return as the clock settled on the 1:02 mark.

Breitbeil and Blocki, a combination that practiced on their own in the dead of summer to master the intricacies of the indefensible quick-out pass, got titanic results from their out-of-season sweat.

The pre-tilted execution began in-fell incomplete and the momentum flowed to Arlington. Plagued by three fumbles and an interception in the first-half alone, the Cardinals made shocking amends.

Matt Shaughnessy was handed the controls of a turnover-prone Arlington offense and it didn't take long for his right arm to limber up.

His first play from scrimmage was a near-touchdown toss that just trickled off the fingertips of Card magnet John Yezzel. Two plays later, though, Shaughnessy rifled a 21-yard bullet to Yezzel who made a dazzling over-the-head grab at the Mustang five.

Two successive carries by punishing Bill Jankiewicz and a chip shot from the foot of Leonhard brought Arlington to within 13-7 with 10:19 left in the game.

Before any of the Card backers had a chance to sit down after the ensuing kickoff, Art Klein had smothered a Meadows fumble at the Mustang 29.

Shaughnessy, who displayed "tremendous poise under these circumstances," according to head coach Chuck Haines, went back to the air.

The slick right-hander threaded a seven-yard bullseye to versatile Jankiewicz before calling the same number for a burst over tackle that punched the ball to the 15.

Just 54 seconds after the Cardinals had initially penetrated the endzone, Shaughnessy rolled left, but handed to Wayne Eisenhuth who bucked against the flow in a mis-direction play that froze the Mustang defense and allowed an unchallenged 15-yard scamper.

With the score knotted at 13, Leonhard shanked the extra point to the right and tie-breaking interpretations became the subject of conversation in both stands.

Everywhere, that is, except in the Rolling Meadows huddle where Breitbeil and Blocki executed their summer patterns.

Instead, Breitbeil faked a handoff to Academy Award actor Ted Tyk who drew a crowd of Arlington tacklers at the line of scrimmage. Breitbeil, meanwhile, rolled right and found Blocki, his six-foot senior end unattended in the corner of the endzone.

With :22 still showing, Blocki, nicknamed "The Hammer," was required to put the game on ice when he gobbled an Arlington bomb at the 10-yard line.

The interception thwarted the Cardinals' final comeback effort that found them trailing 13-0 early in the fourth quarter. The Mustangs put seven on the board in the second period on a three-yard plunge by Joe McChesney and added six more in the third quarter on a 10-yard crossback by Ted Tyk.

But at that stage, Barro called for a pass attempt on the conversion, based on this theory: "We knew they had an excellent placekicker (Steve Leonhard), so I figured our 15 points would force them to score two touchdowns and two runs to beat us. I began having nightmares about that decision."

St. Viator survives letdown, socks Marist for third straight victory

by GEORGE IALAS

As our society grows more conscious of sport and its different philosophies, the current deluge of autobiographies shows that, if nothing else, football coaches often develop a unique perspective of existence, fate and, of course, football.

So a knowledgeable fan might understand St. Viator defensive coach Wayne Fiedler when he said after Viator's Friday night encounter with Marist "I don't want to take anything from Marist. They came at us and we survived."

One might expect that after a one or two point win, but Fiedler's charges had just presented him with a shutout and the Lions struck fast offensively to register a 21-0 victory over Marist's Redskins at Wheeling Friday. It's hard to equate a 21-point margin and more survival, but Fiedler seemed justified somewhat in his outlook.

The Lions did not look as sharp as they had in two high-powered wins over Evanston and Hersey. With those two successive conquests of ranked opponents, Jim Lyne's well-drilled squad has established itself clearly as the early frontrunner for the top spot in the East Suburban Catholic Conference and a berth in the state playoffs. And Lyne is quite aware that "We've got to get up for each game because they're going to be up for us."

Lyne and his staff undoubtedly anticipated an emotional letdown under the circumstances and were sympathetic to the players afterwards. "It's hard to get up after two big games like that," said Fiedler. "and it doesn't help that Marist likes to hit."

"It wasn't a real big letdown," granted Lyne, "and penalties took away some of our momentum. We played penalty-free ball against Evanston and Hersey."

"Offensive line coach Pat Mahoney added 'Some individuals did a hell of a job and you have to give them credit. It takes a lot of mental discipline to do it three times in a row.'"

Marist was certainly up for Viator. "Marist played hard, scouted us well and stopped our wide game," commented Lyne. "They contained our option, and their punting game really improved. We had had field position for a lot of the game and you have a tendency to be too conservative when you're that close to your own goal. We hurt ourselves, too. Walsh (Bob) didn't call the plays that were working for us. I'll take the responsibility for that, though."

Lyne had praise for Walsh, the Lions' senior quarterback whose two long crowd-pleasing touchdown sprints put 14 points on the board in the first quarter. "It was great individual effort," smiled Lyne. "On the option (for 42 yards) he just beat his man one on one."

The Viator defense got sterling performances from John Romano, Mark Selvig, Tom Ellsworth, Scott Zetek and John Breen while holding Marist to a meager 52 yards total offense. The stingy defenders sacked Redskin passer Pat Faloona on five occasions for 47 yards

Classy Joe Willie beats crude Bears, booing crowd

The class met the crude Sunday at Soldier Field.

Joe Namath — as classy a quarterback as he played the game — came to Chicago for the first time ever to meet the Bears. I doubt if they'll want to come back.

Demonstrating the poor sportsmanship that has won them disdain throughout the National Football League, the Bears proved once again that they're as crude as they come. And the capacity crowd, egging on the crybabies of the midway, has to rank as one of the worst ever seen or heard by your old masked friend.

I was really fooled last week when the Bears devoured the Lions. They had a new look. Instead of the usual group of maulers, we were treated to good hitting and not much visible foolishness.

However, Abe Gibrone's big boys were ahead all the way a week ago; yesterday they weren't.

When it appeared that all was lost after trying to come back the entire game, the old ways — the crude ways — returned.

A personal foul . . . an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty . . . then another. The Bears and Gibrone lost their cool under pressure.

The crowd aroused their goons on by booing the officials. Five straight times the local loud mouths stopped the Jets from playing.

The shameful display continued until the final gun, leaving the Jets a 23-21 winner and the Bears and their fans the losers. Those who watched on TV saw Chicago live up to its bully reputation.

Bear fans would want to forget the first half. Joe Willie strutted his stuff down the artificial turf three times like he was strutting on Broadway. His brilliance as a signalcaller recalled that famous Super Bowl year.

Receiving more than adequate protection from what is regarded as so-so line-men, Namath displayed a dazzling aerial show. Before the frigid folks had time to up the old thermos, Joe Willie had his Jets out in front, 6-0. Defensive back Bill Knox was singled first by a pass to Richard Caster.

The Bear secondary failed again in the second quarter on a pass play that nearly popped my mask off. Thanks to shoddy arm tackles by the likes of Joe Taylor, Knox and one deep back whose name escaped yours truly's sharp eyes, the Jets pulled off a 58-yard play. John Riggins doing most of the damage with "Jazz" Jackson scooping up Riggins' fumble to complete the action.

Meanwhile, the Bears' offense looked amazingly like Detroit's the week before — zero!

Before the Bears could say phlebotomy, they were down 20-0. Again, a long pass play set up the score. Only once did Namath get sacked in the first half. And that sacking didn't seem to snag his party hose.

Trailing by that lopsided score at intermission, the Bears must have been given the old "win one of the limper" speech by their sore-legged coach. It almost worked.

First Knox helped atone for earlier mistakes by routing a field goal attempt by the Jets early in the third quarter. Then it was Gary Huff's turn.

Old "State Street Gary" must have learned something from Namath's first-half display. Showing that he is the Bears' best hope of the future, Huff's accurate arm led them down the field. Carl Garrett's sparkling catch for their first touchdown seemed to ignite the whole team.

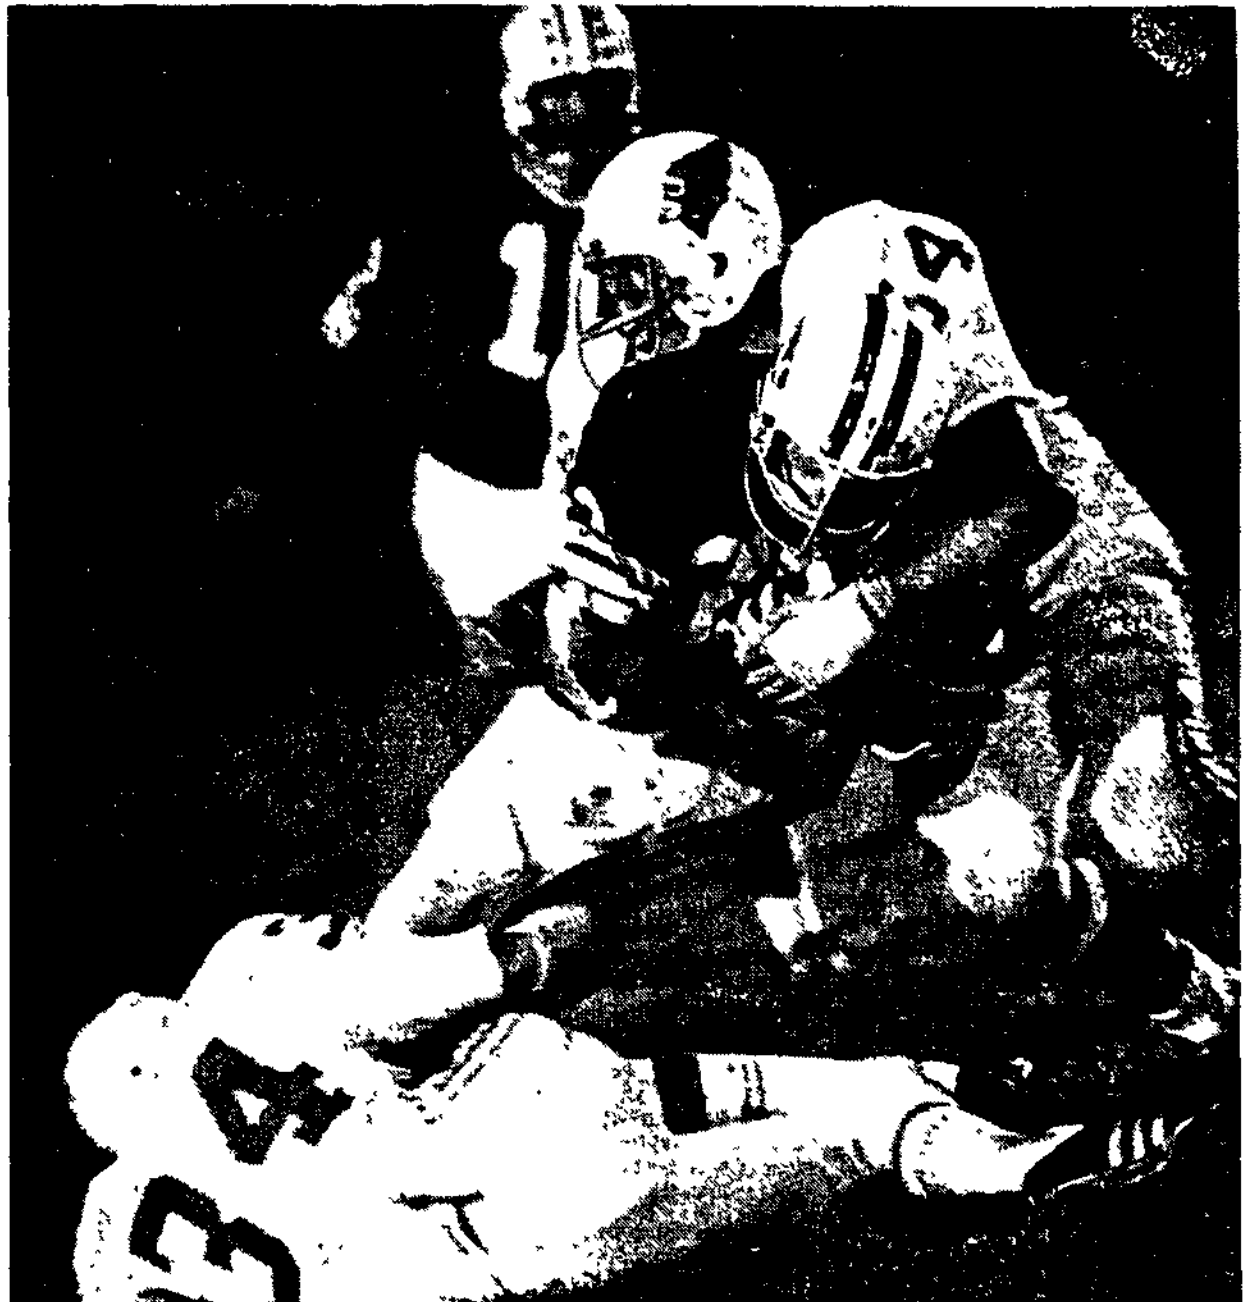

The Bears began to play defense again. They got the ball back and Huff took them in again.

After the Jets took a 23-14 lead with a field goal, Ken Granberry showed his stuff with a super 68-yard return that set up the Bears' third score.

Then the Bears reverted to past mistakes. On a key third-and-five, Huff failed to drop back enough and his pass was batted down. Then he lost a shot at a field goal by scrambling out of Mirro Roder's range.

Old pro Namath managed to eat up the clock after that. The Bears lost their cool and so did the crowd.

The so-so teams will be replaced by the talented Minnesota Vikings next week. Will the Bears be classy or crude next time? Let's hope for the former, even in defeat.

Remember, fans, when Fire actually had 4-0 record?

CHICAGO, Sept. 23 — Yearning for their good old days, the Chicago Fire this morning announced the signing of Lono, ancient Polynesian god of peace, to a multi-year contract. Lono was listed at all positions, played his college ball for Coco Joe's in Hawaii and will also drive the equipment truck.

"We expect big things from Lono," said Fire personnel director Bill Byrne. "He's small and slow, can't hold the ball and never learned to block. But he'll produce or he's history."

Pausing, Byrne added, "and you can bet that if I don't produce, I'm history, too."

No!

It's a big hoax! Although they've dropped three straight after a 7-2 beginning, the Fire hasn't steered into voodoo.

But Lono, giver of Polynesian guidance and good luck, does exist as part of the Fire's publicity staff.

He's an ugly, gremlin-like creature, standing less than five inches tall, who collects dust on Nancy Howard's desk. Never would you want him to marry your sister.

Nancy is subservient to Fire public relations coach Jim Walker who keeps track of new players, where they've been and when they'll be cut. That's no easy chore. His depth charts are frequently Fire history before they're ever issued.

You can answer some questions about this Fire football club by checking the 42-man roster issued before Chicago opened its WFL season against Houston, now of Shreveport, La.

Of those Fabulous Forty-Two (Look Ma, I play in the WFL!), only 22 are still found on Fire payroll charts. Admittedly, most rejects never played prominent roles.

Then running back Mark Keller and split end James Scott picked the same week to get hurt. Keller broke his left leg; Scott tore knee ligaments.

That erased the WFL's top rusher (778 yards) and scorer (108 points) in Keller plus the leading receiver (53 catches) in Scott from Chicago's offense.

Their absence plus the addition of seven new players had observers wondering which sideline bench seated the home team during last week's disheartening 25-7 loss to Memphis. And the Fire was flat.

"Everybody around here was looking over their shoulder. They didn't know who'd be here and who wouldn't," Fire coach Jim Spavital told me this week-end. "Some people can take that pressure; some can't."

"And fans don't really know what it does to a team when two of your best players (Keller and Scott) aren't there," he added. "Most people work for a big organization where they've never heard the word 'morale.' You've got to have it in a winning formula."

So Memphis blew Chicago off the Soldier Field turf. After the loss, 11-year veteran Steve Wright retired. And that on the eve of his book, "I'd Rather Be

by Sparky O'Leary

Wright, Memoirs of an Itinerant Tackler." Now turned itinerant mountain man in Wyoming.

Then Spavital lopped reserve quarterback Maurie Daigneau, starting cornerback Hal Phillips, linebackers J. D. Armstrong and Sherwin Jarmon plus running back Billy Taylor off the roster.

All month, guys have been falling like flies, another morale killer. And Spavital knows it. "After this group gets out of here, we'll keep the changes to a minimum," he promised.

The Fire was forced into a look-see on many NFL cuts or would have forfeited its WFL rights. That group includes Andy Rice, Al Jenkins, Tommy Roussel, Dave Hale and the great Leroy Kelly who undoubtedly is better than his three yards vs. Memphis.

They've been good finds. Other immortals like Willie Holman, Roger Lawson, Joe Moore, Gary Fairchild, Brian Lindstrom and John Smith have passed into obscurity.

(Quick quiz: Who was Pell Pennington? Answer: Maurie Daigneau's backup. Comment: Who was Maurie Daigneau?)

But you know the Fire's biggest problem? It's not player moves. It's winning. They've already won too much. A 4-0 start for any Chicago football team is unthinkable.

The fans can't handle that success. It goes to their skulls. If the club falters later, they get strange. Chicago's good citizens are promised next year and given last year.

So when the Fire went 4-0, they got all excited. Never matter that those clubs now have a composite 14-32-2 record.

We tasted success. Now, we can't handle defeat. We're not booing yet because we're not sure who should be booed. But he's out there, someplace. And we'll find him.

Unless Lono gets there first with his blanket of peace and a couple of victories.

Hawk power

Harper explodes in second half for 30-8 victory

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

If John Eliasik has his way, the second half of Harper's 30-8 crunch over Illinois Valley Saturday night in LaSalle-Peru will mark the beginning of a second season of sorts.

Harper's first season up to the halftime encompassed a couple victories and a dismal 30 minutes of football that found the Hawks trailing a team they'd never beaten, 8-0.

"I told them," Eliasik said in summing up his halftime chat, "that they were beating themselves and they couldn't expect every team they play to lie down for them. Every time we play Illinois Valley they get after us like we've spit in their eye. I hope we've learned tonight that we've got to play our game every time out and not just when we feel like it."

Eliasik had spoken worriedly about the Illinois Valley jinx on his team prior to the game and events of the first half indicated there may be dozens of little Harper voodoo dolls stuck full of pins, most of them in the hands.

The first offensive series the Hawks attempted penetrated to the 27 largely on the strength of a 15-yard run by quarterback Gary Mueller. Then, following two carries by Mike Dean the jinx struck Rich Hoevel and the ball squirted into Illinois Valley possession.

The same fate awaited Dean in the second quarter when Mueller's pitchout was too awkward to handle. Hoevel got the double whammy moments later after the Hawk defense cooled the Apaches and his final fumble began IV's only scoring drive of the day.

Moving steadfastly on the ground, the Apaches took 10 plays to move a measly 27 yards for their touchdown. The longest run of the series covered six yards with Curt Faber finally blowing over from the one with seconds remaining in the half.

"I didn't want to yank Hoevel out of there," Eliasik said, "because that would destroy his confidence. He's had two good games for us before and I didn't want him to get down about the fumbles."

"We were flat defensively in the first half," Eliasik said, "and the errors we made there were mental. On offense we did better but the mistakes we made there were physical. They never stopped our offense, we stopped ourselves."

"I told them they had to make up their mind that they weren't going to make stupid mistakes and beat themselves."

Mueller, coming off a bout with the flu and a so-so effort against Wright, directed Harper's first scoring drive 72 yards in 10 plays the first time the Hawks got the ball in the second half.

Each time the drive seemed in danger of stalling, Mueller went to the air, each time to Frank Bavaro. The 6-0 receiver from Elk Grove responded each time with two exceptional catches of 18- and 22-yards and a third for five yards and the Hawks' first touchdown.

Gary Mueller

Frank Bavaro

Eliasik shunned the two point conversion try that would tie the game and instead settled for an automatic extra point off the toe of Dave Patterson.

"We felt we could move the ball against them and there was enough time left in the game for us to score again," Eliasik said. "If it had been later in the game we probably would've gone for two."

Harper's defense had spruced up their mental attitude and fired by the touch-down they smothered the Apaches. An injury to Mike Amundsen had seriously depleted the Hawk defensive secondary and there was concern beforehand about a vulnerability to the pass.

The Apaches never probed the subject seriously and completed only six passes for 42 yards but a rash of injuries, most notably Mike Mutt who had been moved from tight end guard, further thinned Harper's already skinny squad.

night without Marty Williams at running back, produced two more touchdowns. The first a three-yard blast by Hoevel, the second a 15-yard pass from Mueller to Geoff Bacon. A center snap that cleared the IV punter's head and went out of the end zone for a safety wrapped up the Hawks' scoring.

Williams, a flashy performer who had fumble troubles in the first two games, was transferred over to the defense.

"Williams is too good an athlete not to use," Eliasik said. "We're going to use him on offense sometime when a fumble won't hurt us so he'll have time to build up his confidence again. We'll have to see the films to evaluate how he did tonight but I think he did very well."

The entire defense did very well in the second half. IV quarterback Greg Koehler, who had been relatively unbothered in the first half, suddenly found himself in a swam of Hawks on each play of the second half. Paced by Bacon, Bob Dynnek, John Kern, Kent Knudson and Bill Nash the entire defensive unit held the Apaches to -1 total yards in the second half.

"In the first half," Eliasik said, "the defense was very flat. It was reminiscent of the way we looked against these guys last year."

"But they got after them in the second half and shut them out. Then with the offense getting 30 points this win was a nice team effort."

and permitted only four first downs.

Though the Lion attackers piled up 178 yards rushing, they managed only four first downs and sustained but one drive all night. Penalties staggered the Lion machine as they were nailed for 60 yards including four 15-yards.

The game opened with the two teams trading punts, then Viator got the ball at the Marist 42. Walsh sent Breen crashing into the middle, then faked to him, stepped inside one Marist defender and sprinted into the endzone with a five-man escort. Mark Campana parted the up-rights and Viator led 7-0.

A couple of stellar defensive plays including a sack by a blitzing Breen sent Redskins Pat Boylan punting after four plays, and he lofted a beauty to Walsh, who gathered it in at the Lion 20. He paused briefly, allowing Breen to blow one tackler out of the way before shooting straight up the middle 80 yards for his second TD. Campana's artistry made it 14-0.

Romano and Pat Rooney provided some precision defensive play to halt Marist in its next four plays. Tim Halas, Steve Leahy, Marty Drazba, Vic La-Manila and Matt Hower opened gaping holes for Walsh, Breen and tailback Joe Littwin as the Viator offensive unit embarked on its only real drive of the night.

Breen capped it by dancing through a generous opening over right tackle from one yard out, Campana made it three for three and Viator made it 21-0.

From that point on, the game settled down to four plays and punt.

But Viator had shown one of the marks of a great team, coming through with a few key plays when they were needed most.

Like Jim Lyne said though, "I'm not completely satisfied, but..." They survived.

Maine East wins over Titans, 13-0

- Tuesday sports

Maine West falls but improves; touted New Trier East wins, 20-7

by MIKE KLEIN

The defeat wasn't half an hour old but already Jim Morel talked more like a winner than loser. He'd found a quarterback in sophomore Bob Zuccarini and the kids were starting to hit. That makes a man happy.

"It was like Jekyll and Hyde out there tonight compared to our first two games," Maine West's Morel said Friday after his Warriors lost, 20-7, to heavily favored New Trier East.

But you turn around a couple critical plays and that score might have changed hands.

"We're 0-3 and it may sound crazy, but I'm happy," Morel said. "The kids are pulling together. We've got some confidence. You can't believe how terrible we were the first two games. That's why I'm so happy tonight."

The Warriors went ahead, 7-0, two plays into the second period when Bill Makuch plunged two yards on fourth and goal. Mike Pandich boomed the extra point.

But New Trier came back with formula football, getting its points off to a punt return, one short score set up by a great defensive effort and finally, a long march late in the game.

The punt rumbuck was 76 yards by Bruce Barkwill and the first of Pete Nierman's two extra points made it 7-7 at halftime.

Excepting an illegal procedure penalty against West, the visitors might have been scoreless. Barkwill was dumped at his 20 by Dan Cavazos but got a second chance when Norb Ploszaj had to punt again.

West was not fortunate on the ensuing kick, Barkwill beating the blue-jerseyed Warriors on a left sideline pattern. Ploszaj had a chance at the goal line but couldn't get Barkwill.

New Trier capitalized after intermission when defensive end Will Volkman popped Zuccarini, forcing a fumble. Mark Gion recovered for the Indians on West's 16-yard line.

"I almost thought Bob had the ball going forward," said Morel, insinuating the call could have been incomplete pass.

West forced New Trier into fourth and eight. When right corner Scott Unger slipped, tight end Bob Melrose broke free and caught Jim Matthews' 14-yard TD strike. Deep safety Sean Dowd arrived too late to help Unger.

Nierman, who pounded one kickoff through the end zone on a single bounce, booted the extra point. New Trier led, 14-7, seven plays into the third period.

An important fourth and four at New Trier's 26-yard line was West's final shot at victory when 10 minutes remained.

Unger swept left but was dumped for a one-yard loss. It had been a gamble play, Morel hoping New Trier would guess inside run.

"We went at their left end but the monster came up to take the pitch man," Morel said. "They guessed right and it was a formation they hadn't used all night."

New Trier used over five minutes and 13 plays to go 75 yards before Bob Kaesberg plunged six yards off left tackle for a 20-7 New Trier lead. Makuch blocked Nierman's kick.

In the long analysis, Barkwill's punt return was a killer. Even then, a first down by West at New Trier's 26 could have brought the Warriors back.

But really, West did a pretty decent job. New Trier faced fourth and 30 on its opening possession, then saw its second drive end when Ralph Rolapso intercepted a Matthews pass.

The Indians' third try also ended in failure, Matthews fumbling an option pitch and Dowd recovering on New Trier's 11. That paved the way for Makuch's TD.

New Trier's next offensive efforts ended in fourth and 18 (punt) followed by fourth and nine. Nierman lined up for a 40-yard field goal but the snap was bad and New Trier lost 11 yards. So much for their first half offense.

After their quickie third period score, the Indians faced fourth and 19, then fourth and 21 before driving for Kaesberg's score. Later, they failed on fourth and three at West's 17.

That's tough defense. And in young Zuccarini, just a sophomore, the Warriors discovered a quarterback. He was poised, unrattled by the early third period fumble that gave New Trier its second score and ran a heads-up offense.

His stats weren't much, 6-of-18 passing for 57 yards, but he never cracked. On the game's last drive, he completed tosses of 18 yards to Ploszaj and nine yards to Todd Salerno.

But the key play occurred near West's goal line. On second and 21 from his four, Zuccarini dropped into his end zone, found nobody open, then scrambled for first down yardage.

"He was super and poised all the way under lots of pressure," Morel said of Zuccarini. "Hell, he hit his first three receivers and they dropped the ball. He had no question in his mind that he can play ball. That's what we found tonight, a quarterback."

Morel also uncovered a defense. And the kids found reason to believe they're a team, not just a bunch of individuals.

Win at bridge by Oswald and James Jacoby

Nitty-gritty question: 'How?'

Oswald: "Our code word ARCH should be a must for all bridge players. 'A' for Analyze the lead; 'R' for Review the bidding and 'C' for Count your winners and losers are important, but the nitty-gritty is the 'H' for How can I make the contract?"

Jim: "South thinks his three notrump contract should be in the bag until he sees the opening lead and the dummy. The fact that the ace-king-queen of hearts only represent two stoppers and that hearts were opened leaves the contract in considerable jeopardy."

Oswald: "He tries to count to nine tricks. If he can score five diamonds that will be fine but that requires a 3-3 suit break and the odds are against it. Five club tricks are likely to be there. Suits break 3-2 about 68 per cent of the time, but five clubs plus two hearts and a spade only come to eight."

Jim: "Then he finds his best chance. He wins the heart in dummy and leads a diamond. East must duck and South has one diamond home. Now he abandons the diamonds; leads a club and ducks. East wins and clears the hearts but the clubs come in for the game."

Fire-vote meetings planned

Long Grove fire officials last week asked residents to hold questions on a fire-service referendum in Buffalo Grove for a series of meetings to be held on the subject next month.
The action followed a presentation made by representatives of the Long Grove department Thursday night before 15-20 residents at Twin Groves School.

and 24. Locations for the sessions are pending.
The referendum, slated for Oct. 26 if the measure receives approval at a court hearing, will affect 4,000 to 5,000 residents in the northern section of the village. Their vote will determine whether the area will be transferred to the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.
The Long Grove department now provides fire protection to the area.
At the meeting, one resident asked if there may be further delays in the start of a paramedic program in the Long Grove department. Tony Berg, a fireman and trustee for the district, said the community's paramedic program "should be operational" by November.

Ill Palatine youth remains in county jail

by JOANN VAN WYE
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A Palatine youth with a medical record of hepatitis is locked in County Jail, despite a court order for his hospitalization.

Jail officials insist the youth — Phillip Johnson, 17 — is "recovering" from the disease and cannot infect the jail's 1,300-prisoner population.

But, a medical statement included in the youth's court file recommends hospitalization and treatment for hepatitis, a contagious liver disease. Treatment at Cermak Hospital, which serves county jail, reportedly was ordered by a Circuit Court judge when Johnson was arrested on vandalism charges Aug. 28 by Palatine police.

CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE Arthur Sullivan last week ordered a "full report" on Johnson's health and delayed a preliminary hearing until Thursday on charges of burglary and vandalism. Sullivan's order came after the judge refused Thursday to allow the youth inside his Skokie courtroom for fear of infecting persons present.

Johnson's three-week jailing without hospitalization was disclosed Friday during a speech before Wheeling Township Republicans by Peter Bensinger, GOP candidate for sheriff.

During his appearance in Arlington Heights, Bensinger referred to a "prisoner who should have gone to Cermak Hospital for diabetes and went instead to County Jail."

Johnson, 449 E. Baldwin Rd., Palatine, "is sick and I want treatment for him," his mother, Billie Johnson, said Saturday. "They figure he was in trouble before and just threw him in jail."

"I'm not satisfied he has hepatitis," Sullivan said. "He may have. I want to see what is being done and whether it's dangerous."

AFTER JOHNSON WAS arrested by Palatine police, a fire department ambulance driver, two policemen and another arrested youth were inoculated against possible hepatitis and the Palatine jail was sanitized.

Johnson was arrested after he left "against medical advice" Alexian Brothers Medical Center Aug. 25. The youth entered the hospital Aug. 5 for treatment of hepatitis and a liver ailment after the Cook County State's Attorney's office agreed to delay his arrest.

"We put him in the hospital because we knew he was sick," his mother said. "When he was picked up, it was infectious, but it's not now."

Johnson was taken to county jail on the day of his arrest, his mother said.

Palatine police said the youth was transported in an ambulance to Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove Village. But, hospital officials told The Herald that Johnson was not admitted or treated on Aug. 28 or 29.

FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER his arrest, on Sept. 12, Johnson received a physical examination at Cermak Hospital. Lad Alfaro, jail paramedics supervisor, said Johnson's medical record, with a first entry of Sept. 12, indicates that he entered the jail "at the earliest" Sept. 11.

Another spokesman at the jail told The Herald on Friday that Johnson was not a jail prisoner.

Tests at Cermak on Sept. 12 and Sept. 18 showed a "liver problem" but not hepatitis, Alfaro said.

A separate test that is dated Sept. 12 called for hospitalization and hepatitis treatment. The test result, reported by Dr. E. J. Kelleher, director of psychiatric services for the county, is included as a signed statement in Johnson's court file. Kelleher also recommended out-patient psychiatric treatment.

Sheriff Richard Elrod, the official responsible for county jail operations, said Saturday he has no authority to place the youth in Cermak Hospital, which is controlled by the Hospital Governing Commission.

ALFARO SAID Johnson's case is not "unusual." "We get 300 prisoners a day,

About 100 come with orders from judges for hospitalization. We'd have to have Presbyterian-St. Luke's (Hospital) for them all."

Cermak Hospital has 70 beds and on Friday only one was vacant, Alfaro said.

Prisoners with court orders for hospitalization are sent to Cermak for "reevaluation," Alfaro said. "The judges play doctor. We don't know what they tell the judge. We completely check their record."

Johnson "doesn't have anything you'd call infectious. He's on the road to recovery. All you can do is rest and take vitamins," Alfaro said.

The youth is in a single cell in a "holding area," for prisoners who cannot perform jail work, Alfaro said. Cermak physicians are "twice as alert" for possible infectious diseases like hepatitis because "we have 1,300 people here."

ACCORDING TO ALFARO, Johnson was reexamined Friday and "there's still nothing. The lab reports came back okay."

Johnson was arrested in June after a break-in at Busch's Parts and Services, 137 S. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Police answered a burglar alarm that was triggered when a building window was broken. Police found no identification or stolen goods with Johnson when he was arrested.

Johnson also is charged with a June 21 vandalism incident at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant, 920 E. Northwest Hwy. An estimated $500 in damage to a ceiling, cash register, safe and desk was reported after a burglary attempt.

State board hears Whipple testimony

few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, "I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to the paddling if the rules had been followed but "there were no two swats on the butt."

She said Michael Biskupski, who was first an aide in the program and later a teacher in the junior high school, "put the paddle over his head" and then brought it down to hit a child. She said, "There was a boy who was taller than Mr. Biskupski and it seems he was always in the hall getting it."

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

SHE SAID THAT after Whipple gave her the poor evaluation in February and suggested she resign, she called Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, to tell her about the evaluation and mentioned that there were "other things" at the school that needed Mrs. Kinney's attention.

She said she did not specify what "other things" Mrs. Kinney should look into because "there wasn't time" during that phone call.

She said the child Whipple walked on the "leash" made of a belt, was a child who "made quite a few animal sounds" and who was in therapy with Whipple. She said the boy "looked forward to Mr. Whipple's arrival and if he was late for any reason, he would become very upset."

She also said that when the boy was on the leash, he would walk on all fours and bark like a dog. "The boy did not seem to be dealing with anything but a fantasy situation," she said.

SHE SAID ON another occasion she saw a child riding a tricycle around the playground in the rain and when she asked the child's teacher about it, was told "he's in therapy with Mr. Whipple." She said she saw Whipple in the teachers' lounge getting coffee while the boy was on the playground.

She also testified that "profanity and vulgar language" was commonly used by teachers around the school and that several times during the spring she saw a woman teacher and a male teacher's aide "necking and ear biting" in a classroom in front of children.

On cross examination, she said she had not attempted to stop the pair because "I didn't have the authority" and that she had not reported it to Whipple because "I thought he knew about it."

Mrs. Hickey also testified that she once saw Whipple "slam a boy into the wall and hold him there while he cried," and that Whipple would sometimes introduce a child with a breast fixation to women visitors and that the boy would fondle the women's breasts.

Mrs. Hickey also testified that a "quiet" sign was hung on the door to the school gym whenever visitors were going to be in the school who might object to profanity, smoking or paddling.

IN EARLIER TESTIMONY, Hennessey, who was one of the first officials from Martwick's office to talk to the complaining teachers, said that Whipple "functioned in all ways like a school principal," even though he is not properly certificated in the state of Illinois as a school administrator.

Officials of the certification board said the board has never had a hearing on suspension or revocation of a certificate take longer than three or four hours. Board members indicated that if necessary they will meet all day Oct. 7 and 8 to complete the testimony.

Other witnesses to be called by Martwick include Mrs. Rawson, a teacher who left the school in 1973 because she was pregnant, and Marshall Edwards, who was principal of the school from September to December, 1971.

Three linked to beating of local teen-ager

Three men were arrested by Arlington Heights police and charged with battery after they allegedly beat a Buffalo Grove man at a party early Saturday.

According to reports, the four men were at a party in Arlington Heights when the victim, Christopher R. Johnson, 18, of 4042 White Pine, Buffalo Grove, accidentally turned off the lights.

When the lights were turned back on, Johnson was struck by one of the suspects and then forced into a bathroom where the other two joined the beating, police said.

After police arrived at the scene, Johnson had wandered off. Fire department paramedics reported finding him walking in a daze several blocks from the party.

Arrested were George Gabl, 19, of 1421 W. Maude Ave., Arlington Heights; Leon Carroll, 17, of 1522 N. George St., Arlington Heights and Donald Penar, 22, of 1416 Saulk Ln., Mount Prospect.

The men were arrested in Penar's van near Frontier Park.

Gabl and Carroll were released on $1,000 bond each. Penar was charged with having no driver's license as well as the battery count. He was released on $5,000 bond.

They are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Oct. 25.

Johnson was treated for his injuries and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $350-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 969 S. His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze.

Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than antifreeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Cigo station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

Spring starting date now planned

High costs force YMCA to delay building expansion

The board of directors of the Northwest Suburban YMCA has put off plans to start construction on a $1.6 million addition until next spring and may have to modify plans because of soaring construction costs.

Stephen Jurco, president of the YMCA's board of directors, said the board will meet late this week or the week after to review a financial report on the addition.

The YMCA had hoped to start construction of the 26,000-square-foot addition this fall, but rising construction costs have forced a setback in the expansion program.

IN A PREPARED statement, the board indicated it "did not think it fair to request contributions from the community with the decline in the economic climate."

Jurco said the delay does not mean the YMCA has abandoned its plans for the addition.

He said, however, the financial report on the feasibility of the addition may require modification of the overall plan.

"We may delay some phases of the addition initially if the cost of buying money is too high," he said.

ESTIMATED cost of the addition has jumped more than 25 per cent in the five months since the plans for the addition were announced last April.

"That's pretty scary," Jurco said.

He also explained that YMCA officials were hesitant to try to start construction in the fall because that would require tying up the parking lot during the winter.

Area residents have complained about traffic congestion in the neighborhoods. They believe the congestion is caused by a shortage of parking at the Y.

YMCA officials recently asked the city council to modify the parking requirements for the facility. However, they do not plan to lose any parking space because of the addition.

They said they will build the addition on stills. They also have made arrangements with a nearby office complex to use their parking facilities in the evening.

THE Y PLANS to build a new gymnasium with a running track, several basketball courts and handball courts and meeting rooms.

The organization plans to pay for the addition with a fund-raising drive in the community, contributions from groups within the Y and from regular membership fees.

The proposed addition marks the second major expansion undertaken by the Y in recent years. The organization completed its third swimming pool in early 1971.

'Pattern of discrimination'

FAA worker files sex-bias complaint against her boss

A Federal Aviation Administration employee who oversees the enforcement of fair-employment standards filed a sex-discrimination complaint against her bosses Friday.

Judith Ramey, 38, has charged that she was passed over for a better job and that a man was promoted in her place. She works at the FAA's Great Lakes Region office, 2300 Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Miss Ramey said her complaint charges that her supervisor, Robert I. Dixon, chief of the civil rights staff, did not promote her because she is a woman.

4 from Des Plaines

'distinguished pupils'

Four Des Plaines students at Purdue University achieved distinguished student rank during the second semester of the school year.

These students are in the top 17 per cent of the 19,700 undergraduates on the West Lafayette campus.

They are: Robert Brannon, 250 Shannon Court; Pamela Kratzmeyer, 446 Amherst Ave.; Joseph Prang, 2101 Fox Ln.; and John Thomas, 1915 Welwyn Dr.

"This is the latest development in a pattern of discrimination by the Great Lakes Region of the FAA," she said.

SHE AGREED that it was ironic that the office which supposedly oversees compliance with equal opportunity and other federal anti-job discrimination programs would be the target of such a complaint.

The 36-year-old Evanston resident said this was the first complaint she was aware of brought by an employee in the FAA's Des Plaines office.

She added that she believes women employees of the FAA are not treated equally with men and that the women are "oversupervised."

Under the FAA's regulations, the complaint will be turned over to the U.S. Dept. of Transportation for review. An investigator will be assigned to the case and a report on the complaint will probably be completed within six months.

The regulations also provide for a further review by the federal civil service commission and Miss Ramey could file suit in U.S. District Court after both reviews are completed.

"I can't predict what the outcome will be," she said.

Dixon, who is Miss Ramey's supervisor, could not be reached for comment on the complaint.

YMCA DIRECTOR Charles McClennan inspects a model of the proposed $1.6 million addition to the Y's present facility at 30 Northwest

Man, 52, hit by freight loses his legs

A 52-year-old Chicago man had both his legs amputated Friday after he was hit by a train near the Cumberland station in Des Plaines.

Earl Long, 848 W. Madison St., was taken to Holy Family Hospital by Des Plaines firemen after the accident occurred about 5 p.m. A spokesman at the hospital said Long was in guarded condition in the intensive care unit Sunday. The spokesman said surgery was performed to amputate both of Long's legs above the knee. The ring finger of his left hand also was amputated.

Des Plaines police said Long was apparently hit by an eastbound Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train on the north track. Police said they have no indication as to why Long was on the track at the time.

Commuter train service was interrupted by the accident for about 20 minutes during the Friday evening rush hour.

Retain full-time mayor, Olen urges women voters

Des Plaines Ald. George Olen, 2nd, voiced his support for retaining a full-time mayor at a public hearing on proposed city government changes conducted Saturday by the local chapter of the League of Women Voters.

Olen added he would like to see the city hire a public relations officer and make changes in the city council committee system.

THE PUBLIC relations officer, he said, could handle complaints and problems that residents now take to their aldermen.

Saying that his constituents frequently call to ask him to settle family disputes, help with marital problems and "complain about the neighbor's garbage," Olen proposed employing a full-time public relations officer who would deal with such questions and direct callers to someone with the answers.

A "complaint department," Olen said, would free aldermen to spend more time on city business. Right now, they are "not prepared" for committee and city council meetings, he said.

Olen suggested that successive committee meetings be conducted by aldermen on those Monday nights when the council isn't in session and added that he would prefer that all aldermen be required to attend every meeting. Presently, several committees meet simultaneously and Olen said it is difficult for aldermen to sit in on portions of all of them.

ONLY FOUR other residents attended the two-hour hearing Saturday morning to offer opinions on the city manager question and other proposed governmental changes. Two said they favored keeping the full-time mayor system and one expressed support for hiring a city manager.

The hearing was set up by the LWV to obtain information the group will use in deciding whether it will take a stand and recommend a course of action to the city council.

The league also hoped to stimulate other organizations or individuals to either work with it in research on the issues or undertake studies of their own.

The LWV will present its findings to the general membership at unit meetings set for Wednesday and Oct. 2 and 9, which are open to the public. Copies of its report will be available to anyone.

City blood drive scheduled Sept. 30

A community blood drive will be held to help fill the Des Plaines quota with the North Suburban Blood Center and assure blood replacement for all Des Plaines residents.

The drawing will be taken Monday, Sept. 30, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Des Plaines Public Library meeting room, 841 Grace Ave.

Qualified donors must be free of colds, fevers, sore throats and hay fever and have not taken aspirin or cold tablets the day of the blood drive. Donors are also advised to avoid fatty foods or dairy products on the day of the donation. No alcohol should be consumed for 12 hours prior to donation.

If you cannot donate, you can assist the program as a volunteer aide, helping donors fill out information cards and serving refreshments.

For an appointment, for either donating or volunteering, call the Health Dept., at 296-5253 or 824-3136.

'Longest hearing in history'

Certification board hears testimony against Whipple

by WANDALYN RICE

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Certification Board, in "the longest hearing in history," heard charges from Barbara Hickey, a former teacher at Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, that former director John Whipple allowed child abuse to occur at the school. The school offers special classes for emotionally disturbed children from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Hickey, who resigned from the school this fall after making charges against Whipple to County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office, admitted under cross-examination that she does not remember if she complained about child abuse at the school until after Whipple told her she would not receive a raise at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

Whipple, seated at a small table with his attorney, Paul Retberg, listened intently to the testimony, frequently leaning over to whisper advice to Retberg.

IN FOUR HOURS of testimony at the hearing Friday, Mrs. Hickey, who taught children with learning disabilities at the school from 1971 to 1974, also said she saw Whipple lead a boy through the halls of the school with a belt attached to the boy's belt loop as a leash.

She also said Whipple "threatened and harassed" her and that teachers in Dwyer smoked cigarettes in classrooms and used vulgar language in front of children.

In addition to Mrs. Hickey, the board heard two hours of testimony from Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent to Martwick. Martwick has suspended Whipple's certificate which allows him to work as a school psychologist in public schools and has recommended that the certification board revoke the certificate.

Board members agreed to continue the hearing on Oct. 7 in Chicago. Whipple will be allowed to continue to work as a psychologist until the hearing is completed.

Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer until July, when he requested a transfer to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems.

John Whipple

THE NORTHWEST EDUCATION Cooperative governing board, which runs Dwyer, has reaffirmed its faith in Whipple in a report following an investigation into the charges against him and other members of the Dwyer staff. In his testimony, Hennessey referred to the NEC report as a "whitewash."

Whipple also has been accused of violating another state law by practicing as a private psychologist without a state license. David Smith, hearing officer for the board, overruled at least temporarily an effort by officials from Martwick's office to introduce evidence that State's Atty. Bernard Carey is investigating that charge against Whipple. Carey has taken no action to prosecute Whipple.

Mrs. Hickey said that in February of this year, Whipple called her to his office at Dwyer and told her she should resign from the program because she couldn't get along with other staff members and that "I let my needs and values get in the way of running the program."

Mrs. Hickey testified that she thought Whipple's evaluation was unfair because "the closest Mr. Whipple came to watching me work in three years at Dwyer was when he stood outside my door for a few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, "I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to the paddling if the rules had been followed but "there were no two swats on the butt."

She said Michael Biskupski, who was first an aide in the program and later a teacher in the junior high school, "put the paddle over his head" and then brought it down to hit a child. She said, "There was a boy who was taller than Mr. Biskupski and it seems he was always in the hall getting it."

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

SHE SAID THAT after Whipple gave her the poor evaluation in February and suggested she resign, she called Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, to tell her about the evaluation and mentioned that there were "other things" at the school that needed Mrs. Kinney's attention.

She said she did not specify what "other things" Mrs. Kinney should look into because "there wasn't time" during that phone call.

She said the child Whipple walked on the "leash" made of a belt, was a child who "made quite a few animal sounds" and who was in therapy with Whipple. She said the boy "looked forward to Mr. Whipple's arrival and if he was late for any reason, he would become very upset."

She also said that when the boy was on the leash, he would walk on all fours and bark like a dog. "The boy did not seem to be dealing with anything but a fantasy situation," she said.

SHE SAID ON another occasion she saw a child riding a tricycle around the playground in the rain and when she asked the child's teacher about it, was told "he's in therapy with Mr. Whipple." She said she saw Whipple in the teachers' lounge getting coffee while the boy was on the playground.

She also testified that "profanity and vulgar language" was commonly used by teachers around the school and that several times during the spring she saw a woman teacher and a male teacher's aide "necking and ear biting" in a classroom in front of children.

On cross examination, she said she had not attempted to stop the pair because "I didn't have the authority" and that she had not reported it to Whipple because "I thought he knew about it."

Mrs. Hickey also testified that she once saw Whipple "slam a boy into the wall and hold him there while he cried," and that Whipple would sometimes introduce a child with a breast fixation to women visitors and that the boy would fondle the women's breasts.

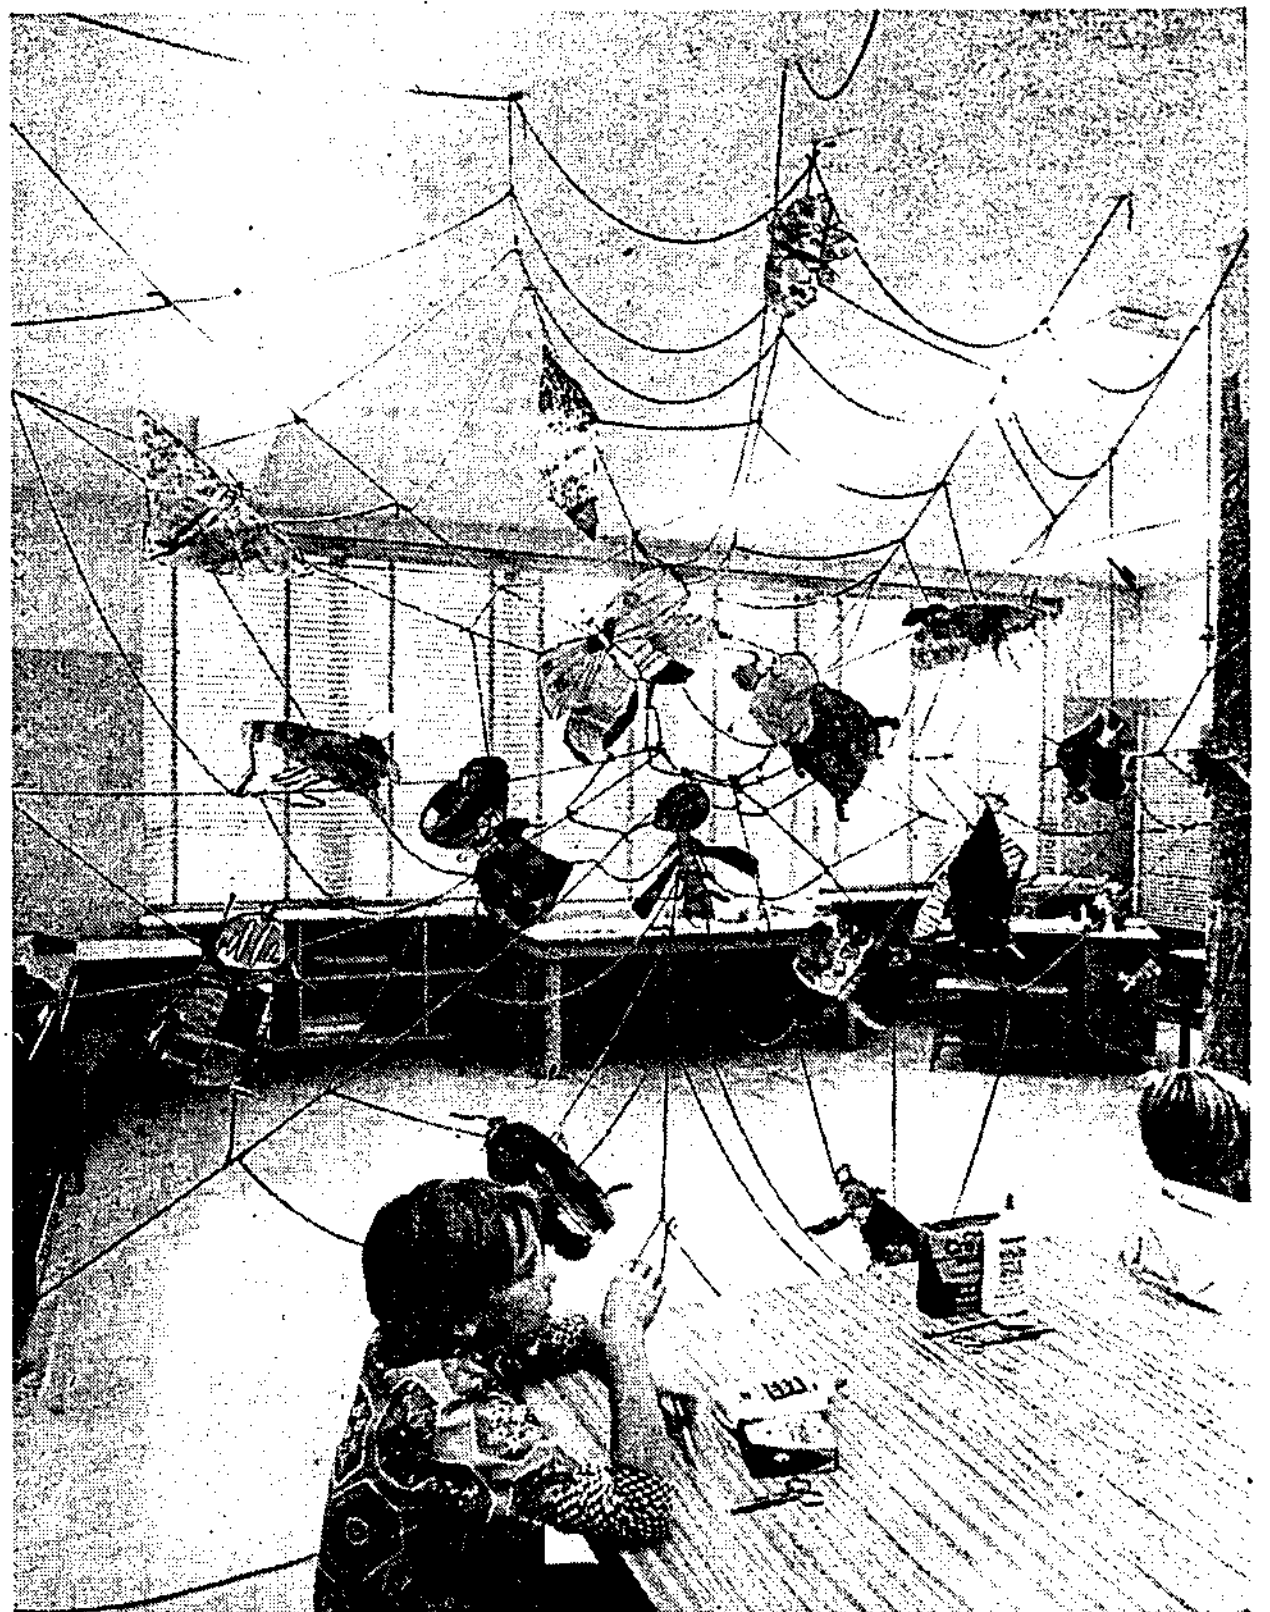

Mrs. Hickey also testified that a "quiet" sign was hung on the door to the school gym whenever visitors were going to be in the school who might object to profanity, smoking or paddling.

IN EARLIER TESTIMONY, Hennessey, who was one of the first officials from Martwick's office to talk to the complaining teachers, said that Whipple "functioned in all ways like a school principal," even though he is not properly certificated in the state of Illinois as a school administrator.

Officials of the certification board said the board has never had a hearing on suspension or revocation of a certificate take longer than three or four hours. Board members indicated that if necessary they will meet all day Oct. 7 and 8 to complete the testimony.

Other witnesses to be called by Martwick include Mrs. Rawson, a teacher who left the school in 1973 because she was pregnant, and Marshall Edwards, who was principal of the school from September to December, 1971.

Those expected to testify for Whipple include John Wightman, director of special education for NEC, and Edward Perry, a member of the NEC governing board. In addition, several parents with children in the school also are expected to testify for Whipple.

TALK ABOUT a 'bugged' room: Youngsters at West School in Des Plaines share their art room with an assortment of tissue-paper insects made by fourth graders. A spider's web was used to 'trap' the colorful victims.

'Greatest Show on Earth'

Maine East homecoming fun begins Friday

"The Greatest Show on Earth" will be the theme of Maine East High School's 1974 homecoming festivities.

Competition games, ranging from three-legged races and water balloon fights to tug-of-wars, will kick off homecoming activities Friday afternoon. Competition will be between classes, with individual members earning class point in pie-eating or water-drinking contests.

Carnival games, featuring the dunking machine and shove it, also will be part of the festivities Friday afternoon. Prizes will include kewpie dolls and stuffed animals.

The traditional firelight rally at 9 p.m. Friday will round out the day's activities with the burning of the Maine East letters. Members of the Maine East circus club will join the pom-pom girls and cheerleaders performing at the rally.

Homecoming ends Saturday afternoon when Maine East meets Highland Park High School on the football field. Mr. and Mrs. Grand Marshals and the Homecoming King and Queen Court will be named at halftime.

Doll-making topic of Wednesday meet

The Wednesday meeting of the United Presbyterian Women will feature a presentation by Ruth Wedeking on making cornhusk dolls.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the First Presbyterian Church of Des Plaines, Howard and Maple streets. Devotions for the evening will be given by club women and officers will be elected.

Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Don Franks, Mrs. Bernhard Johanson and Mrs. Jay Kuchel.

Kruse twins going great

The Kruse twins are making their presence known on the grid iron, playing for Dakota State College, Madison, S.D.

Robert and Richard were graduated from Elk Grove High School and attended Harper College before going on to major in physical education at Dakota State. Robert was cited by the Trojan coaches as being the mainstay in the Trojan's secondary after the Northwestern College game. Richard plays cornerback. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Kruse of 510 Walnut, Des Plaines.

2 teen-agers arrested

Two teen-agers, from Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, were arrested early Saturday after Mount Prospect police allegedly found hypodermic syringes in their possession.

The pair was stopped after police saw them enter the Gazebo Drapery Store, 1710 W. Algonquin Rd., using a key, police said. This was at 2:28 a.m.

The Arlington Heights boys, 16, was charged with curfew violation. The other, Jeffrey D. Rold, 18, who gave police addresses of 1330 Webford Ave. and 92 Thacker St., was charged with possession of a hypodermic syringe. Rold will appear Oct. 23 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Sex-case doctor down, but not out

by DARRY SIGALE

Dr. James G. Middleton, once a thriving, $60,000-a-year general practitioner, is living a life of relative destitution, picking tomatoes, sweet corn and cucumbers from a backyard garden for food and working as a janitor in return for free use of his former office as a home.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $350-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the driveway and throwing out trash in and around the building occupied by a printing firm and his small quarters.

A raid on his Des Plaines office by Sheriff's Police investigators produced pipebombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and artificial devices for sexual stimulation.

Middleton was projected as a Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde character, an image

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze.

Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than antifreeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Cito station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

"They have the antifreeze but they

Construction start at least 3 years away

U.S. OKs interchange at Biesterfield, I-90

by JILL BETTNER

The proposed Interstate-90 Interchange at Biesterfield Road in Elk Grove Village won approval last week from the Federal Highway Administration. The Federal endorsement will allow planning for the interchange to begin, although construc-

Furnace-problem hearing tonight

The Elk Grove Village Board will meet as a committee of the whole tonight to discuss the latest proposal by Centex Homes Corp. to solve local furnace problems.

The meeting is set for 9:30 p.m. at the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

The village board last week rejected the builder's offer to provide residents with $6 do-it-yourself repair kits to allow them to correct widespread furnace defects. The board gave Centex until noon today to come up with a better answer.

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zettek is demanding that defective furnaces be completely replaced by Centex and that the builder do other corrective work where it is needed to comply with village building and fire codes.

William Liebow, Centex vice president, said at last Tuesday night's board meeting he did not have the authority to commit Centex to anything other than providing the do-it-yourself furnace repair kits, the noon Monday deadline was set for the builder to formulate another proposal.

Building Comr. Thomas Rettenbacher said the cap and grill parts included in the repair kit will not correct code violations in an estimated 1,700 homes where furnace failures are suspected.

The building department is making lists of suggested corrections to heating systems installed by Centex that will bring the furnaces in line with village codes, Rettenbacher said. The lists will be available to heating contractors and homeowners at the village hall.

tion is probably at least three years away.

"The approval simply means that an interchange at that location is warranted. It does not mean we can go out and start building it tomorrow," said Alton Abbott, supervisor of location studies for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

Abbott said with the preliminary approval of the project, the state can begin work on several time-consuming studies needed to receive some federal funding for the interchange.

HENRY YAMANAKA, mobility studies engineer and project coordinator, estimated construction of the interchange at $1.2 million to $1.5 million.

Federal funding could provide as much as 90 per cent of the cost, Abbott said, but the actual amount of the government's participation has not yet been determined.

State transportation department officials said a local campaign for the interchange was instrumental in convincing the federal agency of the need for the Biesterfield exit.

Representatives of Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village started the drive for the interchange late last year, saying an interchange would cut travel time of emergency vehicles coming to the hospital from the north and west by about five minutes. The drive was supported by officials of Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg.

EMERGENCY vehicles en route to the hospital from suburbs north and west of Alexian Brothers must exit from I-90 at Thorndale Avenue, then backtrack on old Ill. Rte. 53 to Biesterfield Road. The proposed Biesterfield interchange would shorten the distance to the hospital by about three miles.

"I think this is tremendous," said Brother Felix Bettendorf, administrator of Alexian Brothers Hospital. "I feel the whole thing is due to the efforts of everyone who worked so hard in trying to put this through. It will probably be a life-saving measure."

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek also was pleased by the response to the appeal for the interchange. "I am gratified that both the federal and state authorities have seen fit to concur with the recommendation of the Village of Elk Grove and Alexian Brothers," Zettek said.

A spokesman for Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said the mayor was "very pleased" with the federal approval of the exit.

IN ADDITION to providing faster access to the medical center, Zettek said he believed the interchange would relieve traffic tieups around Elk Grove Village.

Yamanaka said the state transportation department must submit a general traffic study to the government to obtain federal funds for the project.

A study also will be done to determine the proper design for the interchange as well as environmental impact studies for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA also requires a special report on the encroachment of county forest preserve land involved in building the interchange.

Public hearings must be conducted on each phase of the project, Yamanaka said, and estimated it could take as long as three to four years to complete steps leading to construction of the interchange. He said the job could be finished in one construction season.

ON THE JOB. . .Teri Graczyk, left, and Dave Giles, two of the Elk Grove Village Police Dept.'s Community Service officers, begin their rounds. They are part of a program aimed at using civilians for some police jobs to allow regular policemen more time to perform law enforcement duties. The CSOs handle varied duties.

Civilians aiding police department

by JERRY THOMAS

Civilians have replaced Elk Grove Village policemen on the streets and in the station in performing chores ranging from directing traffic to filling out vandalism reports.

The three-month-old "Community Service Officer" program has freed policemen to devote more time to other police matters, according to Sgt. Eugene Brandt, supervisor of the training service division.

Brandt said the 12 CSOs "are taking a substantial work load off patrolmen."

The bulk of the CSOs' service is in the community, where they help youngsters cross streets to school, take animal complaints and handle minor accidents. In addition, the CSOs fill out vandalism and bicycle theft reports, take citizens' complaints and "generally do the hundreds of time-consuming community service duties usually performed by police," said Brandt.

ALMOST EVERY Northwest suburban police department has a cadet police program that employs young people in clerical work, communications, and non-criminal enforcement capacities.

The Elk Grove Village CSO program differs from cadet programs in taking CSOs out of the department and putting them into the community for street work, traffic control and enforcement of village ordinances and other noncriminal laws.

Elk Grove Village residents can easily identify CSOs with their light blue and navy uniforms with the police department shield. They use special three-wheel vehicles instead of patrol cars.

Some of the CSOs are using the program as a stepping stone to careers in law enforcement.

TERRY GRACZYK, 19, the only woman CSO on the department says her job is good training for full police work. "Someday I hope to be a patrolman and for now my job is both good experience and fun," she said. "It's a chance to meet lots of people and in a way be a contributing part of the community."

The only member of her family who is in law enforcement, Terry does not think it strange that she wants to be a police officer.

"Why not? Law has been a part of my life for years and I've admired policemen and the service they give to their community. I think for me there will be a good job in juvenile work or social work after I too gain more experience," she said.

She attends classes in criminal justice at Harper College, Palatine, and in her off-duty hours, can be found "at the station just talking or riding along on patrol with an on-duty policeman.

CHRISTOPHER BORN, a fellow CSO, is a former Hoffman Estates police cadet. He waited a year to be accepted on the Elk Grove Village police cadet program which was absorbed by the new program.

For Born being a CSO is "more than a good job." "I know some guys who put in two years time in a police academy to retrain for police work and then went out on the street and found out they either couldn't hack police work or just didn't like it. Classroom preparation is necessary but it does not show you what actual street or department work is like."

"Working in the department and getting out like we do, gives us a sample of what real police work is like," said Born. Born, 19, said he became interested in police work after talking to an Elk Grove Village policeman and his high school police counselor during his school days at Elk Grove High School. "I've never regretted it," he added.

The CSOs are involved in a continual training program as are all village patrolmen. The group has undergone a basic instruction period in police department operations.

Police Chief Harry Jenkins said the CSOs perform an important function as a police department community service because much of the department's work is service oriented.

Dist. 54 wrapup

for technicians

Salaries were approved for hearing and vision technicians in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 last week despite the protests of technicians who asked for a larger raise.

The Dist. 54 Board of Education approved a beginning wage of $3 per hour for vision and hearing technicians. The wage goes up to $3.15 after one year and $3.30 for the second year. The top of the pay scale is $3.90 per hour in the sixth year.

"We believe that virtually nothing was done to improve our status and that the board should postpone voting on this recommendation until further discussion is held," said Judy Konenman speaking for the technicians in the district.

She said the beginning wage has not been raised in three years and technicians are paid the same as lunchroom workers and supervisors "who put TV dinners in the ovens, see to it that trash is placed in receptacles and that some amount of order is maintained." The job of the technician requires one week of training in anatomy and use of testing equipment.

The board approved the wage scale by a 4-to-1 vote.

District boundary changed

A change in school boundary lines, which will add between 200 and 250 acres to Dist. 54, was approved by the board of education.

The change moves the boundary of the southeast portion of the district to Interstate 90. The boundary had followed township lines, but school officials thought it would be difficult to bus children across the superhighway.

The change removes a small portion of unoccupied farmland from Elk Grove Township Dis. 59 and High School Dist. 214 to Dist. 54 and High School Dist. 211. The three other boards of education have approved the change and will now petition the county school superintendent to make the correction.

Most of the land is in an unincorporated area, but a small portion is part of Elk Grove Village. It is now zoned for single-family housing. It will increase Dist. 54's assessed valuation by less than $500,000.

Candidate interviews begin

Eight persons who have filed for appointment to the board of education will be interviewed by board members Monday and Wednesday in closed session.

The board will select two of the applicants Oct. 3 to fill vacancies on the board created by the resignations of Donnie Rudd and Bonnie Hannon Sept. 7.

The applicants are Sherwood Spatz, 7875 Ramsgate Cir., Hanover Park; Dianne Marks, 369 Carleton Rd., Hoffman Estates; Dr. Edgar Feldman, 128 Emerson Dr., Schaumburg; James Rogers, 905 Williams Ct., Schaumburg; Edward J. Bedard, 350 Pierce Rd., Hoffman Estates; Adam J. Jelen Jr., 329 Baxter Ln., Hoffman Estates; Mark Renfro, 747 Kent Ct., Hanover Park, and Sherry Reynolds, 282 Ida Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Bus seats to be padded

Dist. 54 will spend up to $18,000 this year on padding for seats on 43 school buses as a safety precaution for elementary school children riding the buses.

One of the most frequent injuries to children on school buses is mouth and facial injuries caused when the bus makes a sudden stop. The board agreed to pad the backs of the seats of the buses to prevent the injury.

The buses are owned by Schaumburg Transportation Co., which contracts bus service to the district. Board member Margaret Pageler said she objected to paying for "capital improvements on somebody else's property." She said she would prefer to reimburse the bus company for the padding instead of having the district do the work itself.

'Clean the Medicine Cabinet'

Parents in Dist. 54 will be asked to participate in the "Clean the Medicine Cabinet" campaign sponsored by local school PTAs Oct. 1-7.

Jan Milella, from the Dooley School PTA, presented the campaign to the board of education Thursday. PTA chapters will be placing boxes in local pharmacies to collect bottles of old or unused drugs brought in by parents.

Mrs. Milella said one of the most common sources of drugs for children is from the family medicine cabinet and aspirin is most often the cause of overdoses among toddlers. PTAs in 24 of the district's 26 schools will participate in the campaign and all nine pharmacies in the area have pledged cooperation.

The pharmacies will dispose of the old medicine and pay the local PTAs two cents per bottle. Oct. 1-7 also is National Pharmaceutical Week.

Plan commission meeting Thursday

A special meeting of the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday at the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

The meeting has been called because last Thursday night's session was canceled for lack of a quorum of the commissioners.

Glaucoma test unit coming

A mobile testing unit sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Lions Club will visit Elk Grove Village Thursday, Oct. 3, providing free screening checks for glaucoma, a disease that causes blindness.

The testing mobile unit, which will be parked at the Park 'n' Shop shopping center, Arlington Heights and Higgins roads, will give the free test between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Residents are urged to take this opportunity to safeguard their eyesight and to prevent possible loss of sight, said Ron Foster, Lions Club president.

Licensed medical personnel do the screening while volunteers recruited by the Lions Club also will be on hand to help in the health program.

2 WIU bachelors

Completing degree requirements at Western Illinois University during the spring quarter were two Elk Grove Village residents.

Ann Caldwell, 451 Laurel St., received a bachelor of science teacher education degree and a bachelor of business degree was awarded to Frank L. Chapman, 526 Grosvenor Ln.

New Animal Hospital
opens in Old Town area

Dr. Thomas V. Johnson, Jr. is pleased to announce the opening of Olde Towne Animal Hospital at 109 South Roselle Road in Schaumburg. The animal hospital is located just south of Schaumburg Road and across the street from the Town Square Shopping Center. This area has been designated by the Village of Schaumburg as the Old Town district. In accordance with this plan, Olde Towne Animal Hospital is modeled after the plans of a late 18th century Colonial bake shop. Hospital hours will be 9-12 and 2:30-6 Monday through Friday, 9-1 Saturday, closed Wednesdays and Sundays. A 24 hour telephone is available at 894-2060. Doctor's hours will be by appointment. Dr. Johnson graduated from Iowa State University and interned one year at the Animal Medical Center in New York City. He has been in small animal practice in this area for the last four years.

'Longest hearing in history'

State board hears Whipple charges

by WANDALYN RICE

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Certification Board, in "the longest hearing in history," heard charges from Barbara Hickey, a former teacher at Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, that former director John Whipple allowed child abuse to occur at the school. The school offers special classes for emotionally disturbed children from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Hickey, who resigned from the school this fall after making charges against Whipple to County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office, admitted under cross-examination that she does not remember if she complained about child abuse at the school until after Whipple told her she would not receive a raise at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

Whipple, seated at a small table with his attorney, Paul Rettberg, listened intently to the testimony, frequently leaning over to whisper advice to Rettberg.

IN FOUR HOURS of testimony at the hearing Friday, Mrs. Hickey, who taught children with learning disabilities at the school from 1971 to 1974, also said she saw Whipple lead a boy through the halls of the school with a belt attached to the boy's belt loop as a leash.

She also said Whipple "threatened and harassed" her and that teachers in Dwyer smoked cigarettes in classrooms and used vulgar language in front of children.

In addition to Mrs. Hickey, the board heard two hours of testimony from Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent to Martwick. Martwick has suspended Whipple's certificate which allows him to work as a school psychologist in public schools and has recommended that the certification board revoke the certificate.

Board members agreed to continue the hearing on Oct. 7 in Chicago. Whipple will be allowed to continue to work as a psychologist until the hearing is completed.

Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer until July, when he requested a transfer to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems.

THE NORTHWEST EDUCATION Co-operative governing board, which runs Dwyer, has reaffirmed its faith in Whipple in a report following an investigation into the charges against him and other members of the Dwyer staff. In his testimony, Hennessey referred to the NEC report as a "whitewash."

Whipple also has been accused of violating another state law by practicing as a private psychologist without a state license. David Smith, hearing officer for the board, overruled at least temporarily an effort by officials from Martwick's office to introduce evidence that State's Atty. Bernard Carey is investigating that charge against Whipple. Carey has taken no action to prosecute Whipple.

Mrs. Hickey said that in February of this year, Whipple called her to his office at Dwyer and told her she should resign from the program because she couldn't get along with other staff members and that "I let my needs and values get in the way of running the program."

Mrs. Hickey testified that she thought Whipple's evaluation was unfair because "the closest Mr. Whipple came to watching me work in three years at Dwyer was when he stood outside my door for a few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, "I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to the paddling if the rules had been followed but "there were no two swats on the butt."

She said Michael Biskupski, who was first an aide in the program and later a teacher in the junior high school, "put the paddle over his head" and then brought it down to hit a child. She said, "There was a boy who was taller than Mr. Biskupski and it seems he was always in the hall getting it."

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

SHE SAID THAT after Whipple gave her the poor evaluation in February and suggested she resign, she called Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, to tell her about the evaluation and mentioned that there were "other things" at the school that needed Mrs. Kinney's attention.

She said she did not specify what "other things" Mrs. Kinney should look into because "there wasn't time" during that phone call.

She said the child Whipple walked on the "leash" made of a belt, was a child who "made quite a few animal sounds" and who was in therapy with Whipple. She said the boy "looked forward to Mr. Whipple's arrival and if he was late for any reason, he would become very upset."

She also said that when the boy was on the leash, he would walk on all fours and bark like a dog. "The boy did not seem to be dealing with anything but a fantasy situation," she said.

SHE SAID ON another occasion she saw a child riding a tricycle around the playground in the rain and when she asked the child's teacher about it, was told "he's in therapy with Mr. Whipple." She said she saw Whipple in the teachers' lounge getting coffee while the boy was on the playground.

aide "necking and ear biting" in a classroom in front of children.

On cross examination, she said she had not attempted to stop the pair because "I didn't have the authority" and that she had not reported it to Whipple because "I thought he knew about it."

Mrs. Hickey also testified that she once saw Whipple "slam a boy into the wall and hold him there while he cried," and that Whipple would sometimes introduce a child with a breast fixation to women visitors and that the boy would fondle the women's breasts.

Mrs. Hickey also testified that a "quiet" sign was hung on the door to the school gym whenever visitors were going to be in the school who might object to profanity, smoking or paddling.

Sex-case doctor down, but not out

by BARRY SIGALE

Dr. James G. Middleton, once a thriving, $60,000-a-year general practitioner, is living a life of relative destitution, picking tomatoes, sweet corn and cucumbers from a backyard garden for food and working as a janitor in return for free use of his former office as a home.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $350-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the driveway and throwing out trash in and around the building occupied by a printing firm and his small quarters.

A raid on his Des Plaines office by Sheriff's Police investigators produced pipebombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and artificial devices for sexual stimulation.

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze.

Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

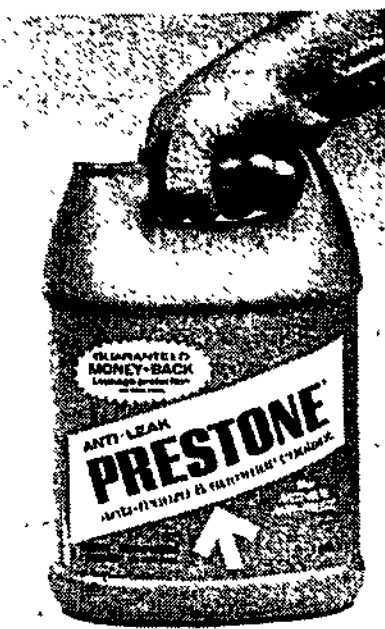

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than anti-freeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Citgo station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

Medical care sought for jailed youth

by JOANN VAN WYE and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A Palatine youth with a medical record of hepatitis is locked in County Jail, despite a court order for his hospitalization.

Jail officials insist the youth — Phillip Johnson, 17 — is "recovering" from the disease and cannot infect the jail's 1,300-prisoner population.

But, a medical statement included in the youth's court file recommends hospitalization and treatment for hepatitis, a contagious liver disease. Treatment at Cermak Hospital, which serves county jail, reportedly was ordered by a Circuit Court Judge when Johnson was arrested on vandalism charges Aug. 23 by Palatine police.

Johnson's three-week jailing without hospitalization was disclosed Friday during a speech before Wheeling Township Republicans by Peter Bensinger, GOP candidate for sheriff.

During his appearance in Arlington Heights, Bensinger referred to a "prisoner who should have gone to Cermak Hospital for diabetes and went instead to County Jail."

Johnson, 449 E. Baldwin Rd., Palatine, "is sick and I want treatment for him," his mother, Billie Johnson, said Saturday. "They figure he was in trouble before and just threw him in jail."

"I'm not satisfied he has hepatitis," Sullivan said. "He may have. I want to see what is being done and whether it's dangerous."

AFTER JOHNSON WAS arrested by Palatine police, a fire department ambulance driver, two policemen and another arrested youth were inoculated against possible hepatitis and the Palatine jail was sanitized.

Johnson was arrested after he left "against medical advice" Alexian Brothers Medical Center Aug. 25. The youth entered the hospital Aug. 5 for treatment of hepatitis and a liver ailment after the Cook County State's Attorney's office agreed to delay his arrest.

"We put him in the hospital because we knew he was sick," his mother said. "When he was picked up, it was infectious, but it's not now."

Johnson was taken to county jail on the day of his arrest, his mother said.

Palatine police said the youth was transported in an ambulance to Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove Village. But, hospital officials told The Herald that Johnson was not admitted or treated on Aug. 28 or 29.

FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER his arrest, on Sept. 12, Johnson received a physical examination at Cermak Hospital. Lad Alfaro, jail paramedics supervisor, said Johnson's medical record, with a first entry of Sept. 12, indicates that he entered the jail "at the earliest" Sept. 11.

Another spokesman at the jail told The Herald on Friday that Johnson was not a jail prisoner.

Tests at Cermak on Sept. 12 and Sept. 18 showed a "liver problem" but not hepatitis, Alfaro said.

A separate test that is dated Sept. 12 called for hospitalization and hepatitis treatment. The test result, reported by Dr. E. J. Kelleher, director of psychiatric services for the county, is included as a signed statement in Johnson's court file. Kelleher also recommended out-patient psychiatric treatment.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

"It takes a fire in an apartment building and smoke coming up the exit stairs to give you a second thought about living on the 10th floor of a high-rise," said Mrs. Kris Peters.

She and her husband were among the many Old Madrid residents who evacuated the 14-story complex early Friday when a two-alarm fire broke out in a third-floor apartment. Residents on the upper floors were aroused from their sleep by the sound of breaking glass and the smell of smoke.

THE FIRE, which was contained in Apt. 314 of the Old Madrid complex, 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine, caused an estimated $6,000 damage.

John Paynter, who occupied the apartment, was the only person injured in the blaze. He was treated at Northwest Community Hospital for smoke inhalation and first-degree burns.

A Palatine Fire Dept. spokesman said the cause of the fire is undetermined. Arson is not suspected.

"This is the first high-rise we've ever lived in, and I never thought about how we'd get to safety if a fire ever broke out in this building before today," Mrs. Peters said.

Residents on the upper floors found the elevators shut off automatically because of the fire and were hesitant to take the stairs because of fear of being overcome by the smoke, Mrs. Peters said.

"The worst thing is not to know where the fire is or where the smoke is coming from," said Sherry Casapubias, who lives on the ninth floor.

"When we saw the fire engines from other suburbs pull up to the building, we rushed down the stairs. We thought that the fire must have been a big one."

ALTHOUGH THE Palatine Fire Dept. answered the fire call at 6:50 a.m. with four engines, fire departments from Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows also sent men and equipment.

Khalid Mohammed was aroused from his sleep when he heard firemen breaking the windows to get into the apartment next door to his. A fireman led him and other third-floor (Continued on Page 5)

FIREMEN INSPECT the old interior of the third floor Old Madrid apartment that caught fire early Friday. Extensive smoke damage was done to the apartment and extensive fire damage to the bedroom where the fire began. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Race track housing plan on agenda

Madison Square Garden officials tonight will present their plans for a huge housing development next to the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Preliminary plans show a 5,716-unit housing project which includes townhouses, condominium apartments and a 32-story building. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

O. V. Anderson, chairman of the special joint meeting of the Arlington Heights Village Board and plan commission which will hear the proposal, said only housing plans will be discussed.

He said Madison Square Garden officials are preparing a list of reasons why they believe the village should extend the annexation agreement which expires Oct. 20. A public hearing is scheduled on that matter for Sept. 30 at the village hall.

A FIVE-YEAR extension is needed, according to the New York-based firm, to give more time to complete plans for the development.

Under the annexation agreement, building permit fees and inspection fees are frozen at their 1969 level. Dozens of other considerations were given when the race track complex was annexed in 1969, including building heights and other requirements.

Homeowners in the area of the race track already are joining forces to attend the Sept. 30 meeting. A newsletter sent out last week to residents of the Westgate Civic Assn. asked that the 1,000 homeowners in the Arlington Heights subdivision attend the meeting. Some Rolling Meadows officials and homeowners also are concerned about the development.

YMCA government unit meets Tuesday

The Palatine Buehler YMCA will conduct the first meeting of its Youth and Government Group on Tuesday, Sept. 24, at 7 p.m.

The group will work on plans for a trip to Springfield, and a visit to the Illinois State House and Senate Chambers. The YMCA is located on Countryside Drive and Northwest Highway.

State OKs Harper second campus

Harper College in Palatine has received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to buy land for a second campus in Arlington Heights.

The ICCB, meeting in Macomb Friday, authorized Harper's board of trustees to buy the 146-acre site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights.

The approval of the ICCB will probably mean a referendum in the next few months in which the Harper board will ask voters to authorize funds for purchase of the land.

College officials said Saturday that no timetable has yet been set up for a referendum, but that the college board will be discussing that in the next several weeks.

IN ADDITION, college officials said William Kelly, president of the board, will attend the Arlington Heights Village Board meeting Oct. 7 to notify that board of the ICCB action. The village board has set aside the proposed site for the college on its zoning plan and has said it wants to be kept informed about the college's progress in buying the land.

In taking the action Friday, the ICCB upheld a recommendation from its staff that allowing Harper to buy the land would be "prudent" because enrollment projections indicate the college will outgrow its original site at Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine by 1990.

Harper officials have said that they want to buy the land now but would not build on it unless enrollments live up to projections. The college will have to return to the ICCB for approval before it will be able to build on the land.

Certification board hears testimony against Whipple

Saturday he has no authority to place the youth in Cermak Hospital, which is controlled by the Hospital Governing Commission.

ALFARO SAID Johnson's case is not "unusual." "We get 300 prisoners a day. About 100 come with orders from judges for hospitalization. We'd have to have Presbyterian-St. Luke's (Hospital) for them all."

Cermak Hospital has 70 beds and on Friday only one was vacant, Alfaro said.

Prisoners with court orders for hospitalization are sent to Cermak for "reevaluation," Alfaro said. "The judges play doctor. We don't know what they tell the judge. We completely check their record."

Johnson "doesn't have anything you'd call infectious. He's on the road to recovery. All you can do is rest and take vitamins," Alfaro said. The youth is in a single cell in a "holding area," for prisoners who cannot perform jail work, Alfaro said. Cermak physicians are "twice as alert" for possible infectious diseases like hepatitis because "we have 1,300 people here."

ACCORDING TO ALFARO, Johnson was reexamined Friday and "there's still nothing. The lab reports came back okay."

Johnson was arrested in June after a break-in at Busch's Parts and Services, 137 S. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Police answered a burglar alarm that was triggered when a building window was broken. Police found no identification or stolen goods with Johnson when he was arrested.

Johnson also is charged with a June 21 vandalism incident at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant, 820 E. Northwest Hwy. An estimated $500 in damage to a ceiling, cash register, safe and desk was reported after a burglary attempt.

FIREMEN HAD TO break the window of a third floor apartment to let smoke out. Debris from the interior was tossed out into the parking lot of the Old Madrid Apartment complex on Hicks Road in residents with a torch through the dark hallway and down the stairs to the ground floor.

Palatine. The occupant of the apartment was treated at a nearby hospital for burns and smoke inhalation.

"I consider myself lucky that I live on the third floor and can always jump out the window if I can't get out any other way," he said. "I think the fire gave everyone a little scare, and got everyone thinking about how they should be more careful."

At least one resident had given some thought to escaping from a burning building. Mrs. Casappubias mentioned that she had recently seen a television movie, "Terror on the 40th Floor," about people trapped in a burning high-rise.

"That movie scared me good, and this morning's fire scared me a little too. But, I would still live on an upper floor of a building. These things are bound to happen," she said.

Parks to ask Westbury developers for more land

A land planner for the Palatine Rural Park District will ask developers of the Westbury project in Hoffman Estates to donate more usable recreation land to the park district.

Backers of the 497-acre residential and commercial development have offered to donate 75 acres to the district but planner Alan Caskey said three-fourths of the land is best suited for lakes and water retention.

The project, located within the Palatine Rural Park District boundaries, is currently being reviewed by the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission. It will be built by Meridian Development Co., which purchased the land from the assets of the bankrupt City Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago.

Planner Alan Caskey of ARC Associates will present his recommendations on the plans at a Palatine Rural Park District meeting at 7 p.m. today at the Prince of Peace Church, 1190 N. Hicks Rd. in Palatine.

CASKEY WILL recommend that Westbury developers "encourage their land planner to make more usable open space available to the district," and that the open space be graded and seeded before it is given to the park district, Caskey said.

Caskey said after reviewing the Westbury plans, three-fourths of the 75 acres of open-space land is comprised of water retention land that is more suitable for lakes, fishing and skating areas.

Caskey said the park district needs land that is more suitable for the construction of recreation facilities like baseball diamonds, swimming pools, tennis courts, and fieldhouses.

The Palatine Rural Park District has the option of agreeing to develop parks in the Westbury development. If it chooses not to develop the lands, then a preannexation agreement between the Westbury developers and the Village of Hoffman Estates would allow Hoffman Estates to decide who should develop the park land.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Mayor Virginia Hayter would like to see the Hoffman Estates Park District develop the open-space land in Westbury, "so that the village and park district boundaries and jurisdiction would both be in Hoffman Estates — and not in two different towns," she said.

But, Palatine Rural Park District officials are "interested" in the Westbury development, according to rural park district Comr. Eugene Dorsch.

"I'm certain that the park district could fund the development of the open space in Westbury because the development will no doubt generate enough funds to the park district to do it. I don't see any reason why we shouldn't develop the area for parks," Dorsch said.

Based on the 1974 tax rate of the Palatine Rural Park District, Richard Adashech, executive president of the Allister Construction Co. said the Westbury development would probably generate $75,000 in taxes each year to the rural park district.

A DECISION on whether or not the Palatine Rural Park District will develop in Westbury parks could be stalled until the end of the year. Rural park board members may choose to wait on the decision until they and Palatine Park District officials can decide if the two park districts will merge.

A merger between the Palatine Park District and the Palatine Rural Park District would mean the formation of a consolidated park district board that could decide not to develop the Westbury land.

"To avoid the confusion, the Palatine Rural Park District could wait until a decision on the merger is made in December before it decides on the Westbury project," said Roger Bjorvik, Palatine Rural Park District attorney.

Dorsch said "the rural board should carry on as an independent board," as it still is, "and function in the way it feels is best for the people in the district."

"I think a decision on this Westbury development could be made before the end of the year. We've just got to sit down with the developer and his planner and talk about what are the recreational needs of the people, and how we can work this out. And I think that we can," Dorsch said.

Palatine Hills Mall Italian cafe approved

Plans for a restaurant specializing in pizza and Italian food in the Palatine Hills Mall, Northwest Highway and Smith Street, have been approved by the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals.

The zoning board voted unanimously Thursday to grant a special-use permit to Terra Developments Inc., the owner of the property, for the construction of a Barro's Pizza. Barro's Pizza is a family-owned chain of 24 restaurants on the West coast. The proposed Barro's Pizza would be the first in the Midwest and would be operated by James Sanello and Alfred Campa.

The Palatine Village Board will act on the zoning board's recommendation at a meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Salde St.

Other zoning matters referred to the village board for action tonight are:

- A petition from Immanuel Lutheran Church, 203 N. Bothwell St., for a variation to permit the construction of a combination bulletin board and bell tower. The zoning board has recommended approval.

- A request for a sign ordinance variation from Brunswick for its bowling alley on Northwest Highway. The zoning board has recommended denial.

- A variation for the construction of an addition to a house at 324 N. Schubert St. The zoning board has recommended approval.

'Long blue line' keys Conant's 18-0 victory

by KEITH REINHARD

Call them the long blue line. They must have looked endless to Wheeling Friday night.

Big holes, little holes, left side, right side, pass protection... the line did it all, and then some, in leading Conant to an impressive 18-0 triumph over the visiting Wildcats.

It was the second victory in a row for Ralph Losee's reved up Cougars. While some credit was due quarterback Bob Borczak and the guys he kept sending up the middle, the heroes in this Mid-Suburban League crossover battle had to be the ones up front.

Oh, yes, and most of them played defense, too. While Conant was amassing nearly 350 yards of total offense, the defense was limiting the opposition to a scant 15. The Cougars also collected 19 first downs while preventing the 'Cats from getting even one until the final stanza.

"They definitely deserve some credit for the job they did up there," a smiling Losee offered afterwards. "We tried a couple of times to be overly benevolent but that wasn't the line's fault. They did everything that was asked of them... and then some."

From right to left that long blue line went something like this: Kevin Koppari, Mark Tooren, Scott Triphahn, Jim Leohardt, Bob Danner, Rich Behringer and Mark Losee. They started off by moving things for Jim Stump. Following a Wheeling fumble two plays into the game, Jim Stump began benefitting from his blockers.

In five tries, Stump advanced 30 yards to within 10 of paydirt. Borczak scampered around the left side and was pushed out of bounds a time one. Stump took it in from there, four minutes and 36 seconds into the game.

Steve Stompanato

Stump was the Cougar bread and butter man through the first quarter. When he pulled up injured, admittedly, the line did not have to open up holes quite as big for his replacement — 5-foot-11, 125-pound dynamo named Steve Stompanato. The little guy proceeded to pile up over 100 yards and prime both of Conant's later TDs.

Late in the second quarter after the hosts had taken over at their own 35, Stompanato carried once for six and then for nine yards. Borczak then zeroed in on Mark Losee for 10 more through the air and ran for 22 on what was only to be a quarterback sneak for the first down.

Stompanato picked up 13 more down to the five and four more down to the one before Borczak went over with 17 seconds to go before halftime.

To open the third quarter, Conant went on a slow 41-yard march and fumbled, Dennis Bucalo recovering for the visitors at the Wildcat 25. Wheeling was pushed back and Mike Brzuszkiewicz kicked out of the end zone to about midfield.

Stompanato and runningmate Jim Allen took it quickly back down to the 30 where a Borczak pass was intercepted by Steve Smalley, who subsequently bobbled away possession, Koppari recovering for the hosts at the 12.

On the very next play, the Cougars fumbled the ball right back to Wheeling's Gregg Berkley. The 'Cats could go now-where again and were forced to kick. This time a penalty on the punting play went in favor of Losee's group. They took charge at the 30. A few plays later, when Borczak passed to Kevin Koppari he raced across the goal line.

That wrapped up scoring. Wheeling finally came up with a first down later in the period and Oscar Quesada broke loose for 18 yards.

It marked Wheeling's only earned penetration of Conant territory and was further helped by a 15-yard assessment down to the 15. The long blue line pulled together, however, to nip the threat and then opened a few more holes as the game finished up with the hosts in command.

SAXON PRESSURE. Giving Buffalo Grove quarterback Dave Smithern all he wants is linebacker Scott Scholtz of Schaumburg during action Saturday. Although the Saxons held down Smithern's passing, they couldn't contain Ben Orcutt, who ran for two touchdowns. The Bison won, 14-0.

Schaumburg's perfect string snapped

by KEITH REINHARD

The big "D" was for defense and the big "O" was for Orcutt.

Buffalo Grove meshed them together in just the right quantities and came up with a significant 14-0 triumph over visiting Schaumburg in the Mid-Suburban League Saturday.

In extending their own winning streak for the season to three games, the Bison halted a Saxon string at two and put up the first points registered against Schaumburg's stingy defense yet this season.

That was where the "O" came in... a splendid sophomore named Ben Orcutt who came up with the Grove's three biggest offensive plays of the day. The solid 5-foot-11, 170-pounder crossed paydirt twice, once in each of the first two quarters, and also launched a league record punt that was as much a turning point as any play in the game.

"We knew he could help us up on the varsity even before the season started," Buffalo Grove mentor Grant Blaney said of his versatile youngster. "He's just one of those rare athletes who can do just about everything in a seemingly effortless way."

It didn't take Orcutt long to solve Schaumburg's misery away. Six plays into the contest he broke open the middle for a 32-yard score that put the hosts on top to stay.

In the following period, he uncorked an astounding 62-yard boot with the wind on a third-down quick kick play. It set up an insurance Bison TD. Orcutt went over from the 10 to round out the day's scoring.

"With all respect to Ben and our offense, I'd really have to credit our defense for this win," Blaney added. "This team had scored pretty freely in their first two games and it took one fine effort from our defensive unit to turn the tables on them."

The Grove coach didn't single out any one player but cited defensive coaches Jon Hittman and Denny Riccio for their work.

Blaney also acknowledged the fact that Schaumburg lost its own quarterback early in the contest. "The kid they brought in (Ron Geels) did a nice job for them, but I know it had to put their team off stride with (Russ) Zonka out practically the whole game."

"He's our offense," shrugged Saxon coach Bob Ferguson of his 180-pound thrower, who pulled up lame on the second play of the game. "I'm not taking anything away from Buffalo Grove... they were a lot more ready to play than we were today... and Geels did the very best we could ask of him... but I think Zonka might have been the equalizer."

Penalties, a sluggish kicking game and miscues also took their toll of the visitors. After the Bison had scored on their opening series and Dave Smithern had kicked the extra point, Schaumburg went on a march that extended 64 yards. Geels picked up 23 on one sweep and Tom Martino stepping off 17 more up the middle.

Since they started at their own 33, the drive should have advanced to the Bison three but a couple of 15-yard penalties sandwiched in left Roger Elver attempting a 45-yard field goal. The Bison regained possession at the 20 when it fell short. This ended a good Saxon drive.

The 62-yard punt, erasing a 79-yard MSL record effort by Bill Breda of Schaumburg against Elk Grove in 1971, came in the windy second quarter. And even after being brought back out to the 20, it left Schaumburg in a hole.

When their offense stalled, the Saxons could only muster up an 11-yard punt to set up the Bison at the 28. Barry Schuster carried twice for 17 yards to set up Orcutt's score.

Again Smithern's EP kick was true and Blaney's bunch had their 14-0 lead with 2:32 to go before halftime.

A drizzle at intermission dampened the offenses on both sides in the second half and prompted three interceptions and four fumbles.

Schaumburg sustained one drive from its own 25 to the enemy 28, Geels connecting with Scott Mielke on one long pass and then seeing another dropped in the end zone on fourth down to quell the threat.

Buffalo Grove also had a couple of additional opportunities to pad their lead, but penalties ruined both drives.

Viking mistakes set up Grenadier comeback victory

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

There was no time left on the clock when Fremd tackle Jerry Parker scooped up an Elk Grove fumble and started the long, 70-yard run for the end zone.

Although he didn't make it, and if he had the touchdown would have had no effect on the final outcome, the fact that Parker's run generated the most excitement of the night for Fremd rooters is indicative of the Vikings' frustrations.

"Mistakes killed us again," Fremd head coach Joe Samojedny said in summing up his team's 21-9 loss to the Grens. "Elk Grove is not as devastating as Holy Cross (Fremd's 38-14 conqueror last week) but like Holy Cross they're very opportunistic and take advantage of every little mistake."

A mistake by Elk Grove, though, allowed Fremd to jump into the early lead in the first quarter. Dan Streich, waiting to punt, watched helplessly as the snap cleared his head by two feet. He recovered it in the end zone for a safety.

Following the free kick Fremd put their offense, named Rich Sharpe, into gear. Sharpe carried four times in the nine play drive and culminated it by sweeping around the left side for 17 yards and the touchdown.

"Sharpe is one fine running back," said Gren head coach Don Schnake. "He's the best in the league right now. A super back."

Sharpe took his lumps every time he carried the ball and Elk Grove needed gang tackles to bring him down every time. Whether blasting straight ahead or outturning the defense outside, Sharpe was in a class by himself. Of the 144 yards the Vikings picked up on the ground, Sharpe was personally responsible for 104 of them, collected in 25 trips into the line.

"Sharpe did everything for us tonight," Samojedny said. "Our whole offense was on his shoulders."

Elk Grove had some backs of their own who were not as brilliant individually as Sharpe, but collectively were more effective.

Perhaps chagrined at being in a 9-zip hole early in the second quarter, Elk Grove let Streich, John Willard and David King loose on the Fremd rushing defense and found it wanting. With the offensive line tearing open the holes Willard carried twice for 25 yards, King once for 35 yards and Streich finally blasted over from the one for the touchdown.

Elk Grove got the ball back moments later and stuck to the ground for nine consecutive plays. Then Schnake pulled a bit of trivia out of his playbook called the forward pass and Tom Allen found Willard alone for a 60-yard touchdown.

"Our man fell asleep in the secondary," Samojedny said, "and got whipped."

"Willard just ended up out in the open," Schnake said. "I don't know, maybe they weren't expecting a pass."

There were only three passes thrown by both teams all night, two of them complete. With the field wet from an early rain and the footing questionable, more of an air game might have been expected. Such was not the case, however, as both teams showed they were capable of moving the ball on the ground.

Fremd's second painful mistake was a fumble deep in their own territory that Chuck Piermarini recovered on the one yard line. Three plays later Streich had his second touchdown and the scoring for the night was complete.

"When you mention top defensive players," said Gren defensive coach Brendon Flynn, "number one is Piermarini. He's quick, he's intelligent and he hits. Several others, like Malinowski, Gennuso, Montemayor and Gulliksen were also outstanding tonight."

Fremd's two final offensive series, and final attempts to get back into the game, were both aborted by fumbles. And ironically the man who did so much for the Fremd offense, Sharpe, committed both turnovers.

The most devastating fumble came at the end of a 17 play drive that made it to the Gren six yard line. Sharpe carried 14 times for 53 yards and although the Elk Grove defense knew who was coming they could do little to stop him except get enough men on him to weigh him down.

Finally, on a fourth and three at the six, Sharpe was stacked hopelessly at the line of scrimmage when the ball squirted loose.

Hersey's 2nd half eruption ends Prospect's win streak

by ART MUGALIAN
In the post-game confusion and excitement following Hersey's 27-0 win over Prospect Friday night, the words of winning coach Joe Gliwa came across loud and clear.

"We're back on the track now," said Gliwa. "Our goal was one sound unit working as a team and we got it. We had a total effort both ways."

The Huskies treated their coach to a rousing victory on Prospect's home field, aided and abetted by the superb quarterbacking of junior Scott Topczewski, who tossed the ball 14 times for nine completions and 163 yards. "Top" hit Dave Carey for a touchdown aerial and he added a pair of scores himself on short TD gallops.

Topczewski showed a lot of poise out there again tonight," Gliwa said. "He's demonstrating steady improvement."

Also contributing to the Hersey attack were running backs Jeff Forster and Steve Block. Forster ripped the Knight defense for 90 yards on the ground, including one TD, and Block massed 42 yards total offense.

It was Carey, though, the Huskies called on when in need. The senior pass catcher nabbed five receptions for 108 yards.

"Bill Here is the primary target and Carey is the secondary target," explained Gliwa. "We know Dave would be open tonight."

But it wasn't exactly an easy win for Hersey, now 2-0 in the Mid-Suburban League and 2-1 overall. They led just 7-0 at halftime.

"I thought we outplayed them in the first half," said a dejected Dave Keefe, after his Knights dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten. "We had an excellent chance to win the game at halftime, but when they came back for the second half, it was bang-bang — just like that — and it was over."

Hersey's lead in the first half was the result of a time-consuming, 78-yard drive for a score the first time the Huskies had the ball. Topczewski completed three passes along the way, including a big gainer to Forster for 34 yards off a play-action fake. A crucial fourth-down quarterback draw netted three yards and a now set of downs at the Prospect 16, and five plays later, Topczewski snuck over from the one-inch line.

Prospect, led by senior signalcaller Mike Quade, had engineered an opening drive that ate up eight minutes of the clock and came within a whisker of putting the Knights on the scoreboard. Hard running by Jack Devero and Don Meyer fed the drive.

Aided by a 15-yard roughing the punter penalty, Quade staked out 62 yards of territory in 16 plays, finally moving down to the three-yard line of Hersey. But on fourth down, Quade tried to hit Jim Wright over the middle in the end zone and Huskie cornerback Pete Fullerton picked it off. Fullerton returned the ball to the 22 of Hersey, where Topczewski began the only scoring drive of the first half.

"We felt we should have been on the board a few more times in the first half," said Gliwa, who watched an interception and a couple costly officials' calls ruin any other scoring opportunities his team may have had.

"But in the second half we did what we wanted to do," the coach continued.

The Huskies took the second-half kickoff and marched to paydirt in eight quick plays, clicking off 61 yards in the process. Topczewski hit Carey for a 20-yard gain over the middle on a key third-down play, putting the ball at the Prospect 38.

Forster tore off a couple big gainers on the ground and "Top" found Carey again for a diving catch at the 10. From there it was Forster off tackle for eight, followed by Topczewski's touchdown plunge on the QB draw.

"The second half was all theirs," said Keefe after the game. "They scored and we fumbled right away, and they came back to score again."

After Hersey's Paul Cortes fell on a Don Meyer fumble, the Huskies stormed right back into the end zone. On the second play from scrimmage from the Prospect 44, Topczewski looked once again for Carey. The split end gathered in the perfect strike over the middle, broke a couple tackles and rambled home.

Hersey's last score came just three minutes later after a Prospect punt. An 18-yard pass to Carey and a roughing-the-passer infraction helped advance the ball to the Knights' 45. From there, Forster got the call and he barreled for the TD, shedding numerous tackles along the way.

"They just outplayed us," said Keefe, "but it certainly would have been a lift for us to get that first score. I would have liked to have seen what would have happened if we had taken a lead."

But six turnovers — four fumbles and two interceptions — crippled the Knight offense.

Gliwa was overjoyed with his team's performance, particularly after the intermission when they scored 20 points in just five minutes.

Pirates lose 3rd straight; 'Loose Falcons' win 42-26

by DON FRISKE
Fred Lussow and Arv Herstedt are two puzzled football coaches.

Lussow doesn't need to worry about his bewilderment, as long as his Forest View Falcons keep on winning.

Herstedt, on the other hand, has an entirely opposite type of confusion. His Palatine Pirates haven't won a game yet and he can't seem to find the answer for this.

Lussow's Falcons beat the Pirates, 42-26, at Palatine on Friday night. It was the third straight win for the Falcons, and the third straight loss for the Pirates.

"I just can't put it in my mind," said Lussow, referring to his team's winning ways. "They're (the Falcons) just a happy-go-lucky, loose group of individuals, working as a unit."

Herstedt said somewhat the same thing, but the tone of his voice made the difference.

"We have to analyze this situation and see if we can come up with an answer," the Palatine coach said.

Lussow doesn't need any answers. He's happy with the way things are going for his team now, and answers to his puzzlement might not be to the Falcons' advantage.

"Last year we pressed too much which caused mistakes," commented Lussow. "We have more confidence in our units this year."

Pirate quarterback Mike McCostlin dropped back to pass, looking for one of the two receivers that were going out on the right side.

Mike Oldenburg, Falcon defensive end, came in fast on McCostlin, hitting him on his blind side.

The ball popped from McCostlin's hands. Falcon Jim Forssander picked up the fumble and carried it in for the touchdown, a 50-yard return.

"McCostlin was supposed to have drop-back protection on that play from the backs, but he didn't get it," explained Herstedt. "That play hurt us more than anything else."

The Falcons had opened the scoring on the first play of their second set of downs. Jim Petran hit Neil Schmidt with a screen pass over the line which Schmidt turned into a 55-yard scoring play.

The Pirates came back less than two minutes later on a 29-yard run by Kevin McWard. McCostlin carried in the two-point conversion, giving the Pirates their only lead of the evening, 8-7.

With 13 seconds left to go in the opening quarter, Petran hit Schmidt again. This time the pass covered 27 yards and the Falcons had the lead for good.

Dave Matzi scored for the Falcons in the second quarter, a minute before Forssander's fumble recovery.

The Pirates came out in the second half and scored on a three-yard pass from McCostlin to Jim Popp. The score came just two minutes into the half, putting them two touchdowns behind again.

Another mistake, however, quickly buried them again.

This time it was an interception that all but put the game away for the Falcons. Ed Ernest picked off the errant Pirate pass, and returned it 62 yards to the Pirate eight.

Petran eventually took the ball in on a sneak from the one. Greg Jacobs kicked one of his six extra-point conversions and the Falcons led, 35-14, with 5:35 left in the third quarter.

Defense has been the Pirates' biggest problem so far this year.

"These guys have played this split-four defense for 20 games now," explained Herstedt, "and they still sometimes play like they don't understand it."

To make matters worse for the Pirate defense, the Falcon offense they faced has been awesome.

The Falcons have scored 110 points in their first three games, their biggest output so far coming against the Pirates.

Both teams did well offensively, the Falcons gaining 418 total yards, the Pirates, 366.

Petran has yet to be dumped, a credit to both him and his offensive line.

"He's had real good protection, but he also gets rid of the ball quickly," said Lussow.

Herstedt feels strongly that his team will do some winning of their own, even though injuries continue to hurt them. They play Arlington Friday night.

The Falcons will be playing Elk Grove, both teams with a perfect 3-0 record.

"We'll have no trouble getting up for that one," said Lussow of the natural rivalry between the two schools.

Sex-case doctor down, but not out

by BARRY SIGALE

Dr. James G. Middleton, once a thriving, $60,000-a-year general practitioner, is living a life of relative destitution, picking tomatoes, sweet corn and cucumbers from a backyard garden for food and working as a janitor in return for free use of his former office as a home.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $350-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the driveway and throwing out trash in and around the building occupied by a printing firm and his small quarters.

A raid on his Des Plaines office by Sheriff's Police investigators produced pipebombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and artificial devices for sexual stimulation.

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze.

Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than antifreeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Citgo station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

"They have the antifreeze but they

Medical care sought for jailed youth

by JOANN VAN WYE and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A Palatine youth with a medical record of hepatitis is locked in County Jail, despite a court order for his hospitalization.

Jail officials insist the youth — Phillip Johnson, 17 — is "recovering" from the disease and cannot infect the jail's 1,300-prisoner population.

But, a medical statement included in the youth's court file recommends hospitalization and treatment for hepatitis, a contagious liver disease. Treatment at Cermak Hospital, which serves county jail, reportedly was ordered by a Circuit Court judge when Johnson was arrested on vandalism charges Aug. 23 by Palatine police.

Johnson's three-week jailing without hospitalization was disclosed Friday during a speech before Wheeling Township Republicans by Peter Bensinger, GOP candidate for sheriff.

During his appearance in Arlington Heights, Bensinger referred to a "prisoner who should have gone to Cermak Hospital for diabetes and went instead to County Jail."

Johnson, 449 E. Baldwin Rd., Palatine, "is sick and I want treatment for him," his mother, Billie Johnson, said Saturday. "They figure he was in trouble before and just threw him in jail."

"I'm not satisfied he has hepatitis," Sullivan said. "He may have. I want to see what is being done and whether it's dangerous."

AFTER JOHNSON WAS arrested by Palatine police, a fire department am-lance driver, two policemen and another arrested youth were inoculated against possible hepatitis and the Palatine jail was sanitized.

Johnson was arrested after he left "against medical advice" Alexian Brothers Medical Center Aug. 25. The youth entered the hospital Aug. 5 for treatment of hepatitis and a liver ailment after the Cook County State's Attorney's office agreed to delay his arrest.

"We put him in the hospital because we knew he was sick," his mother said. "When he was picked up, it was infectious, but it's not now."

Johnson was taken to county jail on the day of his arrest, his mother said.

Palatine police said the youth was transported in an ambulance to Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove Village. But, hospital officials told The Herald that Johnson was not admitted or treated on Aug. 28 or 29.

FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER his arrest, on Sept. 12, Johnson received a physical examination at Cermak Hospital. Lad Alfaro, jail paramedics supervisor, said Johnson's medical record, with a first entry of Sept. 12, indicates that he entered the jail "at the earliest" Sept. 11.

Another spokesman at the jail told The Herald on Friday that Johnson was not a jail prisoner.

Tests at Cermak on ept. 12 and Sept. 18 showed a "liver problem" but not hepatitis, Alfaro said.

A separate test that is dated Sept. 12 called for hospitalization and hepatitis treatment. The test result, reported by Dr. E. J. Kelleher, director of psychiatric services for the county, is included as a signed statement in Johnson's court file. Kelleher also recommended out-patient psychiatric treatment.

Sheriff Richard Elrod, the official responsible for county jail operations, said

'Never thought of safety...'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

"It takes a fire in an apartment building and smoke coming up the exit stairs to give you a second thought about living on the 10th floor of a high-rise," said Mrs. Kris Peters.

She and her husband were among the many Old Madrid residents who evacuated the 14-story complex early Friday when a two-alarm fire broke out in a third-floor apartment. Residents on the upper floors were aroused from their sleep by the sound of breaking glass and the smell of smoke.

THE FIRE, which was contained in Apt. 314 of the Old Madrid complex, 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine, caused an estimated $6,000 damage.

John Paynter, who occupied the apartment, was the only person injured in the blaze. He was treated at Northwest Community Hospital for smoke inhalation and first-degree burns.

A Palatine Fire Dept. spokesman said the cause of the fire is undetermined. Arson is not suspected.

"This is the first high-rise we've ever lived in, and I never thought about how we'd get to safety if a fire ever broke out in this building before today," Mrs. Peters said.

Residents on the upper floors found the elevators shut off automatically because of the fire and were hesitant to take the stairs because of fear of being overcome by the smoke, Mrs. Peters said.

"The worst thing is not to know where the fire is or where the smoke is coming from," said Sherry Casapubias, who lives on the ninth floor. "When we saw the fire engines from other suburbs pull up to the building, we rushed down the stairs. We thought that the fire must have been a big one."

ALTHOUGH THE Palatine Fire Dept. answered the fire call at 6:50 a.m. with four engines, fire departments from Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove and Rolling Meadows also sent men and equipment.

Khalid Mohammed was aroused from his sleep when he heard firemen breaking the windows to get into the apartment next door to his. A fireman led him and other third-floor

Population up only 420 since 1970

Rolling Meadows has only 420 more residents now than in 1970, according to preliminary totals from the U.S. Census Bureau.

Because the city will have less than 20,000 population when the final totals are in, there will be no redistricting to increase the number of aldermen on the city council.

Preliminary totals of a special census finished last week show the city's population as 19,598, compared to 19,178 recorded in 1970. Final reports, due in 60 days, may add as many as 200 more persons, census bureau officials said.

Allowing a 600-person increase in population, the city has gained only three per cent in four years. That gain will produce a 3 per cent hike in city rebates for income and motor fuel taxes, which currently amount to about $17,000 monthly. The gain will be about $510 per month, or $6,120 per year. The special census will cost about $8,000.

SOME CITY officials had predicted the census would show a 25,000 population, enough to give the city home-rule status, which allows municipalities to levy new taxes and increases their bonding power.

When Betty O'Connor, special census supervisor, predicted Sept. 11 the total would be more in the 23,000 range, City Mgr. James Watson expressed disappointment, but still estimated the city would gain $3,400 per month in state tax rebates.

Any figure of 20,000 or higher would have required a redistricting of city wards to provide 14 aldermen instead of the 10 who currently serve. State statute specifies 10 aldermen for cities with populations between 15,000 and 20,000, and 14 for cities with populations of 20,000 to 30,000. City officials had begun consideration of how the redistricting could be accomplished, although formal discussions had not yet opened.

One reason for the minimal population increase, according to a letter sent to the city by Mrs. O'Connor, was a 1,000-person drop in the head count at Meadow Trace apartments. Since the 1970 census, one building in the complex has burned to the ground, and another was condemned after installation of a cloverleaf at Algonquin Road and Ill. Rte. 53 weakened its foundation. A recent fire left 16 units of a third building vacant.

State OKs Harper second campus

Harper College in Palatine has received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to buy land for a second campus in Arlington Heights.

The ICCB, meeting in Macomb Friday, authorized Harper's board of trustees to buy the 146-acre site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights.

The approval of the ICCB will probably mean a referendum in the next few months in which the Harper board will ask voters to authorize funds for purchase of the land.

College officials said Saturday that no timetable has yet been set up for a referendum, but that the college board will be discussing that in the next several weeks.

IN ADDITION, college officials said William Kelly, president of the board, will attend the Arlington Heights Village Board meeting Oct. 7 to notify that board of the ICCB action. The village board has set aside the proposed site for the college on its zoning plan and has said it wants to be kept informed about the college's progress in buying the land.

In taking the action Friday, the ICCB upheld a recommendation from its staff that allowing Harper to buy the land would be "prudent" because enrollment projections indicate the college will outgrow its original site at Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine by 1980.

Harper officials have said that they want to buy the land now but would not build on it unless enrollments live up to projections. The college will have to return to the ICCB for approval before it will be able to build on the land.

'Longest hearing in history'Certification board hears testimony against Whipple

by WANDALYN RICE

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Certification Board, in "the longest hearing in history," heard charges from Barbara Hickey, a former teacher at Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, that former director John Whipple allowed child abuse to occur at the school. The school offers special classes for emotionally disturbed children from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Hickey, who resigned from the school this fall after making charges against Whipple to County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office, admitted under cross-examination that she does not remember if she complained about child abuse at the school until after Whipple told her she would not receive a raise at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

Whipple, seated at a small table with his attorney, Paul Rettberg, listened intently to the testimony, frequently leaning over to whisper advice to Rettberg.

IN FOUR HOURS of testimony at the hearing Friday, Mrs. Hickey, who taught children with learning disabilities at the school from 1971 to 1974, also said she saw Whipple lead a boy through the halls of the school with a belt attached to the boy's belt loop as a leash.

She also said Whipple "threatened and harassed" her and that teachers in Dwyer smoked cigarettes in classrooms and used vulgar language in front of children.

In addition to Mrs. Hickey, the board heard two hours of testimony from Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent to Martwick. Martwick has suspended Whipple's certificate which allows him to work as a school psychologist in public schools and has recommended that the certification board revoke the certificate.

Board members agreed to continue the hearing on Oct. 7 in Chicago. Whipple will be allowed to continue to work as a psychologist until the hearing is completed.

Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer until July, when he requested a transfer to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems.

THE NORTHWEST EDUCATION Cooperative governing board, which runs Dwyer, has reaffirmed its faith in Whipple in a report following an investigation into the charges against him and other members of the Dwyer staff. In his testimony, Hennessey referred to the NEC report as a "whitewash."

Whipple also has been accused of violating another state law by practicing as a private psychologist without a state license. David Smith, hearing officer for the board, overruled at least temporarily an effort by officials from Martwick's office to introduce evidence that State's Atty. Bernard Carey is investigating that charge against Whipple. Carey has taken no action to prosecute Whipple.

Mrs. Hickey said that in February of this year, Whipple called her to his office at Dwyer and told her she should resign from the program because she couldn't get along with other staff members and that "I let my needs and values get in the way of running the program."

Mrs. Hickey testified that she thought Whipple's evaluation was unfair because "the closest Mr. Whipple came to watching me work in three years at Dwyer was when he stood outside my door for a few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, "I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to the paddling if the rules had been followed but "there were no two swats on the butt."

She said Michael Biskupski, who was first an aide in the program and later a teacher in the junior high school, "put the paddle over his head" and then brought it down to hit a child. She said, "There was a boy who was taller than Mr. Biskupski and it seems he was always in the hall getting it."

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

Medical care sought for jailed youth

Saturday he has no authority to place the youth in Cermak Hospital, which is controlled by the Hospital Governing Commission.

Cermak Hospital has 70 beds and on Friday only one was vacant, Alfaro said. Prisoners with court orders for hospitalization are sent to Cermak for "reevaluation," Alfaro said. "The judges play doctor. We don't know what they tell the judge. We completely check their record."

Johnson "doesn't have anything you'd call infectious. He's on the road to recovery. All you can do is rest and take vitamins," Alfaro said. The youth is in a single cell in a "holding area," for prisoners who cannot perform jail work, Alfaro said. Cermak physicians are "twice as alert" for possible infectious diseases like hepatitis because "we have 1,300 people here."

ACCORDING TO ALFARO, Johnson was reexamined Friday and "there's still nothing. The lab reports came back okay."

Johnson was arrested in June after a break-in at Busch's Parts and Services, 137 S. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Police answered a burglar alarm that was triggered when a building window was broken. Police found no identification or stolen goods with Johnson when he was arrested.

Johnson also is charged with a June 21 vandalism incident at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant, 920 E. Northwest Hwy. An estimated $500 in damage to a ceiling, cash register, safe and desk was reported after a burglary attempt.

Officials to unveil plans for race track housing

Madison Square Garden officials tonight will present their plans for a huge housing development next to the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Preliminary plans show a 5,716-unit housing project which includes townhouses, condominium apartments and a 32-story building. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

O. V. Anderson, chairman of the special joint meeting of the Arlington Heights Village Board and plan commission which will hear the proposal, said only housing plans will be discussed.

He said Madison Square Garden officials are preparing a list of reasons why they believe the village should extend the annexation agreement which expires Oct. 20. A public hearing is scheduled on that matter for Sept. 30 at the village hall.

A FIVE-YEAR extension is needed, according to the New York-based firm, to give more time to complete plans for the development.

Under the annexation agreement, building permit fees and inspection fees are frozen at their 1969 level. Dozens of other considerations were given when the race track complex was annexed in 1969, including building heights and other requirements.

Homeowners in the area of the race track already are joining forces to attend the Sept. 30 meeting. A newsletter sent out last week to residents of the Westgate Civic Assn. asked that the 1,000 homeowners in the Arlington Heights subdivision attend the meeting. Some Rolling Meadows officials and homeowners also are concerned about the development.

City won't demand a recount

Rolling Meadows has until Oct. 10 to demand a recount in the special census completed last week showing only about 600 new residents, but Mayor Roland J. Meyer said Friday the city probably won't bother.

Meyer said he has instructed Administrative Assistant Charles Green to bring the census results to the finance committee tonight to see what the committee recommends. "But I see no reason to take it any further," Meyer said.

The mayor said he was surprised, but not disappointed, in the city's failure to reach a population of 20,000 in time for its 20th anniversary in 1975. "I didn't anticipate we'd hit 25,000, but I thought it would be about 23,500," Meyer said. A preliminary report showed a 19,598 population, but U.S. Census Bureau officials have said the final total may add 200 persons to the total, Meyer said.

Home rule, which is granted to municipalities when their populations reach 25,000, allows additional authority for increasing bonding power and purchasing land. "But I don't think it will really make much difference in the operation of the city" that home rule was not achieved, Meyer said.

Wednesday, had been delayed several times from the original plan to hold it in March or April, in order to complete pending annexations and boost the count. Another factor in delays was a question of validity in the 1970 Brookwood apartment complex annexation. Cook County failed to recognize the annexation in maps because of a suggested lack of contiguous boundaries between the city and the Kirchhoff — W. Frontage roads site. The city completed annexation of parcels adjacent to the complex in May and June to substantiate a link.

The city annexed the Philippe subdivision, with about 300 homes, to include it in the count. Other properties built since 1970 and counted for the first time this year were Three Fountains condominiums, Georgetown apartments, Winthrop Village and Tall Oaks, Dawn-gate and Creekside subdivisions.

Roland J. Meyer

"SOME MUNICIPALITIES have been shooting for home rule, because they need the authority to levy more taxes," he said, adding that "more taxes are the only thing I've seen come out of home rule."

Meyer also said he is pleased the city will not have to redistrict from the current five to seven wards. State law specifies cities with populations exceeding 20,000 must have seven wards, with two aldermen from each. "I felt 14 aldermen would be very cumbersome to work with," said the mayor.

The census may show a need to shift some boundaries splitting the wards, said Meyer, but the changes would be minor, he said, and probably would not affect all wards.

a television movie, "Terror on the 40th Floor," about people trapped in a burning high-rise.

"That movie scared me good, and this morning's fire scared me a little too. But, I would still live on an upper floor of a building. These things are bound to happen," she said.

2 arrested after fight outside Woodfield

Two men, one of them from Schaumburg, have been charged in connection with a fight Thursday night outside the Lord & Taylor store in the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

Charged with disorderly conduct were Charles Montleon, 49, of 32 Westover Schaumburg, and James Nierman, 18, of Northlake.

They were arrested shortly after a reported altercation among three men in the mall area outside the store, police said.

Montleon, while at the police station, complained of chest pains and was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, for treatment.

Both men were released after posting $25 bond each pending appearances Oct. 23 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Vandals damage three autos at Woodfield

Three cars parked at the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg were damaged Saturday by vandals.

About $150 worth of damage was caused to a car owned by Robert Dabbert, 829 Shady Way, Arlington Heights, police were told. The vehicle was scratched with a sharp instrument.

Also scratched were cars owned by Robert Welsh, 425 Aspen Dr., Hoffman Estates, and James Skiff, who works at the shopping center and did not give police a home address. Damage to the Welsh vehicle was estimated to be $50, and to the Skiff car about $100.

words with the women before appearing on WMAQ's "Chicago Camera" show, broadcast live from the celebration outside the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 Gannon Dr. Several hundred persons attended the event.

"It was the biggest thrill of my life," sighed Mrs. Jenkins, 111 Main St., who also kissed Welk on the cheek.

"We didn't know if we'd even get to see him," said Mrs. Wilson, who also lives at the Main Street address.

"He looks younger on television, don't you think? Look at him, he just loves people," said Mrs. Jenkins, adding that Welk had thanked her for coming and had told her the audience was a "lovely" group of people.

THE FAMOUS bandleader was interviewed while dancing with Chicago Camera's Linda Alvarez to random bubbles floating by. Jerry G. Bishop also interviewed Welk in the show centering on the celebration of the 15th year since the incorporation of the village.

Television personality Dick Cavett did not appear as was recently publicized. Christopher Porterfield, who with Cavett authored the book "Cavett," also was a no-show. Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said he was told Cavett apparently did not like crowds.

The New Kingston Trio was on hand to entertain the audience, and Mrs. Jesse Jackson, wife of the head of Chicago's Operation PUSH, was interviewed on the television show.

While the show was being televised, spectators gathered around the Hoffman Estates Park District booth to watch "Miss Rusty" belly-dance in scanty dress in the goose-pimply weather to demonstrate a park district program.

Various community organizations had set up booths publicizing past achievements or displaying leaflets explaining their activities. A local band, Penny Royal; the Hoffman Hallmark Chorus; the Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Mount Prospect kitchen band provided music.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter planted a tree in commemoration of the anniversary. She told Bishop village officials will be planting a tree every year on the anniversary date.

SEVERAL LOCAL politicians were on hand including state representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, and State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Hayter told the crowd that people, not developers, make "great" communities. "People build communities. Developers build houses."

Free ice cream was available, and many youngsters took advantage of the offer even in the chilliness that hovered over the celebration.

"WE'RE HUNGRY, and ice cream is the only thing you can eat around here," said Doug Jacobs, 8, of 165 Cooper Rd.

Doug's father, Walter, said his children were excited from going through the police station and jail.

"It's (the celebration) real nice. I like it," said Vic Habisohn, 252 Englewood Rd., adding that it was never too cold to eat ice cream, while spooning a wedge of the treat into his mouth.

Habisohn said the reason he attended the celebration was because he has lived a long time in the village and knew some of the people involved in the festival.

Irene Petke, who once ran for village president, noted, "It's very, very good. It (the turnout) indicates people are interested in the village."

State OKs Harper second campus

Harper College in Palatine has received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to buy land for a second campus in Arlington Heights.

The ICCB, meeting in Macomb Friday, authorized Harper's board of trustees to buy the 146-acre site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights.

The approval of the ICCB will probably mean a referendum in the next few months in which the Harper board will ask voters to authorize funds for purchase of the land.

College officials said Saturday that no timetable has yet been set up for a referendum, but that the college board will be discussing that in the next several weeks.

IN ADDITION, college officials said William Kelly, president of the board, will attend the Arlington Heights Village Board meeting Oct. 7 to notify that board of the ICCB action. The village board has set aside the proposed site for the college on its zoning plan and has said it wants to be kept informed about the college's progress in buying the land.

In taking the action Friday, the ICCB upheld a recommendation from its staff that allowing Harper to buy the land would be "prudent" because enrollment projections indicate the college will outgrow its original site at Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine by 1980.

Harper officials have said that they want to buy the land now but would not build on it unless enrollments live up to projections. The college will have to return to the ICCB for approval before it will be able to build on the land.

Dist. 54 wrapup

for technicians

Salaries were approved for hearing and vision technicians in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 last week despite the protests of technicians who asked for a larger raise.

The Dist. 54 Board of Education approved a beginning wage of $3 per hour for vision and hearing technicians. The wage goes up to $3.15 after one year and $3.30 for the second year. The top of the pay scale is $3.99 per hour in the sixth year.

"We believe that virtually nothing was done to improve our status and that the board should postpone voting on this recommendation until further discussion is held," said Judy Koneman speaking for the technicians in the district.

She said the beginning wage has not been raised in three years and technicians are paid the same as lunchroom workers and supervisors "who put TV dinners in the ovens, see to it that trash is placed in receptacles and that some amount of order is maintained." The job of the technician requires one week of training in anatomy and use of testing equipment.

The board approved the wage scale by a 4-to-1 vote.

District boundary changed

A change in school boundary lines, which will add between 200 and 250 acres to Dist. 54, was approved by the board of education.

The change moves the boundary of the southeast portion of the district to Interstate 90. The boundary had followed township lines, but school officials thought it would be difficult to bus children across the superhighway.

The change removes a small portion of unoccupied farmland from Elk Grove Township Dis. 59 and High School Dist. 214 to Dist. 54 and High School Dist. 211. The three other boards of education have approved the change and will now petition the county school superintendent to make the correction.

Most of the land is in an unincorporated area, but a small portion is part of Elk Grove Village. It is now zoned for single-family housing. It will increase Dist. 54's assessed valuation by less than $500,000.

Candidate interviews begin

Eight persons who have filed for appointment to the board of education will be interviewed by board members Monday and Wednesday in closed session.

The board will select two of the applicants Oct. 3 to fill vacancies on the board created by the resignations of Donnie Rudd and Bonnie Hannon Sept. 7.

The applicants are Sherwood Spatz, 7875 Ramsgate Cir., Hanover Park; Dianne Marks, 369 Carleton Rd., Hoffman Estates; Dr. Edgar Feldman, 128 Emerson Dr., Schaumburg; James Rogers, 905 Williams Ct., Schaumburg; Edward J. Bedard, 350 Pierce Rd., Hoffman Estates; Adam J. Jelen Jr., 329 Baxter Ln., Hoffman Estates; Mark Renfro, 747 Kent Ct., Hanover Park; and Sherry Reynolds, 282 Ida Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Bus seats to be padded

Dist. 54 will spend up to $18,000 this year on padding for seats on 43 school buses as a safety precaution for elementary school children riding the buses.

One of the most frequent injuries to children on school buses is mouth and facial injuries caused when the bus makes a sudden stop. The board agreed to pad the backs of the seats of the buses to prevent the injury.

The buses are owned by Schaumburg Transportation Co., which contracts bus service to the district. Board member Margaret Pageler said she objected to paying for "capital improvements on somebody else's property." She said she would prefer to reimburse the bus company for the padding instead of having the district do the work itself.

'Clean the Medicine Cabinet'

Parents in Dist. 54 will be asked to participate in the "Clean the Medicine Cabinet" campaign sponsored by local school PTAs Oct. 1-7.

Jan Milella, from the Dooley School PTA, presented the campaign to the board of education Thursday. PTA chapters will be placing boxes in local pharmacies to collect bottles of old or unused drugs brought in by parents.

Mrs. Milella said one of the most common sources of drugs for children is from the family medicine cabinet and aspirin is most often the cause of overdoses among toddlers. PTAs in 24 of the district's 26 schools will participate in the campaign and all nine pharmacies in the area have pledged cooperation.

The pharmacies will dispose of the old medicine and pay the local PTAs two cents per bottle. Oct. 1-7 also is National Pharmaceutical Week.

WAITING FOR THE television show to begin are casted live the Hoffman Estates celebration of the 15th year since its incorporation. Residents were treated to free ice cream and viewed various displays and exhibits of achievements by local units.

Parks to seek more usable land

A land planner for the Palatine Rural Park District will ask developers of the Westbury project in Hoffman Estates to donate more usable recreation land to the park district.

Backers of the 497-acre residential and commercial development have offered to donate 75 acres to the district but planner Alan Caskey said three-fourths of the land is best suited for lakes and water retention.

The project, located within the Palatine Rural Park District boundaries, is currently being reviewed by the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission. It will be built by Meridian Development Co., which purchased the land from the assets of the bankrupt City Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago.

Planner Alan Caskey of ARC Associates will present his recommendations on the plans at a Palatine Rural Park District meeting at 7 p.m. today at the Prince of Peace Church, 1190 N. Hicks Rd. in Palatine.

CASKEY WILL recommend that Westbury developers "encourage their land planner to make more usable open space available to the district," and that the open space be graded and seeded before it is given to the park district, Caskey said.

Caskey said after reviewing the Westbury plans, three-fourths of the 75 acres of open-space land is comprised of water retention land that is more suitable for lakes, fishing and skating areas.

Caskey said the park district needs land that is more suitable for the construction of recreation facilities like baseball diamonds, swimming pools, tennis courts, and fieldhouses.

The Palatine Rural Park District has the option of agreeing to develop parks in the Westbury development. If it chooses not to develop the lands, then a preannexation agreement between the Westbury developers and the Village of Hoffman Estates would allow Hoffman Estates to decide who should develop the park land.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Mayor Virginia Hayter would like to see the Hoffman Estates Park District develop the open-space land in Westbury, "so that the village and park district boundaries and jurisdiction would both be in Hoffman Estates — and not in two different towns," she said.

But, Palatine Rural Park District officials are "interested" in the Westbury development, according to rural park district Comm. Eugene Dorsch.

"I'm certain that the park district could fund the development of the open space in Westbury because the development will no doubt generate enough funds to the park district to do it. I don't see any reason why we shouldn't develop the area for parks," Dorsch said.

Based on the 1974 tax rate of the Palatine Rural Park District, Richard Adashek, executive president of the Allister Construction Co. said the Westbury development would probably generate $75,000 in taxes each year to the rural park district.

A DECISION on whether or not the Palatine Rural Park District will develop in Westbury parks could be stalled until the end of the year. Rural park board members may choose to wait on the decision until they and Palatine Park District officials can decide if the two park districts will merge.

A merger between the Palatine Park District and the Palatine Rural Park District would mean the formation of a consolidated park district board that could decide not to develop the Westbury land.

"To avoid the confusion, the Palatine Rural Park District could wait until a decision on the merger is made in December before it decides on the Westbury project," said Roger Bjorvik, Palatine Rural Park District attorney.

Dorsch said "the rural board should carry on as an independent board," as it still is, "and function in the way it feels is best for the people in the district."

"I think a decision on this Westbury development could be made before the end of the year. We've just got to sit down with the developer and his planner and talk about what are the recreational needs of the people, and how we can work this out. And I think that we can," Dorsch said.

K-Mart, shopping center on agenda

Hoffman Estates officials tonight will continue consideration of a K-Mart store and shopping center proposed for a site near Golf Road and Gannon Drive.

The proposal from E. N. Maisel and Associates seeks to build the K-Mart and seven stores in an open mall on 18 acres east of the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

A portion of the land is not located within the village limits. The company has petitioned for annexation of that portion and for rezoning of the entire site for the commercial venture.

The shopping center would contain 177,000 square feet of usable space. Representatives of the company have said they would like to begin construction on the project this year and open the center by late summer, 1975.

Sales projections indicate $16 million could be generated annually from the complex, representatives said.

The hearing will be held in the council chambers of the municipal building. The regular village board meeting will follow the hearing at 8 p.m.

Car theft reported

A Barrington woman reported to Schaumburg police Saturday the theft of her 1974 car from the parking lot at the Woodfield Shopping Center, Ill. Rtes. 53 and 58.

Marjorie Squires told police the car, whose value was not immediately known, was taken sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday.

Sheffield group won't fight apartments

The Sheffield Park Homeowners Assn. has taken a stand against Schaumburg citizens' movement calling for an April 15 referendum to limit apartment development in the village.

The September issue of the association's newsletter explains members have voted not to join Timbercrest, Weathersfield, The Woods, Lancer Park and Meadow Knolls homeowners in their request for the special election. The Sheffield group believes the referendum proposal has "political overtones." The newsletter points out that the homeowners' group's constitution forbids political activity.

It also notes that the opposing groups were "leaning toward legal action" against the village, which Sheffield residents believe would damage the good will they have established with Schaumburg officials.

ASSOCIATION members emphasized too that they are not immediately threatened with high-density apartment developments as are other areas of the village.

"We elected not to join because our first duty is to Sheffield Park," Douglas McLemore, president of the homeowners' group, said.

The association, McLemore said, has earned respect through continued and long standing community involvement that cannot be "lightly risked."

The other groups have asked the village to call a referendum at the time of the spring village election in an effort to preserve "the single-family character" of Schaumburg. They object to dense-apartment zoning near single-family tracts.

New Animal Hospital
opens in Old Town area

Dr. Thomas V. Johnson, Jr. is pleased to announce the opening of Olde Towne Animal Hospital at 109 South Roselle Road in Schaumburg. The animal hospital is located just south of Schaumburg Road and across the street from the Town Square Shopping Center. This area has been designated by the Village of Schaumburg as the Old Town district. In accordance with this plan, Olde Towne Animal Hospital is modeled after the plans of a late 18th century Colonial bake shop.

Hospital hours will be 9-12 and 2:30-6 Monday through Friday, 9-1 Saturday, closed Wednesdays and Sundays. A 24 hour telephone is available at 894-2060. Doctor's hours will be by appointment. Dr. Johnson graduated from Iowa State University and interned one year at the Animal Medical Center in New York City. He has been in small animal practice in this area for the last four years.

Sex-case doctor down, but not out

by BARRY SIGALE

Dr. James G. Middleton, once a thriving, $80,000-a-year general practitioner, is living a life of relative destitution, picking tomatoes, sweet corn and cucumbers from a backyard garden for food and working as a janitor in return for free use of his former office as a home.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $350-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 989 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the driveway and throwing out trash in and around the building occupied by a printing firm and his small quarters.

A raid on his Des Plaines office by Sheriff's Police investigators produced pipebombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and artificial devices for sexual stimulation.

Middleton was projected as a Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde character, an image

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze.

Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than antifreeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Citgo station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

"They have the antifreeze but they

'Longest hearing in history'

by WANDALYN RICE

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Certification Board, in "the longest hearing in history," heard charges from Barbara Hickey, a former teacher at Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, that former director John Whipple allowed child abuse to occur at the school. The school offers special classes for emotionally disturbed children from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Hickey, who resigned from the school this fall after making charges against Whipple to County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office, admitted under cross-examination that she does not remember if she complained about child abuse at the school until after Whipple told her she would not receive a raise at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

Whipple, seated at a small table with his attorney, Paul Rottberg, listened intently to the testimony, frequently leaning over to whisper advice to Rottberg.

IN FOUR HOURS of testimony at the hearing Friday, Mrs. Hickey, who taught children with learning disabilities at the school from 1971 to 1974, also said she saw Whipple lead a boy through the halls of the school with a belt attached to the boy's belt loop as a leash.

John Whipple

She also said Whipple "threatened and harassed" her and that teachers in Dwyer smoked cigarettes in classrooms and used vulgar language in front of children.

In addition to Mrs. Hickey, the board heard two hours of testimony from Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent to Martwick. Martwick has suspended Whipple's certificate which allows him to work as a school psychologist in public schools and has recommended that the certification board revoke the certificate.

Board members agreed to continue the hearing on Oct. 7 in Chicago. Whipple will be allowed to continue to work as a psychologist until the hearing is completed.

Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer until July, when he requested a transfer to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems.

THE NORTHWEST EDUCATION Cooperative governing board, which runs Dwyer, has reaffirmed its faith in Whipple in a report following an investigation into the charges against him and other members of the Dwyer staff. In his testimony, Hennessey referred to the NEC report as a "whitewash."

Whipple also has been accused of violating another state law by practicing as a private psychologist without a state license. David Smith, hearing officer for the board, overruled at least temporarily an effort by officials from Martwick's office to introduce evidence that State's Atty. Bernard Carey is investigating that charge against Whipple. Carey has taken no action to prosecute Whipple.

Mrs. Hickey said that in February of this year, Whipple called her to his office at Dwyer and told her she should resign from the program because she couldn't get along with other staff members and that "I let my needs and values get in the way of running the program."

Mrs. Hickey testified that she thought Whipple's evaluation was unfair because "the closest Mr. Whipple came to watching me work in three years at Dwyer was when he stood outside my door for a few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, "I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple

Harper College in Palatine has received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to buy land for a second campus in Arlington Heights.

High construction costs blamed

Plan to expand Y delayed until spring

The board of directors of the Northwest Suburban YMCA has put off plans to start construction on a $1.6 million addition until next spring and may have to modify plans because of soaring construction costs.

Stephen Jurco, president of the YMCA's board of directors, said the board will meet late this week or the week after to review a financial report on the addition.

The YMCA had hoped to start construction of the 28,000-square-foot addition this fall, but rising construction costs have forced a setback in the expansion program.

IN A PREPARED statement, the board indicated it "did not think it fair to request contributions from the community with the decline in the economic climate."

Jurco said the delay does not mean the YMCA has abandoned its plans for the addition.

He said, however, the financial report on the feasibility of the addition may require modification of the overall plan.

"We may delay some phases of the addition initially if the cost of buying money is too high," he said.

ESTIMATED cost of the addition has jumped more than 25 per cent in the five months since the plans for the addition were announced last April.

"That's pretty scary," Jurco said.

He also explained that YMCA officials were hesitant to try to start construction in the fall because that would require tying up the parking lot during the winter.

Area residents have complained about traffic congestion in the neighborhoods. They believe the congestion is caused by a shortage of parking at the Y.

YMCA officials recently asked the city council to modify the parking requirements for the facility. However, they do not plan to lose any parking space because of the addition.

They said they will build the addition on stills. They also have made arrangements with a nearby office complex to use their parking facilities in the evening.

THE Y PLANS to build a new gymnasium with a running track, several basketball courts and handball courts and meeting rooms.

The organization plans to pay for the addition with a fund-raising drive in the community, contributions from groups within the Y and from regular membership fees.

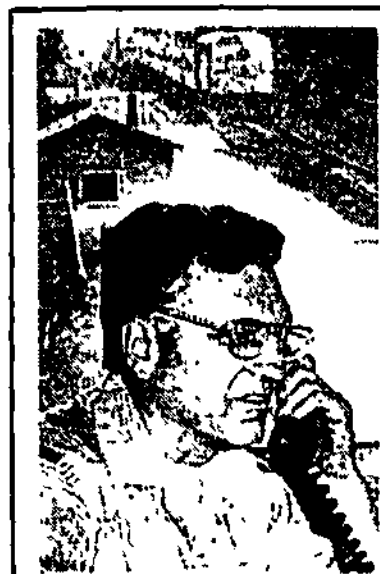

The proposed addition marks the second major expansion undertaken by the Y in recent years. The organization completed its third swimming pool in early 1971.

Robber with butcher knife takes $300

A robber, carrying a butcher knife, held up the Gulf Oil gas station, 1590 S. Busse Rd., Mount Prospect, Saturday night, escaping with $300 in cash.

Police said the man entered the station office about 7:30 p.m. and demanded money from the two attendants. He also threatened the two men and ordered them into a back room, police said.

The robber, last seen going south toward the intersection of Algonquin Road and Dempster Street, was described as white, aged 18 to 22, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 140 pounds, with a dark mustache. He reportedly had a nylon stocking over his head, dark bellbottom pants, platform shoes and a green parka coat, police said.

Looking for that special book?

The new bookstore at 103 S. Main St., "Books, etc.," offers an interesting service called "dial-a-book." Customers can telephone the store, request a specific book, have the cost put on a credit-card charge and receive the volume in the mail. Naturally, if the book is not in stock, it will be ordered and then sent.

"Shut-ins or very busy people may find the service very convenient," said Connie Schoeld, one of the shop's three proprietors. The other two are Dave Hayes and Hunter Haines.

The "etc." of "Books, etc." includes cassette tapes, book ends, posters and maps. There'll be a grand opening about Oct. 1.

ANOTHER NEW business in town is "The Half-Price Shoppe," 718B E. Northwest Hwy. It's in the shopping area on the highway that includes Carl's Pizza and Carpets by Ray and Sons.

"Half-Price" is a small shop filled with interesting, non-similar items. It has jewelry, clothing, toys, novelties — all sorts of things. And, apparently the merchandise will change constantly. A flatter telling about the store says all merchandise is half-price as a result of closeouts, overruns, bankrupt stock and surplus merchandise. It's open 9 a.m. to 5:30 Monday, Tuesday, Saturday; 9 to 9:30 Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and closed Sunday.

LEN KERBER, a member of the Board of Elders of St. Paul Lutheran Church, was selected to be a nominee at a Circuit meeting Sept. 25 at Trinity Church in Rolling Meadows. The Circuit nominees will elect one pastor and one Len currently serves on the Board of Governors of the Lutheran Laymen's League in the Northern Illinois District.

WESTBROOK SCHOOL is having a Fun Fair and Flick next Saturday, Sept. 28. The "flick" is "Shaggy," the story of a dog, to be shown from 10 to 11 a.m. The Fun Fair follows from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

At the Fair, there'll be booths with games, a bake sale, hotdog lunch. There'll also be a flea market with space for rent at $2.00 a section. To rent a space, call Darlene Lindstrom at 253-5587.

SPEAKING OF WESTBROOK, in an effort to get a slide projector for the school's resource center, Campbell's Soup labels are being collected. Campbell's provides audio-visual equipment for collections of massive amounts of labels.

Westbrook School is aiming toward gathering 10,000 labels by Dec. 31. Labels from any size cans of soup or beans will be accepted. Send them to the school with any Westbrook youngster, mail them to the school at 103 S. Busse Road, or call 437-5281 and they'll be picked up.

ARDYS WEISSENSTEIN, 1430 W. Lincoln Ave., has been accepted to attend Director's School for Mary Kay Cosmetics. She will spend one week in classes at Dallas, Tex. She has been with the company for two years.

Final hearing today on new city

Final testimony on the Prospect Heights incorporation petition is to be heard at 10 a.m. today before Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford in the Chicago Civic Center.

Jack Siegel, attorney for the objector — the Village of Arlington Heights — is to finish presenting his evidence that the proposed boundaries of the new municipality would interfere with Arlington Heights' municipal services such as water and sewer facilities.

Also scheduled for today is testimony presented by Robert F. Meersman, who represents eight property owners located west of Schoenbeck and south of Hintz roads. The property owners have petitioned for annexation to Wheeling.

After all testimony is presented, Comerford either will approve the petition, dismiss it or request that the boundaries be altered by the petitioners, the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn.

Approval of the petition would mean a referendum would be held to decide whether the new municipality would be formed.

Comerford is not expected to make his decision today.

Man, 52, hit by train, loses both legs

A 52-year-old Chicago man had both his legs amputated Friday after he was hit by a train near the Cumberland station in Des Plaines.

Earl Long, 848 W. Madison St., was taken to Holy Family Hospital by Des Plaines firemen after the accident occurred about 5 p.m. A spokesman at the hospital said Long was in guarded condition in the intensive care unit Sunday. The spokesman said surgery was performed to amputate both of Long's legs above the knee. The ring finger of his left hand also was amputated.

Des Plaines police said Long was apparently hit by an eastbound Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train on the north track. Police said they have no indication as to why Long was on the track at the time.

Commuter train service was interrupted by the accident for about 20 minutes during the Friday evening rush hour.

First of three major road programs

$209,000 Lincoln Street repair job gets under way

The first of three major Mount Prospect road-repair programs is under way, and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said work will continue "until the snow starts to fly."

Work on the road projects was delayed by the nine-week cement truck drivers' strike this summer. The strike set construction schedules back and contractors are trying to finish their projects before cold weather stops their work.

The largest village street project, the upgrading of Lincoln Street from Busse Road to Meier Road, began two weeks ago. Village engineering department officials said the project is about 10 per cent completed.

THE WORK includes repaving the street with widening, curbs and gutters and drainage. It is a continuation of earlier improvements on Lincoln Street east of Busse Road.

Milburn Bros. Inc., Mount Prospect, anticipates the work will be completed this year unless weather problems cause further delays. The project, which is being financed with state motor fuel tax funds, will cost $209,738.

Two major repaving projects, also to be financed with motor fuel tax funds, are scheduled to begin the first week in October. An engineering department representative said contractors expect to be finished with the work before the first solid freeze, which is not anticipated until mid-November.

Work on both repaving projects was originally scheduled to begin in August.

ALLIED ASPHALT Paving Co., Hillside, will handle resurfacing in the Hatlen Heights subdivision and the New Town section of Mount Prospect at a cost of $129,000. Streets affected by these repairs are School Street from Golf Road to Lonnquist Boulevard; Busse Avenue from Main Street to Elm Street; Hatlen Avenue from Central Road to Bonita Drive; Bonita Drive from Lincoln Street to Busse Road.

Also Crestwood Lane from Lincoln Street to Hatlen Avenue; Beverly Lane from Lincoln Street to Hatlen Avenue; Beech Road from Seneca Lane to Maya Lane; Maya Lane from Burning Bush Lane to Mura Lane; Mura Lane from Seminole Lane to Park Drive; Cayuga told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to the paddling if the rules had been followed but "there were no two swats on the butt."

She said Michael Biskupski, who was first an aide in the program and later a teacher in the junior high school, "put the paddle over his head" and then brought it down to hit a child. She said, "There was a boy who was taller than Mr. Biskupski and it seems he was always in the hall getting it."

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

SHE SAID THAT after Whipple gave her the poor evaluation in February and suggested she resign, she called Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, to tell her about the evaluation and mentioned that there were "other things" at the school that needed Mrs. Kinney's attention.

She said she did not specify what "other things" Mrs. Kinney should look into because "there wasn't time" during that phone call.

Ritchel's Inc., Peoria, will resurface five miles of residential streets in southwest Mount Prospect at a cost of $38,260. Streets affected include:

Robert Drive from Lonnquist Boulevard to Glenn Lane; We-Go Trail from Golf Road to Lonnquist Boulevard; See-Gwin Avenue from Golf Road to Lonnquist Boulevard; Hiawatha Trail from Elmhurst Road to Main Street; Main Street from Weller Creek to Sunset Road; Maple Street from Golf Road to Lonnquist Boulevard; Golfview Drive from Edward Street to Albert Street; Albert Street from Golfview Drive to Golfhurst Avenue.

GOLFHURST AVENUE from Albert Street to Edward Street; Edward Street from Golfhurst Avenue to Golfview Drive; Golfview Place from Golfview Drive to Golfview Court; Grace Drive from Cottonwood Lane to Frost Drive; Cypress Drive from Cottonwood Lane to Eva Lane; Hickory Drive from Cottonwood Lane north 400 feet; Catalpa Lane from Laverne Drive to Busse Road; Magnolia Lane from Laverne Drive to Busse Road.

Pheasant Trail from Laverne Drive to Busse Road; Laverne Drive from Pheasant Trail to Willow Lane; Tamarack Drive from Pheasant Trail to Catalpa Lane; Palm Drive from Laverne Drive to Sprucewood Drive; Fern Drive from Willow Lane to Palm Drive; Birch Drive from Willow Lane to Palm Drive; Robert Drive from Willow Lane to Golf Road; Busse Avenue from Wille Street to Elmhurst Road.

Under way also is the replacement of 400 squares of sidewalk under a cooperative program between the village and residents. Work has been completed in the south section of the village and is beginning in the northern section of the village.

Sex-case doctor down, but not out

by BARRY SIGALE

Dr. James G. Middleton, once a thriving, $50,000-a-year general practitioner, is living a life of relative destitution, picking tomatoes, sweet corn and cucumbers from a backyard garden for food and working as a janitor in return for free use of his former office as a home.

The 47-year-old doctor, convicted in early 1972 of deviate sexual assault and of federal explosives and firearms violations, has been forced to move from his $330-a-month fourth-floor Lake Shore Drive high-rise apartment to the tiny quarters behind his old office at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines.

His savings depleted from $25,500 because of legal fees Middleton has become a handyman, fixing toilets, paving the driveway and throwing out trash in and around the building occupied by a printing firm and his small quarters.

A raid on his Des Plaines office by Sheriff's Police investigators produced pipebombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and artificial devices for sexual stimulation.

Antifreeze slowly draining away?

A Herald staff report

This is not the year to drain your car's radiator and replace the antifreeze. Shortages of petroleum based chemicals are making antifreeze expensive — as well as virtually impossible to get.

A survey of gasoline stations and stores in the Northwest suburbs has revealed that few have all the antifreeze they will need, and some outlets have virtually none.

In addition, prices have tripled since last year, several service station managers said.

THE BLAME for the shortage is attributed to decreased supplies of ethylene glycol (the main ingredient of antifreeze), use of ethylene glycol for making synthetic fabrics rather than antifreeze, and a decline in the number of companies producing antifreeze.

Two managers of local service stations said they thought the shortage may be a sham perpetrated by oil companies to force the price up.

"I feel it's another phony deal like with the so-called energy crisis . . . I think when the price is up high enough it will come through again just like the gasoline did," Joe Dunn, manager of the Mount Prospect Citgo station, 606 Northwest Hwy., said.

Joe Till, manager of the Golf and Busse Shell station in Mount Prospect, said Shell Oil Co. told him Thursday there is a shortage of antifreeze cans.

'Longest hearing in history'

by WANDALYN RICE

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Certification Board, in "the longest hearing in history," heard charges from Barbara Hickey, a former teacher at Dwyer School, Arlington Heights, that former director John Whipple allowed child abuse to occur at the school. The school offers special classes for emotionally disturbed children from throughout the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Hickey, who resigned from the school this fall after making charges against Whipple to County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick's office, admitted under cross-examination that she does not remember if she complained about child abuse at the school until after Whipple told her she would not receive a raise at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

Whipple, seated at a small table with his attorney, Paul Rettberg, listened intently to the testimony, frequently leaning over to whisper advice to Rettberg.

IN FOUR HOURS of testimony at the hearing Friday, Mrs. Hickey, who taught children with learning disabilities at the school from 1971 to 1974, also said she saw Whipple lead a boy through the halls of the school with a belt attached to the boy's belt loop as a leash.

She also said Whipple "threatened and harassed" her and that teachers in Dwyer smoked cigarets in classrooms and used vulgar language in front of children.

In addition to Mrs. Hickey, the board heard two hours of testimony from Leo Hennessey, deputy superintendent to Martwick. Martwick has suspended Whipple's certificate which allows him to work as a school psychologist in public schools and has recommended that the certification board revoke the certificate.

Board members agreed to continue the hearing on Oct. 7 in Chicago. Whipple will be allowed to continue to work as a psychologist until the hearing is completed.

Whipple was clinical director of Dwyer until July, when he requested a transfer to the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with learning and emotional problems.

THE NORTHWEST EDUCATION Cooperative governing board, which runs Dwyer, has reaffirmed its faith in Whipple in a report following an investigation into the charges against him and other members of the Dwyer staff. In his testimony, Hennessey referred to the NEC report as a "whitewash."

Whipple also has been accused of violating another state law by practicing as a private psychologist without a state license. David Smith, hearing officer for the board, overruled at least temporarily an effort by officials from Martwick's office to introduce evidence that State's Atty. Bernard Carey is investigating that charge against Whipple. Carey has taken no action to prosecute Whipple.

Mrs. Hickey said that in February of this year, Whipple called her to his office at Dwyer and told her she should resign from the program because she couldn't get along with other staff members and that "I let my needs and values get in the way of running the program."

Mrs. Hickey testified that she thought Whipple's evaluation was unfair because "the closest Mr. Whipple came to watching me work in three years at Dwyer was when he stood outside my door for a few minutes. He never saw my plan book."

MRS. HICKEY ALSO said children were paddled in the school "two or three times a week," and sometimes more often when the weather was bad. She said, (Continued on Page 5)

Deep-fat fryer causes blaze

FIRE SWEEPED through the home of Adolph Ramas, 630 S. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights Friday afternoon. The fire was caused by deep-fat fryer boiling over, according to reports. Ramas, alone in the house at the time, is in good condition with burns at Northwest Community Hospital. Left, his wife Freida is comforted by a co-worker who rushed her to the scene of the fire.

Officials to unveil plans for race track housing

Madison Square Garden officials tonight will present their plans for a huge housing development next to the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

Preliminary plans show a 5,716-unit housing project which includes townhouses, condominium apartments and a 32-story building. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

O. V. Anderson, chairman of the special joint meeting of the Arlington Heights Village Board and plan commission which will hear the proposal, said only housing plans will be discussed.

He said Madison Square Garden officials are preparing a list of reasons why they believe the village should extend the annexation agreement which expires Oct. 20. A public hearing is scheduled on that matter for Sept. 30 at the village hall.

A FIVE-YEAR extension is needed, according to the New York-based firm, to give more time to complete plans for the development.

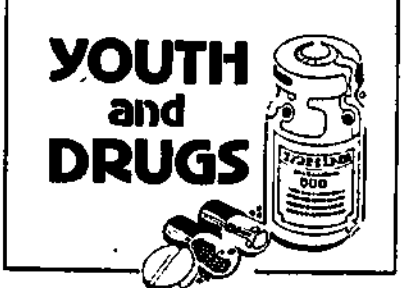

Under the annexation agreement, building permit fees and inspection fees are frozen at their 1969 level. Dozens of other considerations were given when the race track complex was annexed in 1969, including building heights and other requirements.

Homeowners in the area of the race track already are joining forces to attend the Sept. 30 meeting. A newsletter sent out last week to residents of the Westgate Civic Assn. asked that the 1,000 homeowners in the Arlington Heights subdivision attend the meeting. Some Rolling Meadows officials and homeowners also are concerned about the development.

State OKs Harper second campus

Harper College in Palatine has received permission from the Illinois Community College Board to buy land for a second campus in Arlington Heights.

The ICCB, meeting in Macomb Friday, authorized Harper's board of trustees to buy the 146-acre site at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads in Arlington Heights.

The approval of the ICCB will probably mean a referendum in the next few months in which the Harper board will ask voters to authorize funds for purchase of the land.

College officials said Saturday that no timetable has yet been set up for a referendum, but that the college board will be discussing that in the next several weeks.

IN ADDITION, college officials said William Kelly, president of the board, will attend the Arlington Heights Village Board meeting Oct. 7 to notify that board of the ICCB action. The village board has set aside the proposed site for the college on its zoning plan and has said it wants to be kept informed about the college's progress in buying the land.

In taking the action Friday, the ICCB upheld a recommendation from its staff that allowing Harper to buy the land would be "prudent" because enrollment projections indicate the college will outgrow its original site at Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine by 1980.

Harper officials have said that they want to buy the land now but would not build on it unless enrollments live up to projections. The college will have to return to the ICCB for approval before it will be able to build on the land.

Three linked to beating of local teen-ager

Three men were arrested by Arlington Heights police and charged with battery after they allegedly beat a Buffalo Grove man at a party early Saturday.

According to reports, the four men were at a party in Arlington Heights when the victim, Christopher R. Johnson, 18, of 4042 White Pine, Buffalo Grove, accidentally turned off the lights.

When the lights were turned back on, Johnson was struck by one of the suspects and then forced into a bathroom where the other two joined the beating, police said.

After police arrived at the scene, Johnson had wandered off. Fire department paramedics reported finding him walking in a daze several blocks from the party.

Arrested were George Gabl, 19, of 1421 W. Maude Ave., Arlington Heights; Leon Carroll, 17, of 1522 N. George St., Arlington Heights; and Donald Penar, 22, of 1416 Saulk Ln., Mount Prospect.

The men were arrested in Penar's van near Frontier Park.

Gabl and Carroll were released on $1,000 bond each. Penar was charged with having no driver's license as well as the battery count. He was released on $5,000 bond.

They are scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Oct. 25.

Johnson was treated for his injuries and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

YMCA DIRECTOR Charles McClennen inspects a model of the proposed $1.6 million addition to the Y's present facility at 30 Northwest

Hwy., Des Plaines. Construction has been delayed until spring because of rising costs. Construction was estimated to cost only $1.25 million.

High construction costs blamed

Plan to expand Y delayed until spring

The board of directors of the Northwest Suburban YMCA has put off plans to start construction on a $1.6 million addition until next spring and may have to modify plans because of soaring construction costs.

Stephen Jurco, president of the YMCA's board of directors, said the board will meet late this week or the week after to review a financial report on the addition.

The YMCA had hoped to start construction of the 26,000-square-foot addition this fall, but rising construction costs have forced a setback in the expansion program.

IN A PREPARED statement, the board indicated it "did not think it fair to request contributions from the community with the decline in the economic climate."

Jurco said the delay does not mean the YMCA has abandoned its plans for the addition.

He said, however, the financial report on the feasibility of the addition may require modification of the overall plan.

"We may delay some phases of the addition initially if the cost of buying money is too high," he said.

ESTIMATED cost of the addition has jumped more than 25 per cent in the five months since the plans for the addition were announced last April.

"That's pretty scary," Jurco said.

He also explained that YMCA officials were hesitant to try to start construction in the fall because that would require tying up the parking lot during the winter.

Area residents have complained about traffic congestion in the neighborhoods. They believe the congestion is caused by a shortage of parking at the Y.

YMCA officials recently asked the city council to modify the parking requirements for the facility. However, they do not plan to lose any parking space because of the addition.

They said they will build the addition on stilts. They also have made arrangements with a nearby office complex to use their parking facilities in the evening.

THE Y PLANS to build a new gymnasium with a running track, several basketball courts and handball courts and meeting rooms.

The organization plans to pay for the addition with a fund-raising drive in the community, contributions from groups within the Y and from regular membership fees.

The proposed addition marks the second major expansion undertaken by the Y in recent years. The organization completed its third swimming pool in early 1971.

"I could hear the paddle being applied and I could hear the children crying after paddling."

She said that among the teachers she saw use the paddle were Leah Rawson and Keith Parent, both former teachers at the school who also have made charges against Whipple.

She said that in January, 1971, Whipple held a staff meeting on the subject of paddling after a boy had been seriously hurt in one incident. She said Whipple told teachers to limit paddling to "two swats on a clothed butt," she said that although "I, myself, never used the paddle" she would not have objected to

Mrs. Hickey said she did not think she had ever raised the issue of paddling in 1971, 1972 or 1973 in staff meetings and replied, "No, I don't think so," when asked if she had told Whipple she thought children were being abused by the paddling.

SHE SAID THAT after Whipple gave her the poor evaluation in February and suggested she resign, she called Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, to tell her about the evaluation and mentioned that there were "other things" at the school that needed Mrs. Kinney's attention.

Workshop today for parents of gifted children

Marilyn Meissner, director of the state's North Suburban Area Service Center for the Gifted, will conduct a workshop for parents at 1:15 p.m. today in the Dunton Room of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library.

The workshop will be the first in a series of eight programs sponsored by Friends of Gifted Children during the 1974-75 school year. Those interested in education for gifted children are welcome to attend one or all of the programs, which will be held Mondays in the library.

Mary Koomyujian, who conducts all graduate courses in gifted education at Northeastern Illinois University, will discuss how to help the gifted child deal with his gifts on Oct. 28.

Richard J. Schlott will speak Nov. 23 as a representative of the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education.

NORMAN SODERSTROM, coordinator of the gifted child program for Dist. 25 junior high schools, will discuss local gifted education Jan. 27. That meeting will be scheduled in the evening in an effort to include those unable to attend daytime activities.

Mrs. Doe Hentschel, director of community relations at Harper College, will discuss the role of the college in service to area programs for gifted children on Feb. 24.

Dist. 25 Supt. Donald V. Strong will speak March 21.

Larry Chase, director of the self-renewal project in Dist. 21 schools which is funded by the federal government, will conduct a workshop for parents April 23. Chase was active in the creation of the Dist. 21 program for gifted last year.

On May 26 interested persons will take a field trip to a school outside of Dist. 25 to visit classrooms devoted to gifted education. The school and transportation arrangements will be announced at a late date.

Ailing Palatine boy remains in jail despite court order

by JOANN VAN WYE
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A Palatine youth with a medical record of hepatitis is locked in County Jail, despite a court order for his hospitalization.

Jail officials insist the youth — Phillip Johnson, 17 — is "recovering" from the disease and cannot infect the jail's 1,300-prisoner population.

But, a medical statement included in the youth's court file recommends hospitalization and treatment for hepatitis, a contagious liver disease. Treatment at Cermak Hospital, which serves county jail, reportedly was ordered by a Circuit Court judge when Johnson was arrested on vandalism charges Aug. 28 by Palatine police.

CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE Arthur Sullivan last week ordered a "full report" on Johnson's health and delayed a preliminary hearing until Thursday on charges of burglary and vandalism. Sullivan's order came after the judge refused Thursday to allow the youth inside his Skokie courtroom for fear of infecting persons present.

Johnson's three-week jailing without hospitalization was disclosed Friday during a speech before Wheeling Township Republicans by Peter Bensinger, GOP candidate for sheriff.

During his appearance in Arlington Heights, Bensinger referred to a "prisoner who should have gone to Cermak Hospital for diabetes and went instead to County Jail."

Johnson, 449 E. Baldwin Rd., Palatine, "is sick and I want treatment for him," his mother, Billie Johnson, said Saturday. "They figure he was in trouble before and just threw him in jail."

"I'm not satisfied he has hepatitis," Sullivan said. "He may have. I want to see what is being done and whether it's dangerous."

AFTER JOHNSON WAS arrested by Palatine police, a fire department ambulance driver, two policemen and another arrested youth were inoculated against possible hepatitis and the Palatine jail was sanitized.

Johnson was arrested after he left "against medical advice" Alexian Brothers Medical Center Aug. 25. The youth entered the hospital Aug. 5 for treatment of hepatitis and a liver ailment after the Cook County State's Attorney's office agreed to delay his arrest.

"We put him in the hospital because we knew he was sick," his mother said. "When he was picked up, it was infectious, but it's not now."

Johnson was taken to county jail on the day of his arrest, his mother said.

Palatine police said the youth was transported in an ambulance to Alexian Brothers in Elk Grove Village. But, hospital officials told The Herald that Johnson was not admitted or treated on Aug. 28 or 29.

FIFTEEN DAYS AFTER his arrest, on Sept. 12, Johnson received a physical examination at Cermak Hospital. Lad Alfaro, jail paramedics supervisor, said Johnson's medical record, with a first entry of Sept. 12, indicates that he entered the jail "at the earliest" Sept. 11.

Another spokesman at the jail told The Herald on Friday that Johnson was not a jail prisoner.

Tests at Cermak on Sept. 12 and Sept.

18 showed a "liver problem" but not hepatitis, Alfaro said.

A separate test that is dated Sept. 12 called for hospitalization and hepatitis treatment. The test result, reported by Dr. E. J. Kelleher, director of psychiatric services for the county, is included as a signed statement in Johnson's court file. Kelleher also recommended out-patient psychiatric treatment.

Sheriff Richard Elrod, the official responsible for county jail operations, said Saturday he has no authority to place the youth in Cermak Hospital, which is controlled by the Hospital Governing Commission.

ALFARO SAID Johnson's case is not "unusual." "We get 300 prisoners a day. About 100 come with orders from judges for hospitalization. We'd have to have Presbyterian-St. Luke's (Hospital) for them all."

Cermak Hospital has 70 beds and on Friday only one was vacant, Alfaro said.

Prisoners with court orders for hospitalization are sent to Cermak for "reevaluation," Alfaro said. "The judges play doctor. We don't know what they tell the judge. We completely check their record."

Johnson "doesn't have anything you'd call infectious. He's on the road to recovery. All you can do is rest and take vitamins," Alfaro said.

The youth is in a single cell in a "holding area," for prisoners who cannot perform jail work, Alfaro said. Cermak physicians are "twice as alert" for possible infectious diseases like hepatitis because "we have 1,300 people here."

ACCORDING TO ALFARO, Johnson was reexamined Friday and "there's still nothing." The lab reports came back okay.

Johnson was arrested in June after a break-in at Busch's Parts and Services, 137 S. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Police answered a burglar alarm that was triggered when a building window was broken. Police found no identification or stolen goods with Johnson when he was arrested.

Johnson also is charged with a June 21 vandalism incident at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant, 920 E. Northwest Hwy. An estimated $500 in damage to a ceiling, cash register, safe and desk was reported after a burglary attempt.

Youth arrested for crash scuffle

An Arlington Heights youth was arrested Saturday night after he allegedly tried to remove evidence from the scene of an auto accident and struck a police officer.

Arrested was Paul J. Spolowicz, 18, of 1705 N. Windsor. He was charged with obstructing justice, aggravated battery and resisting an officer.

Police said Spolowicz was a passenger in a car involved in a crash. Patrolman Michael Ossler reportedly saw him trying to take some beer from the scene.

Ossler said that when he tried to stop Spolowicz, the youth began punching him. Another patrolman, Robert Gerth, came to Ossler's aid as did two unidentified firemen.

Spolowicz was subdued and taken to the station by two other officers.

Spolowicz was released on $3,000 bond pending a Nov. 1 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.
